More Students, Teachers

Elementary Schools Open On Quieter Note Than '70

Schools in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 will open this morning with more students, more teachers, and less rancor than accompanied opening day last year.

Elementary schools will begin classes for first through fifth grade students at 9:05 a.m. Kindergarten students will visit the schools today and have their first day of class tomorrow.

Oliver Wendell Holmes and Thomas Lively junior high schools will open at 7:55 a.m. Dempster and Grove junior high schools will open at 8:20 a.m.

The district will have 541 teachers this year, 18 more than last year. Eighty of the teachers will be new to the district and 62 of them will face their first year of teaching, said Albeon Waltman, assistant superintendent for personnel.

Waltman said only four positions, mainly in special education, remain to be filled by the district.

LAST YEAR school opened despite professional sanctions applied by the Elk Grove Teachers Council. Teachers had rejected a contract proposal the week before school opened.

The contract dispute between teachers and the district dragged on through the fall and finally resulted in a one-day teacher's strike in February.

This year, a contract between teachers and the board of education was approved in June, although it probably will not go into effect until November because of the President's wage-price freeze.

For the first time parents have been able to register their children by mail, using one form for all children in the family. Forms were mailed in June to approximately 7,200 families in the district. They have been returned by more than 90 per cent.

Anyone whose child is not registered, may do so today at school, district officials said.

Book fees and fees for students who must pay for bus transportation will not be collected this month. Bills for the fees will be sent out in October from the administration building.

Book fees this year will be $10 for each first through eighth grade student. Fees for pay-bus, provided for students living less than 1½ miles from school, will be about $25.

DISTRICT OFFICIALS speculate enrollment may reach 12,000 students this year. Last year's enrollment was 11,600.

Enrollment must grow by at least 232 students for the district to be eligible to file an amended state aid claim, which provides extra money for districts with more than a two per cent annual growth rate.

Changes are being planned in many of the district schools this year, both to improve education and because of budget cutbacks, Leah Cummins, public relations director, said.

Among the schools most affected by the budget cutbacks are Brentwood in Des Plaines and Grant Wood in Elk Grove Village. In the past, the two schools have had Individually Prescribed Instruction (IPI), a program begun in 1964 as an experiment with outside grants.

This year a district-wide cutback on teacher's aides eliminated the aides that have been used in the IPI schools. As a result, staffs at both schools have been changing their programs.

In addition, Grant Wood will open this year without an assigned principal. Principal Donald Gruszka resigned this summer to take a job with another district.

Erwin Stevenson, assistant superintendent for instruction, will work with Grant Wood faculty members until a new principal is named.

Palatine Man, 26, First Labor Day Traffic Victim

A 26-year-old Palatine man became the first fatality of the Labor Day weekend when his car crashed head-on into another car on Quentin Road, north of Rte. 68, at midnight Friday.

The man was identified as John Bastian, of 647 E. Baldwin.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Bastian was trying to pass another motorist, when he collided with a car driven by Cindy Daczewitz, 18, of 625 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights.

Police said Bastian swerved to avoid the oncoming car, but not in time. The accident happened at Quentin Road near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Miss Daczewitz was taken to Northwest Community Hospital with multiple contusions, lacerations and a fractured nose. As of Monday morning, she was listed in good condition by the hospital.

Police said she said she didn't see Bastian in time to swerve away.

In Elk Grove Village Friday afternoon an 8-year-old boy, Ronald Bartlett, 200 Kingsbridge, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident.

The boy, according to police, was riding his bike in front of his home when a car swerved into him and then kept going. Young Bartlett suffered only an abrasion to his left arm, which was treated at home, but police said they are investigating the accident.

ELSEWHERE in the Northwest suburbs during the holiday weekend, traffic accidents were limited to fender benders without injuries.

Illinois State Police reported no serious accidents on the Northwest Tollway as of Monday afternoon. A spokesman said traffic on the tollway was very heavy Saturday, slackened Sunday and was expected to be very heavy again Monday evening, as weary motorists drove home at the end of the holiday.

At noon Monday, 490 persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents around the nation. The National Safety Council predicted earlier that from 600 to 700 persons would be killed in cars before the Labor Day holiday ended at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The council also predicted that 24,000 to 28,000 persons would be injured in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

WHILE TRADITIONAL Labor Day traffic placed heavy burdens on the roads, area golf courses also were feeling the extra holiday rush as suburbanites tried to take advantage of the long weekend.

At Arlington Country Club on Dundee Road, there was a 45-minute wait with several hundred golfers on the course at noon.

At the Mount Prospect Country Club course run by the park district, golfers reported a solid stream of players since daybreak, a 3½-hour wait for tee off at 11:30 a.m., and nearly 200 golfers on the course.

At Nordic Hills near Roselle, golfers had a two-hour wait, while at the Buffalo Grove Country Club there was a 45-minute wait and more than 100 players on the course.

A spokesman at the Palatine Hills course said they were keeping on schedule for players with reserved tee-off times, but "walk-ons" who had no reservations had a considerable wait.

Outlying courses such as Bonnie Dundee near Carpentersville had no waiting at all, and at Rob Roy in Prospect Heights a woman said "if you can get out here in 15 minutes you can get on, but after that I don't guarantee anything."

Expect 2,500 Students

Elk Grove High Begins 6th Year

Elk Grove High School will begin its sixth year today when an expected 2,500 students arrive for the opening of the fall term. Most of the students are from Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines.

Enrollment will be 300 less than last year because of the loss of Rolling Meadows freshmen students who will attend the new Rolling Meadows High School on Central Road.

For Robert Haskell this will be his fifth year as principal, and his second as an instructor at the school. He teaches an early morning United States History class before the regular school day begins.

"I find it very helpful and I really enjoy it," he said.

New courses to be offered include black literature, introduction to teaching, boys family meal, photography, Touch Shorthand II, advanced dance, and microbiology. Russian and Spanish V have been dropped.

A newly constructed speech arts center containing sound proof booths where students may rehearse their speeches, also has been added.

THERE IS NO dress code at the school, other than the requirement students wear shoes for sanitary reasons.

"They may wear what is appropriate," said Donald Fyfe, assistant principal of instructional services, also adding there is no hair policy.

Man Charged With Public Indecency

A 60-year-old Wood Dale man was charged with two counts of public indecency last week in Elk Grove Village.

The man, whose name was not released by police, matched a description given by six youngsters who said he exposed himself to them.

Patrolman Jon Walters apprehended the suspect Thursday riding his bicycle near Elk Grove and John F. Kennedy boulevards.

nowadays, he said, and boys are allowed to wear beards.

"We've found that dress or the length of hair has no effect on the ability of a student to produce," he said. "The staff is not upset by long hair, and we have teachers with beards so..."

The school has a young faculty, with the average age 30 years old. The total number on the faculty and in administration is 145, a decrease of 20 from last school year and caused by the opening of High School Dist. 214's seventh school in Rolling Meadows.

The turnover of faculty members is very low, according to Fyfe, more so now because of what he called the "economic squeeze."

Students are allowed 25 minutes for lunch in the school's cafeteria though the schedule is flexible enough to be changed later to allow for students to take a one-hour lunch outside of the school as was done briefly last spring.

A smoking area is provided for students outside at the rear of the building. There is no smoking permitted for students inside the building.

THE SCHOOL day begins at 7:45 for 645 students who want to start in the period known as reveille. The regular school day is from 8:40 a.m. to 3:40 p.m.

Students who like to get an early start are usually those enrolled in the work-study program. They attend school and work at a job for academic credit.

The number of students going on to college from last year's graduating class of 500 was estimated at 67 per cent.

Asked if students had changed any since the first day Elk Grove High opened in 1966, Fyfe said students are more willing to talk to the faculty.

What concerned him, he said, was "the desire of too many students to graduate early," from one semester to one year ahead of their senior class. There were 35 such students last school year.

"We discourage early graduation because we refuse to believe they cannot learn more," Fyfe said.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,800-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1968.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 375,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

Against County Assessor

Schools Joining Class Action Suit

by JUDY NAFOLIA

Several area districts are joining a countywide class action suit against the Cook County Assessor's Office for the delay in issuance of tax bills this spring.

Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23 is one of three respondents in the suit who will be supported by many suburban Cook County school districts. Schaumburg Elementary Dist. 54, Elk Grove Elementary Dist. 59 and High School Dist. 211 and 214 are local districts which have agreed to help finance the class action suit.

Wheeling Elementary Dist. 211 has decided not to join the suit.

School district officials hope to seek court help in compelling the county assessor's office to issue real estate property tax bills by May 1 of each year, as stipulated by law. Tax bills this year were delayed into the summer months, preventing school districts from either investing early taxes or using them to complete the 1971-72 fiscal year.

The suit will also ask the court to abolish the one and one half per cent collection fee charged by the assessor's office and return the money to the districts.

A one per cent retention for objections filed against tax bills is also being challenged. Through the joint suit, school districts hope to have one per cent or the amount of the objection, whichever is less, held rather than an across-the-board 1 per cent.

Finally, districts which had to borrow money because of the lateness of the tax bills will ask for damages in the amount of the interest which is due on the tax anticipation warrants.

School districts are being assessed according to their assessed valuation for legal fees. Any fees not used will be returned on a pro-rated basis.

The class action suit is being organized and sponsored by the Illinois Association of School Boards.

School Lunch Menus

The following lunches will be served Wednesday in area schools where a hot lunch program is provided (subject to change without notice):

St. Viator: Baked ham on a bun, oven onion fried potatoes, buttered green beans, chocolate cake and milk.

Dist. 214: Main dish (one choice) stuffed meat loaf, cheeseburger on a bun, beef liver, wiener in a bun. Vegetable (one choice) whipped potatoes, buttered peas. Salad (one choice) fruit juice, tossed salad, relish dish, molded gelatin salads. Biscuits, butter and milk. Available desserts: Fresh fruit and melon, apple pie, angel food cake, peanut butter cookies.

Dist. 211: Chicken fried steak or taco with lettuce and cheese, mashed potatoes and gravy, cornbread and butter-honey, gelatin with orange segments.

Dist. 125: Chop suey with rice, or hamburger on a bun with rice pilaf, rolls and butter, coleslaw, juice and milk.

Dist. 26: Meat ravioli with tomato sauce, buttered green beans, white bread with peanut butter, tomato wedge and cucumber slice, cinnamon crispies and milk.

Dist. 16: Barbecue on a bun with potato chips, buttered peas and carrots, apple crisp and milk.

Dist. 21 and 54: Barbecued hamburger with a hamburger bun, french fries, buttered corn, margarine, cookie and milk.

Dist. 25: Hot dog on a bun with relish, baked beans, fruit cup, pudding and milk.

Dist. 23: Grilled cheese sandwich, French string beans, chilled watermelon, apple crisp and milk.

School Board Gets Results Of Survey

The results of a survey taken by the School Community Council will be presented to the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 at its meeting today.

The report, the result of a survey of 100 families, will be presented at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The goals committee of the council, an organization of district parents, conducted the survey by selecting five families at random from each of the district's twenty schools, according to member Nita Stamm.

In the survey parents were asked their opinions about the district's education program and what improvements they would like to see in it.

ALSO ON THE agenda for the board meeting is a discussion of the rate schedule for building use by non-school sponsored groups.

Adoption of the rate schedule was slated for the last board meeting but was postponed because of the announcement of the wage-price freeze.

Earlier the board had voted to change its policy and begin charging all profit-making ventures, even those held by parent's organizations, and all groups that will use the schools on weekends or after 10 p.m.

Rates for building use were to be set according to actual cost to the district for maintaining the buildings, but district officials have indicated the rates may be affected by the wage-price freeze.

Last year's rates were $4 per hour for weekdays and $6 for weekends.

Fund Drive For Hospital Start

by JERRY THOMAS

A Hoffman Estates woman facing a Dec. 15 deadline is collecting a half-penny apiece from 600,000 people to help her home town hospital buy a kidney machine.

Mrs. John Parrish of 182 Meyer Rd., found out about the Paris Illinois Community Hospital fund drive during a home town visit.

However, the fund drive is not limited to cash donations. She explained the Nursing Service at the hospital, serving a population of 10,000, is also collecting Betty Crocker coupons, found in General Mills products.

General Mills will pay the hospital a half penny a piece for every coupon turned in, she said.

"That's what I mean by saying I'm going to try to get as many half pennies out of my neighbors as I can," she explained.

"THE HOSPITAL'S goal is to collect at least 600,000 coupons and turn them in for $3,000 worth of cash. With the additional cash donations this should be enough money to purchase a kidney machine," said Mrs. Parrish.

Nurses at the Paris hospital said three Paris area residents must travel approximately 50 miles to Springfield for kidney machine dialysis treatment. Paris is located about 200 miles from Chicago near the Indiana border.

Superintendent of nurses Marcelle Kincaid said the hospital is near a half way mark in its coupon drive, and said Mrs. Parrish and others like her will make it successful.

Coupons may be mailed directly to the Nursing Service at the Paris Community Hospital, Paris, Ill., 61944 or to Mrs. Parrish at her Hoffman Estates address.

Mrs. Parrish, a registered nurse, has enlisted the aid of local businessmen and neighbors who are helping her coupon collection grow.

IN THE FIRST week of collection she has been given about 1,000 Betty Crocker coupons from her neighbors.

"Reaction to my plea for coupons has been varied," said Mrs. Parrish. Some people are eager to help the hospital get a machine, knowing it means life or death for those whose kidneys do not function."

But, then there is the woman who remarked that she might have a few coupons, but not until she saved enough for her coffee pot."

"I don't think about those; just the many kind people who have brought in coupons one by one, or in fistfuls of hundreds. With their help Paris Hospital will get a kidney machine," said Mrs. Parrish.

'Low-Cost Housing Needed For Growth'

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Low and moderate-income housing is a "requirement" for the growth of Arlington Heights, according to an unexpected stand taken by the president of the village's Chamber of Commerce.

Edward "Bud" Mills told members of the low and moderate-income housing study committee Thursday night the attraction of more industry to the village and the availability of a wide cost range of housing are directly related.

Developments for low and moderate-income families will help to attract more industry and office buildings which will "help everyone's tax bills," the Chamber president said.

Mills' speech marked the first time the local group of businessmen have taken any public comments on the housing issue which has been boiling in Arlington Heights for almost 18 months.

The needs which are not being met presently in the village include housing for newly married couples, senior citizens and blue collar workers, Mills commented. Developments can be properly planned so that "we don't have shacks."

The housing is needed "if you want the workers to come in here and build up your industrial tax base," Mills said.

In answering a question, Mills said that housing is needed for not only moderate-income families but also low-income families.

Committee member Alice Harms, who is also on the Arlington Heights Village Board, said she knew the Chamber of Commerce was interested in a healthy economic attitude in the village and asked Mills if low and moderate-income housing might help some of the local businesses.

"It would probably help a great number of them," Mills said and then commented he didn't think the village has lost any business because of a lack of employees. "But we haven't gained many either," he added.

Committee member David Patterson asked if there wasn't enough housing available in areas around Arlington Heights for low and moderate-income housing.

Mills said the lack of housing close to where people work was not a "major" problem but availability of more housing would be helpful to present and future businesses.

Mills was one of about 15 representatives of Arlington Heights groups who spoke at last week's hearing called specifically to judge local attitudes towards the possibility of building low and moderate-income housing. The study committee was formed early this year to study the need for such housing and, if a need exists, recommend to the village board the best way to fulfill the need.

The committee includes members of the village board and plan commission. A deadline for the committee's report on the study of the housing issue has been set for Oct. 15.

In addition to Mills, a few other representatives of groups urged the building of low and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights. Included among the advocates was Jeannie Christopher, housing counselor for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

However, most of the other speakers in one way or another said their groups were opposed to low and moderate-income housing developments which might be built in the village.

Patching Finished On Arlington Rd.

The patching of Arlington Heights Road between Higgins and Oakton roads is apparently completed and motorists need not anticipate any more traffic tie-ups.

Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis said he had contacted the Cook County Highway Department, which had crews laying blacktop on the road Wednesday and Thursday and that he did not think the county has any more work planned soon.

Willis said the county was "putting band-aids on the bad spots to make it a little more passable."

Second Death In One Week Blamed On Heroin Overdose

For the second time in a week, a Des Plaines resident has died of an apparent overdose of heroin.

Des Plaines police said the latest drug victim, Stephen J. Brennan, 25, of 825 Howard St., Des Plaines, was pronounced dead on arrival Friday morning at Holy Family Hospital.

A doctor at the hospital diagnosed the death as an overdose of heroin, according to police.

Des Plaines Patrolman Ralph Tovar said he went to the home in response to a call for an ambulance and found Brennan "barely breathing."

Tovar said he gave the victim first aid until the fire department ambulance arrived and took the man to the hospital. TOVAR SAID he searched the victim's clothing and found a syringe, still slightly wet; a package of white powder; and a burned bottle cap. He said he also found several fresh needle marks on the man's right arm, one of which was covered with a plastic bandage.

Brennan's death was the second in a week blamed on heroin.

Kevin R. Schneider, 19, of 2074 Locust St. Des Plaines, died Aug. 28 after he was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom by his father, Henry. In this death, police said they found a spoon, hypodermic needle case and three packages of white powder, believed to be heroin, under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Needle marks were found on Schneider's right arm, stomach and toes, according to police.

Harvest Time At Prairie Farm

Prairie Park sowed flower seeds among their vegetables.

CLIFFORD HARDIN, SCARECROW, ESQ. stands watch over the garden plot sponsored by Arlington Heights Garden Club and PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problems). Clifford was named in honor of the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Long-range park district plans include development of the 10-acre site into a farm park with barn, silos and small animals.

by MARY B. GOOD
A harvest happening is turning up purple green beans, orange beets, yellow tomatoes and purple kohlrabi among its bounty of beautiful vegetables at Prairie Farm and Garden Park.

After a summer of urging sprouts and watching the miracle, the farm garden, a project of the Arlington Heights Park District, has become a source of satisfaction to many of the 100 families who invested hard work in the 10-acre organic garden.

Ted Guenther of South Kenicott Avenue had more peppers than he could ever use. He suggested donating surpluses from the farm park to an orphanage. His wife, Evelyn, who is the top organic booster in the family, was the first to enter the park's "Biggest Tomato Contest" which runs through Oct. 2.

On his way to a second harvest is Ken Fish of South Fernandez. Fish had his nose to the ground the other day, looking for signs of emerging spinach. With five kids, his harvest doesn't stay around long enough to can or freeze.

RICHARD HEART of North Patton has always grown vegetables in his backyard; his wife has always wanted flowers. This year they have gardened in harmony in a big plot where zinnias and green peppers mingle. Now their only problem is raccoons that husk their corn.

Mrs. Harold Norum of Goebbert Road had to evict a squatter before she could begin tilling her soil. "A little gopher was very reluctant to share," said Mrs. Norum. This lady started tomato seeds in the living room of her apartment and got so hooked on growing, she found herself hauling water buckets out to the garden plot in the front seat of her Cadillac.

A former chef, Joe Mazzone, showed others how to gather and stuff pumpkin blossoms, Italian style, for a casserole; Mrs. Frederick Goetz learned all about ladybug larva life; and Bob Kopolnek discovered that squirting mineral oil in ears of corn keeps the corn borers away.

farm garden, she has another one twice as big on her mother-in-law's property.

Nine-year-old Andy Leighton and his dad, Nat, were out of town when an organic workshop was given for new recruits and missed out on the free seeds, plants, and mushroom manure which the park district furnished. On top of everything, they started out late, but still succeeded in producing a very respectable growth of corn, beans and pumpkins.

Most of the suburban farmers are looking forward for another stab at growing their own food again next year.

"WITH 10 TONS of horse manure for composting coming and wood chips for mulching over the winter, the plots will be better than ever next year," said Alicia Smith, recreation supervisor.

Mary B. Good, Paddock Publications garden editor, helped the garden instigator, Angelo Capulli, maintenance superintendent, develop the organic concept. Miss Smith, supervised the over-all farm program.

They're Making Marriage Plans

Janice Napientek

Janice Napientek of Palatine and William Kulew of Peoria have become engaged and will be married Sept. 25 in St. Theresa Church, Palatine. News of their wedding plans comes from Janice's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Napientek, 512 W. Kemilworth.

The bride-to-be is a '70 graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School and her fiancé a '68 graduate of Forest View High. He now works as parts manager for Morry's Foreign Auto in Peoria.

Lesley R. Baer

The engagement of Lesley R. Baer to Robert W. Behlke, son of the William Behlkes of 2125 Vermont St., Rolling Meadows, is announced by Lesley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baer of Springfield, Ill.

Their wedding is planned for next summer.

Lesley is a senior at Illinois State University, Normal, and her fiancé is a senior at Bradley University, Peoria. He is a graduate of Fremd High School.

Peggy Ann Ernst Is Aug. 8 Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Ernst of 500 N. Maple Lane, Prospect Heights, are announcing the marriage on Aug. 8 of their daughter, Peggy Ann, to Brock N. Lynch. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lynch of Perth, Western Australia.

The couple exchanged vows in St. Alphonsus Church, Prospect Heights, by the Rev. William Flaherty. Later there was a reception at the Casa Royale in Des Plaines.

The newlyweds are planning to reside in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Palatine Couple Wed In Garden

A summer wedding in the garden of the John Wrend home at 113 E. Norman Drive, Palatine, united Susan Jean Wrend and Barry Kent Fitzgerald, son of the Kenneth Fitzgeralds of 442 E. Carpenter, also in Palatine. The bridal pair wrote their own wedding service, and vocal selections during the ceremony were provided by friends, with guitar and bass accompaniment.

A dinner for 70 guests followed at the Lancer's in Palatine. Susan and Barry then went on a 3-week camping honeymoon through the western states.

Both are graduates of Palatine High School, Susan in '70 and Barry in '67. She studied at the University of Illinois this past year, and he was just graduated from California Institute of Technology at Pasadena. They will make their home in Boulder, Colo.

Julie Wrend was her sister's maid of honor and Donald Sheldon of Palatine was best man. The other two attendants were Diane Graese, Palatine, and Jan Fitzgerald, the groom's brother.

Legislation Ends Sex Bias In Jobs

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has signed legislation which prohibits employers, employment agencies and labor organizations from discriminating against anyone because of his or her sex.

The Fair Employment Practices Act, which House Bill 1975 amends to include the clause on sex, already declared that no one will be discriminated against because of race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry.

The law also already stated that Illinois public policy is to evaluate individuals on the basis of equal merit, ability and capabilities without discrimination on these bases. It also stated that Illinois policy will protect employers, labor organizations and employment agencies from unfounded charges of discrimination.

William C. Ives, chairman of the state's Fair Employment Practices Commission, commented:

"Sex discrimination, like other forms of discrimination, prevents people from working to the fullest of their capacity and is clearly unjust. Furthermore, this new prohibition on sex discrimination should make it easier for women now on welfare to obtain employment."

Ives added that women may ask the commission to investigate charges of sex discrimination. The commission has the authority to issue cease and desist and other orders to enforce fair employment practices.

Linda
Pye

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Pye of 1044 S. Carol Ave., Wheeling, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Linda Gayle, to Barton Lowell Harman, son of the Cecil Harman of Wood Dale.

The wedding is planned for Sept. 23 in the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Prospect Heights.

Linda is a '71 graduate of Wheeling High School and works for Dr. Gerald Reed in Wheeling. Her fiancé, a '69 graduate of Fenton High, is employed by Allstate Engineering and Plating Co., Elk Grove Village.

Donna
Hennentent

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hass of Galesburg, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Donna Hennentent, to Terry Hattendorf, son of the Alvin Hattendorfs of 154 N. Fremont St., Palatine. Donna is also the daughter of the late James Hennentent.

Their wedding is planned for next summer.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the University of Illinois where she will do graduate work in fall. Her fiancé, a Palatine High School graduate, is a senior at the U of I in the college of commerce.

GERALYNE
NAJDER

The engagement of GERALYNE GEORGETTE NAJDER to Edward James Pacana, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward F. Pacana, 419 Bluebonnet, Hoffman Estates, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Najder of Berwyn. A July 1, 1972 wedding is planned.

GERALYNE who graduated from Loyola University with a degree in English education, is a teacher in Forest Park. Edward, a graduate of Northwestern University with a degree in electrical engineering, is employed as a customer assurance engineer at Warwick Electronics Inc. and is attending DePaul Law School.

Spending Five Months In England

What more exciting honeymoon can a bride ask for than to spend five months in England.

That is where the former Lorraine Mary Adams of 511 S. Wille St., Mount Prospect, and her husband, Richard Allen Prinz of Elmwood Park, are living until December. The bridegroom is training to be a surgeon and will be studying in Cambridge, England. While their lengthy stay abroad is not specifically as a honeymoon, it provides an unusual adventure for a newly married couple.

Lorraine and Richard exchanged vows Aug. 1 in St. Raymond Catholic Church, Mount Prospect. A reception followed for 350 guests at Villa Olivia Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Adams.

She chose Michele Kutten of Mount Prospect as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Lee, Riverside, sister of the groom; Nancy Gilleran, LaGrange Park, cousin of the bride; Mrs. Charles Carr, Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Richard Miller, Mount Clemens, Mich.; Mrs. Phil O'Keefe, Chicago; and Karen Kaywood, Mount Prospect. Karen was married just three weeks later to the bride's brother, George.

RICHARD is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Prinz of Elmwood Park. He chose a cousin, Charles Caporale of Elmwood Park, as best man. Ushers included Dr. John Lee; Phil O'Keefe; the bride's brothers, Jerry and George Adams; Ted York, Brookview; and cousins of the groom Gabriel and Chuck Caporale of Elmwood Park.

The bride's niece and nephew, Gina and Christopher Lee, were flower girl and ring bearer, respectively.

As Lorraine was given in marriage by her father, she wore a white organza

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Prinz

gown trimmed with Alencon lace at the collar, on the bodice and cuffs of the long full sleeves. Her full-length illusion veil was edged with scalloped lace to match her gown. The bridal bouquet was composed of white roses and stephanotis.

All of Lorraine's attendants were gownned alike in turquoise chiffon and carried bouquets of multicolored baby mums. Their dresses were pant styled with a high neckline trimmed with white lace.

GREEN CHIFFON was the choice of the couple's mothers for the day's festivities. Mrs. Adams wore an emerald green gown and Mrs. Prinz a pale green, both trimmed with beaded detail. Each had a wrist corsage of white orchids.

The bride is a graduate of St. Patrick Academy, Des Plaines, and then attended Northwood College, Midland, Mich. The groom has been studying at Stritch School of Medicine in Maywood.

Bruce Batka's Bride Wears 'Family' Gown

Three daughters in the Francis M. Anderson family of Monroe Center, Ill., have now worn the same wedding gown. Cecil Ellen Anderson was the third to don the gown, wearing it on Aug. 8 for her marriage to Bruce Paul Batka of Mount Prospect.

The floor-length satin and lace dress had already been a focal point of the weddings of her sisters, Fran and Nancy. The dress has a lace bodice with long sleeves and a full skirt and chapel train of satin. With it, Cecil Ellen wore a short veil with a lace and pearl headpiece. She carried a white orchid surrounded by three red sweetheart roses and white daisies.

Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Batka, 608 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect. He and his bride met while attending Rock Valley Junior College in Rockford. Bruce is now working for a private security agency, and his bride has one more semester to finish at Illinois State University, Normal. They are living in Wheeling.

THEIR WEDDING took place at 8 p.m. in the Community Church of Monroe Center. A candlelight setting included bouquets of white glads and daisies on the altar and a pale blue ribbon along the pews.

The bridal attendants appeared in ice blue crepe gowns, Empire styled with silver trimming at the V neckline and an A-line skirt. The girls wore blue daisies in their hair and carried round bouquets of blue daisies and white carnations.

Donna Birchall of Rockford, the bride's best friend, was her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Laurel Batka, and Mrs. John Curry, the bride's sister of Athens, Ill.

Anita Ramsby, 4, of Montello, Wis., a niece of the bride, was flower girl, appearing as a miniature of the adult attendants. Mark Leather, 5, of Stillman Valley, Ill., a cousin of the bride was ring bearer.

Nick Carter of DeKalb, was best man, and groomsmen were Morris Bartlett and Mike Francis, both of Rockford.

GUESTS AT THE double ring ceremony were seated by Ralph Schlaf Jr. of Belvidere, Ill., and Dave Batka of LaGrange Park, cousins of the bridal pair.

After the wedding there was a reception in the church basement for 150 guests. The following week Mr. and Mrs. Batka hosted a second one at their Mount Prospect home so that friends here could greet the newlyweds. Highlight of the evening buffet was an 8-layer banana cake made by the groom's mother because it is his favorite.

For the wedding on the prior Sunday evening, Mrs. Anderson was attired in a pink crepe dress with a matching rose corsage. Mrs. Batka wore a yellow silk and wool dress with a red rose corsage.

Tea For Nurses

The annual membership tea for Hoffman-Schaumburg Registered Nurses Club is scheduled for Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Schillace, Schaumburg. All registered nurses living in Schaumburg Township are invited.

For further information Mrs. Franklin Johnson may be called at 894-8694.

The club meets the third Thursday of the month at Hoffman Estates Firehouse on Flagstaff Lane.

Corn Festival Time

Everyone is welcome to a Corn Festival Sunday afternoon at the Masonic Temple, 1 N. Plum Grove Road, Palatine. It is sponsored by Palatine Chapter 585 Order of Eastern Star.

The Festival begins at 1 p.m. and continues to 5. Donations are $2 for adults; $1 for children.

Jim Maurais and Egan Hellweg are co-chairmen of the event.

Ice Cream Social

An old-fashioned Ice Cream Social will be hosted by St. Hubert Council of Catholic Women Sunday afternoon in the school meeting hall of St. Hubert's, Hoffman Estates. Ice cream cones and sandwiches with a variety of toppings will be served from 2 to 5 p.m.

This is a family activity open to everyone.

Afternoon winners were Heidi Nast of Chicago, first place; Sue Paffer of Arlington Heights, second; and Gerry Ribando of Arlington Heights, third.

That's Just Sherry Nonsense

High Risk Of High Fashion

by MARY SHERRY

All my life I have been just slightly behind the fashions. This is, I suppose, partly because I kid myself into thinking that I'm independent enough to resist fads, and partly because I believe most new waves of fashion are genuinely ugly. But they are only ugly until I get used to them — a reaction, as I mentioned, that always comes just as the trend is about to fade.

I was bemoaning this fact to my friend and next-door neighbor, Alice Flaxton.

"This year the look is definitely layered," Alice stated.

I agreed, noting that after several tries, it was apparently going to make it. However, I protested its bulky appearance, observing that I didn't need any more padding.

"Look," Alice said flatly, "with fashion you love it or leave it. If you leave it, you risk learning to love it just as it is going out of style... remember?"

I remembered.

ALICE VOLUNTEERED to help make me fashionably relevant. "First you need your hair styled."

So I submitted myself to a hairdresser who, Alice assured me, would give me the latest. Shortly I emerged with a layer of hair cut to the nape of my neck, another layer that ended at my chin line, a third layer lying over my ears, bangs and a pouf on top. The result was a neatly tiered job resembling a brown furry wedding cake.

Then Alice announced that we were ready to go shopping. She insisted that my first purchase be a set of wildly colored underwear.

"But, Alice," I protested, "it's not practical. It will show through my clothes."

"Don't worry about it. By the time we get through it won't have a chance." She was very reassuring.

NEXT WE BOUGHT a long sleeved body shirt and tights. When I asked Alice which article of clothing went on first, she merely raised her eyes to heaven.

My third purchase was a wardrobe — sort of a 45-outfits-with-4-pieces type of thing. It had not only pants but a tunic top, a skirt and a reversible sleeveless jacket. Alice was very excited about this outfit because I could wear all the pieces at once with the underwear, body shirt and tights. When I got everything on, my arms stuck out a little from my sides like those of a 2-year-old bundled up to go out to play in the snow. And when Alice led me to a coat that she said was just perfect, I found I had to take it in a size larger than I usually wore.

Now that I have bought my fall and winter clothes on the layer-away plan and for the first time I am fashionably fit, I still find my enthusiasm lagging behind the trend. I really admire the fashion industry for coming up with an ingenious way to sell us more clothes than we need. And, truly, the look isn't too bad this year.

BUT THIS FASHION poses one great hazard. It is an absolute necessity that before one gets all layered up, she follow the orders we give our kids before they go off to a movie, a carnival or pile into the car for a long trip. "Go to the bathroom."

This minor inconvenience alone just might do in this fashion trend. Maybe not, though. It seems to be the rule that for fashion one must suffer.

Collective experience is powerfully persuasive. Periodically, there will come an avalanche of letters from all corners suggesting the identical remedy for someone who has just posed a question. This time it was the troublesome starlings. Everybody says the same thing. It doesn't do any good to shoot them away in the daytime. What turns them off is being disturbed at night. Some people prop ladders against trees and climb up at night to shake the starlings out — some get heavy boards and use them as clackers at the foot of the trees. Whichever way, all agree that a couple or three disturbances at night send the starlings scattering, and they stay away.

Dear Dorothy. Visiting a friend recently I observed her breaking up a clay flower pot which had white crusts on it to use as crocking. I told her I'd

Graphologist B&PW Guest

Graphologist Elvira Behrens will be guest speaker for Thursday evening's dinner meeting of the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club. Her topic is "Your Self-Concept in Handwriting."

A hospitality period beginning at 6:30 precedes a 7 o'clock dinner at Arlington Park Towers. Guests and prospective members are welcome. Traditionally the club's September meeting is a close one, but this will be open to non-members.

Miss Behrens is a handwriting consultant, lecturer and teacher of basic and advanced courses in handwriting analysis. According to her, handwriting is an expression of the subconscious mind as well as the conscious effort to conform to a pattern of handwriting. She will elaborate on this theory in her talk, showing how personality, emotions and thinking patterns of the individual show up in handwriting.

Women interested in the club may call Dorothy Karger, 296-5960, evenings. Members are employed women who live and/or work in the northwest suburbs.

OES Salutes 'Friends'

Arlington Heights Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, is holding Friends Night Thursday at 8 in the Masonic Temple, 1104 S. Arlington Heights Road. Officers have invited friends to serve as their guests.

Following the meeting the sewing group ways and means committee will sponsor a Five-Cent Social.

Sunday afternoon a barbecue will be given for members by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Harris in their Palatine home. They are worthy patron and matron of the chapter.

MRS. HARRIS has announced that a turkey dinner will be served Saturday, Sept. 16, in conjunction with the Fall Festival.

Two 50-year OES members received their commemorative membership pins at the chapter's August meeting. Mrs. Harry Topping and Mrs. Edmund Schmidt, both of Arlington Heights, are the "golden" members.

Tips On Antiques For 'Y' Auxiliary

Mrs. Betsy Ward of Arlington Heights is a registered nurse who has extended her interest in helping rehabilitate people to rejuvenating old furniture and other articles of bygone days. She does both with loving care.

Because of her hobby of antiques, she makes speaking engagements on the provocative topic, "What To Do With What Grandma Threw Out and Other Thoughts."

Mrs. Ward will appear Tuesday, Sept. 14, for the first fall meeting of Northwest Suburban YMCA Women's Auxiliary. Although she does not claim to be an expert, she will offer tips on creating treasures from attic cast-offs.

Her program follows a one o'clock luncheon in the "Y" all-purpose room, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines, tickets, at $2.25, should be purchased in advance at the YMCA.

Next On The Agenda

PI BETA PHI
Mrs. Ronald Jones, 1046 Warwick Lane, Elk Grove Village, will be hostess Wednesday evening to the Arlington Heights Alumnae of Pi Beta Phi. The meeting begins at 7:45.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Bonnie Hee Stephens, whose topic is "Customs and Cultures of Korea." Mrs. William Banta, a past president of the club, will give a short convention report.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Harrison Kennicott III, Mrs. Scott Davis, Mrs. Joseph Fanner, Mrs. Saunders Reinhard and Mrs. Donald Tichenor.

ALPHA OMICRON PI
"Pin A Rose on Us" is the title of the program Wednesday evening for Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi. It highlights the sorority's 49th international convention held this summer in Dallas, Texas, where the chapter received several awards for achievement.

Meeting hostess Wednesday is Mrs. O. E. Taylor, 1112 Francis, Arlington Heights. Mrs. George Vitoux and Mrs. Martin Voise, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Paul Jones, Mount Prospect, will assist her.

Reservations will also be taken for the "AOPicnic," a couples' party on Sept. 18. Any new AOPi alumnae in the area are welcome to the meeting. They may call Mrs. Jack Clark, 392-3923, for further information.

ARLINGTON NEWCOMERS
The monthly luncheon for Arlington Heights Newcomers Club is Wednesday at the Black Fox Restaurant of the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows. Cocktails will be served at 12:30 p.m. and luncheon at 1.

Club membership is open to all Arlington Heights women who have been residents less than 18 months. Mrs. Henry Zale, 392-6666, is membership chairman.

ST. CECILIA GUILD
The preparation of various cuts of meat will be demonstrated at Wednesday evening's meeting of St. Cecilia Church Altar Guild. Dick Crescent and Jerry Ryzek of the Jewel Food Stores will show the meat.

The women will attend Mass at 7:45 p.m. and then the program in the parish hall on Meier Road, Arlington Heights.

MEDICAL ASSISTANTS
The first meeting this fall for the American Association of Medical Assistants in Northwest Cook County is Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Northwest Community Hospital. Dr. Herbert Nator, anesthesiologist, will be the guest speaker.

Girls interested in joining the group may call Mrs. Dorothy Nolle at 882-0019.

PALATINE LIONS LADIES
A Panel of American Women will provide the program for Thursday evening's meeting of Palatine Lions Ladies. They meet at 8 o'clock in Palatine Savings and Loan building, 100 W. Palatine Road.

The panel consists of four Waukegan women who discuss racial, religious and sexual prejudices from personal experiences. A question and answer period follows their remarks.

President Mrs. James Q. Neely invites members to bring guests to this first fall meeting. Mrs. R. N. Bogenberger, 358-0297, can be called for details.

Jewish Women To Hear Friendly Town Panel

A panel of speakers from Friendly Town, an organization which arranges two weeks in the northwest suburbs for black children from the Lawndale area, will be the feature on the opening meeting of the year for Northwest Suburban Unit of the National Council of Jewish Women.

Heading the panel will be Mrs. Mary Ann Reiter of Arlington Heights along with black and white mothers and a black child.

Hostess for the meeting, to be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, will be Mrs. Robert Edelson, 811 E. Hackberry, Arlington Heights.

The unit is making the local Headstart Centers in Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Palatine and Wheeling its main community service project. Besides volunteering at the centers, members plan to send a representative to the NORWESCO board, to the Parent's Advisory Council and to the parents' group in each center.

THE WOMEN ALSO will be replacing equipment and toys. "We have a limited budget and the need is greater than we expected," said Mrs. Barry Burke, council president, who is asking for toy donations in good condition. Needed are tricycles and other riding toys, children's tables and chairs, puzzles, children's record players, records, table games, outdoor play equipment, a workbench for the boys, and kitchen supplies such as pans, roaster and sheet cake pans. Toys should be in the age range of 3 to 5.

Mrs. Fred Marcus, community services chairman, may be contacted at 259-8389, by those with donations.

The organization, open to all women, is primarily concerned with education, social and legislative action. For more information readers may contact Thursday's hostess at 255-5585, or the membership chairman, Mrs. Rich Heinrich, at 541-2065.

The group will be holding a rummage sale Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Flea Market in Wheeling.

Women's Groups Only

Diplomas For Everyone

There'll be diplomas conferred on all women attending this week's annual Paddock Publications publicity workshops. There are no tuition or matriculation fees, no final exams and everyone will be graduated "cum laude," according to "Professor" Marianne Scott who will conduct the courses.

The diplomas will not be the traditional parchment roll, but they will be befitting the roles of club presidents and publicity chairmen who have made reservations for the "short course" in writing club publicity.

Squeezed into just 2 1/2 hours, the morning courses will include coffee and rolls, plus loads of hints on writing news releases for the papers.

THE REGISTRARS for the course may be reached by calling the Paddock Publications offices: 394-2300, Extension 233, or Des Plaines, 297-6633.

The course begins at 9 a.m. and concludes at 11:30.

The capstone course will be given twice.

First presentation will be Thursday, Sept. 9, in the Plum Grove Club, Plum Grove Estates, Palatine. The second will be held Friday, Sept. 10, at Northwest Suburban YMCA.

The Plum Grove Club is located just off the Route 53 West frontage road and can be reached either from Kirchoff or Algonquin Roads. Those attending are reminded to approach the club from the frontage road, not Route 53. Only those familiar with the area should attempt to reach the club from Meacham Road.

The YMCA is located at 300 Northwest Highway, Des Plaines, just outside the Mount Prospect village limits.

Invited are publicity chairmen and presidents of all area clubs whose news appears in the women's pages of the Heraks. These women may attend whichever of the workshops is most convenient to them.

Birth Notes

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY

Michelle Ann Glowack was an Aug. 30 arrival for Mr. and Mrs. James Glowack of 35 Arlene, Palatine. She even has the score at two girls and two boys in the home. Michael, 6, and Marc, 2 1/2, are her brothers. Marijo, 5, is her sister. Q. and A. On 'No-Fault' Insurance SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Many Illinois drivers have questions about the limited "no-fault" automobile insurance bill signed into law Thursday by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Here are some questions and answers about the new legislation, provided by the Illinois Department of Insurance and the Illinois Insurance Information Committee.

Q. Will the cost of my automobile insurance increase because of the extra benefits?

A. Apparently not, unless the policyholder elects to receive more than the minimum benefits required of the insurance companies by law. The IIC "knows of no company contemplating increasing rates" for the coverage, according to a spokesman.

Q. What will I have to do to get the new benefits?

A. Nothing. If you currently hold an automobile bodily injury liability policy, you will receive a letter after Jan. 1, 1972, informing you your coverage automatically has extended to the minimum limits of the new "no-fault" law.

Q. What are these limits?

A. The insurance company will pay within 30 days up to $2,000 to each person injured in a motor vehicle accident for "all reasonable" medical expenses. In addition, it will pay 85 per cent of weekly wages, up to $150 a week, for a period up to a year, for lost income, plus up to $12 per day for "necessary and reasonable expenses" for services normally provided by the injured person.

Q. What if treatment of injuries costs more than these limits?

A. There are two possibilities. First, you will be offered, at the time the "no-fault" provision is added to your policy, the opportunity to purchase extended coverage — for higher amounts and for an additional period up to five years. Second, you retain the right to sue for general damages if injury is caused by another person's negligence.

Q. Is there any limit to the number of people who can claim "no-fault" benefits as a result of one accident?

A. No. Any number of people can claim benefits.

Q. How would I receive benefits under the new plan?

A. If injured while riding in or driving an insured car, you would receive benefits from the company which wrote that insurance policy. If injured as a pedestrian, you would receive benefits from the company insuring the automobile involved.

Q. What if I am injured by a vehicle not insured under the Illinois Plan?

A. You would receive payment from the company which insures your automobile.

Q. Does this mean my company would be "stacked" with paying my medical expenses even if I was not "at fault" in the accident?

A. No. If you were not at fault, your insurance company can recover the benefits it pays you from the insurance company of the person who was "at fault." Disputes between companies thus will be settled after you have received payment and will be handled by binding arbitration outside the court system.

Q. How about property damage?

A. The "Illinois Plan" does not specifically cover property damage. The collision protection of current policies will remain in force. However, the new law does provide that claims for property damage in an amount less than $3,000 may be processed under the arbitration procedure of the new law, relieving a plaintiff of the expense of filing a court suit.

Q. What should I do differently under the new plan if I am involved in an accident?

A. At the time of the accident, you should do exactly what you have always done — exchange information with the other party, including name, address, license numbers and so forth. Then you would present your claim to your insurance company.

Won't Find A 'Pot Of Gold' From Bingo, Mahin Warns

Many bingo license applicants who believe their organizations will reap quick and easy profits from operating bingo games may be in for a disappointment, George E. Mahin, director of the Illinois Department of Revenue, said recently.

"According to the laws governing bingo, unless the not-for-profit organizations applying for bingo licenses have large facilities and sufficient patrons, they are looking for a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow," Mahin said.

Under the bingo law, prizes are limited to $2,250 aggregate retail value for any bingo day, with a maximum of $500 for a single game. The price charged for a single bingo card is limited to $1 and the card is valid for all games played on that day. The number of games is limited to 25 in any one day. Only one license will be issued to an organization. The license is good for only one location and bingo is limited to one bingo day a week. The license fee is $200.

MAHIN NOTED that if an organization attracts 1,000 players who buy an average of three cards each, the gross for the day would only be $3,000. Ten per cent off the top of the proceeds goes to the Department of Revenue for tax. If the maximum allowable prize money is paid, it will cost the organization an additional $2,250. This would leave only $450 to cover all other expenses and net profit to the sponsoring organization.

In view of these problems, Mahin urged prospective bingo applicants to consider carefully the legal restrictions before embarking on bingo ventures.

The bingo law and the restrictions set forth in it were enacted by the 77th General Assembly. The Department of Revenue is responsible for implementation of the law.

For additional information, applicants may write to: Bingo, Illinois Department of Revenue, 160 N. LaSalle, Room 600, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

NEA Approves Court Ruling On Tax Funding

The National Education Association applauds the concept of providing equal educational opportunities for all of the nation's children based on a fair and equitable distribution of public funds, NEA President Donald Morris said regarding the California Supreme Court ruling in school financing.

"A primary objective in attaining this goal should be raising the quality of education to the highest possible level so there is no disparity in one child's education over that of another merely because of the wealth of the locality in which he lives. We have sought and are presently seeking to remove such educational inequities through court action," he said.

"The NEA has long been in pursuit of tax systems that are proportionate to the ability of taxpayers to pay without undue hardship on any one group. No single tax source should bear a disproportionate share."

"We hope that the California legislature will respond immediately after it reconvenes to the spirit contained in the state's high tribunal ruling and enact a tax reform program that will benefit all children attending California's schools," Morris said.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Could you please tell me if it's normal to skip a period? It's been six weeks since my last one and it usually comes around every five weeks. My boy friend and I almost had relations but stopped. I was taking diet pills for two weeks and stopped the week I was due, in case this has anything to do with it. I have been nervous and uptight because of work.

If it makes any difference, I'm 18 years old. My boy friend thinks we should get married now, but I say it's nothing and we should wait until next year like we planned. I'm a little nervous because he wants to get married and he's scaring me. I don't feel nauseous or anything and I don't have morning sickness. So could it be from the diet pills and my nerves?

Dear Reader — Unless you go to a doctor and find out a little earlier, time will answer your question anyway. If you have a five-week cycle and it's been six weeks since your last period, you are about one week overdue. Many things besides pregnancy can cause a woman to miss a period.

Nervousness, dieting and various illnesses are all factors. People seem to expect the reproductive system to function perfectly all the time, demanding more of it than any other organ system (probably because society is uptight about sex). We accept readily that the stomach may not always work perfectly or other organs can have off periods, but not the sex organs.

The reproductive system is very complex. The monthly cycle is the end point of a series of hormonal actions in the body, even dependent upon the small pituitary gland underneath the brain. The mind, and therefore the emotions, can markedly affect the endocrine glands throughout the body and that includes the sex glands.

That is why, when you become stimulated by some new, exciting person, your body seems to turn on. The old sex drive suddenly shifts into high gear. You see, the pituitary, or master gland of the body, is directly connected to the brain and markedly influenced by its actions. It is little wonder when a girl misses a period or has one early. The remarkable thing is how well it works.

FOR EARLY pregnancy, I know of no substitute for an examination, usually a laboratory test, to determine whether or not you are pregnant. For such an important question, it seems like a reasonable course of action.

It might be well to stress, however, that activities that lead to the male having an orgasm at the vaginal opening can result in rare cases in pregnancy. Some think, despite such activities, a girl is still a virgin unless the hymen membrane is ruptured. This depends on your definition of a virgin. Webster's definition varies from an "unmarried woman" to an "absolutely chaste young woman." Concepts differ on how chaste a virgin must be. At a certain point, it is a bit arbitrary.

NEA: Poor Reader, Possible Criminal

"Children who fail to learn to read experience school as a kind of public hell," according to an education professor from Clark University, Worcester, Mass. "Hell is what they have come to expect, for hell is all they have ever known in school," says William Kvaraceus.

Kvaraceus equates much of today's delinquency with failure in school, in an article featured in the October issue of Today's Education, official journal of the National Education Association (NEA). Noting that the 1970 White House Conference on Children stressed reading deficiencies as a major educational problem, he quotes recent data that indicates that "one in seven elementary school children is below grade level in reading . . . in the case of large-city elementary schools, the ratio is one in four." One-in-four 11-year-olds reads at or below the level of an average nine-year-old, he writes.

LEST THE READER conclude that the worst thing that can happen to Johnny if he can't read is rejection from the college of his choice, or inability to become a bank executive, Kvaraceus describes a far more critical result of academic failure and reading difficulties — the possible correlation between slow readers and future delinquency and crime.

"Between 75 and 90 per cent of the youngsters who appear in juvenile courts and who find themselves in institutions and shelters are unable to read books and other material appropriate to their age and grade level in school," he states. According to a report he wrote in 1966, a significant number of junior high students who fall into the lowest reading group tend to be norm violators — educationless for students who engage in delinquent or disruptive behavior ranging from back-talking the teacher to burning down the gym.

Juvenile delinquency and its relationship to reading and academic failure is alarmingly reflected in adult crime figures. An official of the Federal Bureau of Prisons reported to the NEA recently that the latest national statistics show the average inmate, with an average or above average IQ, is five grades below his normal reading grade level. The prison bureau's spokesman noted a number of prisoners, despite their high IQ's, are functional illiterates, a large percentage of whom graduated from elementary school or even high school.

THOUGH 30 to 40 per cent of prison inmates are school dropouts, according to a recent publication of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Kvaraceus notes that "it is no surprise that many poor readers and non-achievers take the dropout route, but it is surprising to note how many are able to hold on, persevere, and to graduate." The American Institutes for Research reveal that 80 per cent of male delinquents and 48 per cent of female delinquents graduate from high school. Kvaraceus concludes someone in the school system must be doing something right . . . teacher, counselor, administrator, psychologist "must be playing an effective role in understanding and supporting these youngsters."

Keeping these youngsters in school, however, presents another set of problems for the entire system — delinquency which results in at least physical damage to other students, teachers, school buildings and equipment, if not constant trauma to the teacher, who more often than not senses the sometimes intense hostility of the potentially delinquent child. If the curriculum does not catch the attention and fire the imagination of a child, his active mind and energies find outlets in less acceptable behavior patterns.

"CAUGHT IN A book-dependent system, the youngster who has difficulty reading can resort to hostility or he can withdraw and run away. When he acts out these defenses through illegal norm violations, authorities classify him as a delinquent," Kvaraceus notes.

Frustrated by his inability to fit himself into the structured school system, the delinquent child may conclude that his teacher is an educational cop — restrictive, authoritarian, and out to get him. In fact, Kvaraceus reports that a recent study of 100 delinquents demonstrated that "the teacher rather than the policeman is given as the one 'who hurts me the most' or 'who I hate the most.'"

"In reviewing the plight of the poor reader and nonachiever and his attempts to maintain some emotional comfort in the threatening classroom environment it becomes apparent delinquency may enable some pupils to hold on and graduate. However, if the understanding and the support of the teacher, principal, counselor, and remedial tutor are missing, these mechanisms may only serve to compound the failing pupil's problem and to produce a standard school dropout," Kvaraceus concludes.

Many prison officials go one step further and anticipate a rising crime rate if the schools do not become more aware of the correlation between school dropout and life dropout youngsters who conclude

Job Safety Drive Is On

Fifty thousand firms have been asked to submit occupational injury and illness data for 1971 as part of a federal drive to develop and maintain adequate statistical records, said Commerce Clearing House.

Then some 250,000 selected employers will be required to submit statistical data for the calendar year 1972 sometime in January, 1973, according to CCH's Employment Safety and Health Guide, which provides continuing coverage of developments on this front.

The firms have been asked to complete the following by Jan. 1972: a survey to work injuries required by the Bureau of Labor Statistics; and a questionnaire based on the material recorded in the Log of Occupational Injuries and Illnesses and the Summary of Occupational Injuries and Illnesses kept in accordance with the Occupational Safety and Health Law.

Data recorded in connection with the survey of work injuries will be requested for two six-month intervals — January 1 through June 30 and July 1 through Dec. 31, the CCH publication reported.

The definitions to be used are the same as those for the 1970 Bureau of Labor Statistics questionnaire, and the reporting forms will be mailed early in January, 1972.

Questionnaires on which information relating to the Occupational Safety and Health Law record keeping requirements will be entered have not yet been prepared.

The survey is designed to supply a measure of evaluating the effectiveness of safety and health programs in industry. It will also permit an analysis of work related injuries and illnesses under the old and new reporting systems, CCH noted.

Even The Sand Is Different In Bermuda

HAMILTON, CAPITAL OF Bermuda, is nestled in the center of the island tucked between the Atlantic ocean and Hamilton Harbour. Huge ocean liners tie-up along the main thoroughfare, Front Street, and tiny sailboats frolic around them. One of the first sights the visitor coming to the island by air notices about the island are the houses' clean white roofs and quaint pastel-coloured cottages. (Bermuda News Bureau Photo)

BUTTERIES ARE famous in Bermuda. These mini-buildings were once used as cold-storage houses for food in the summer. Today a buttery may serve as a changing room or as a shady spot to survey the quiet, clear waters that lap a powder-soft pink beach. (Bermuda News Bureau)

QUES. — What kind of fishing license is required in Florida?

ANS. — No license is required for Florida salt water angling but a license is necessary for freshwater lakes, rivers and canals: $3.00 for resident's annual permit, $8.00 for non-resident annual permit. Short term fourteen and five-day permits are available at $3.25 and $2.25.

QUES. — Will cruise prices be affected by the currency fluctuations?

ANS. — No, according to directors of several major cruise lines, — at least for the time being.

QUES. — We would like to take a fly and drive vacation in Ireland this fall. Are there booklets available to help us plan on our own?

ANS. — Stop (or write) at the Irish International Airlines office, 224 N. Michigan, Chicago 60601, for an Irish road-map and two booklets: Carefree Motoring in Ireland and Calendar of Events in Ireland. Carefree Motoring offers a good selection of scenic drives, allowing visitors to pace themselves to about 100 to 150 miles a day. (Irish roads twist and bend and give a wide change of scene). The calendar will help you pinpoint where the action is without losing out on the scenery.

There are less than 100 shopping days until Christmas!

If bargains just happen to be your bag — and if you just happen to be going to Europe this fall — consider yourself in real luck. Bargain is a key word in the European shopping game.

Even if you go over your $100 free customs allowance, you can still save.

For example — consider these. A German camera is $150 less than the approximate $500 it sells for at home. For a pair of Kneissl skis with bindings you pay $100 less than here. And that includes the full duty.

Exquisite china — Spode, Wedgwood, Rosenthal, Haviland — is 50 per cent less in Europe than here at home.

Savings are even more tremendous on low-duty valuables like cut but unset gems and on free-entry items like typewriters, documented antiques or original, signed paintings and pieces of sculpture.

Moderately priced "fun" items — or small, quality gifts available in all parts of Europe are marvelous buys and perfect for a majority of the names on your Christmas list.

We picked up over a half dozen beautiful, hand-tooled, leather (even elegantly-lined) glass cases in the Leather School inside the Convent of the Church of Santa Croce, Florence. They cost a little over one dollar and look like they should be four or five times more.

Don't overlook the numerous "less than a dollar" items because you think they're too inexpensive for gifts. Just remember that Uncle Horace, and some of the other "men who have everything" may be absolutely delighted with a conversation piece like a pair of Greek worry beads — which can be picked up in the Islands for way less than a dollar.

Those bright multi-colored handmade wool shopping bags you find in Greece are great gifts too, and sometimes can be bought for a price so low you can easily buy a dozen at one clip.

In Belgium, Greece, Switzerland, Italy, Portugal, Yugoslavia, and many other European countries small pieces of lovely embroidery make exquisite gifts for special people on your list.

In England, look for a Sherlock Holmes pipe for a "fun" gift.

In Paris shop for old prints in the bookstalls along the Seine.

Or, how about a pair of wooden shoes from Holland; a gnarled walking stick, clay pipe or sweepstakes ticket from Ireland; strands of Venetian glass beads from Italy; a hand-carved Troll for good luck from Norway; authentic "fado" records from Portugal; a lacy fan or bullfighter's shirt from Spain; imaginative Christmas decorations or a piece of pewter from Sweden; a cow-bell or Alpine horn from Switzerland; a mezzah from Israel or a silver dagger or unstuffed leather hassock from Morocco.

One thing's certain. Whatever you buy will be treasured. Years from now that gift will warm somebody's heart as a friend or relative thinks of you in Lucerne — or Paris — or Crete — buying thoughtfully and thinking of him — or her.

"Americans on their way to heaven call at Bermuda and think they've arrived."

Mark Twain said that.

When you see the pink, velvet-soft, clean sand of Bermuda's 80 sweeping beaches — and the unbelievable floral color and charm of this British colony in the Atlantic — you'll understand why.

In Twain's lifetime this oldest colony of Britain could only be reached after a long sea voyage. Today "heaven" is a swift, silent jet-hop away.

It's like being in "another world" when you're in Bermuda — a beautiful, relaxed world pretty much unaffected by twentieth century pace and pressure.

If you really want to "get away from it all" stay in a cottage colony or a small guest house where you can enjoy long lazy days sunbathing under blue skies, swimming in sparkling clear seas — exploring underwater reefs with scuba gear — or sailing round secluded bays to discover yet another uncrowded coral beach.

Of course, if you feel more gregarious you can choose one of the large resort hotels for your holiday headquarters. There you'll have tennis courts, night-club, shops — maybe even an 18-hole golf course.

Bermuda is actually a series of islands. The largest, joined by bridges and causeways, form a mainland some 21 miles long, and so narrow that no point is more than a mile from the sea.

Centuries ago, they were known as the "Isles of Devils" because of treacherous reefs lurking just beneath the surface of the turquoise sea.

Later Shakespeare wrote about Bermuda in "The Tempest."

Climate? Semi-tropical temperatures range through the 70's and 80's from April to November. Warm sunshine can last until Christmas. Even in January, swimming is possible on warm, sunny days.

It's fun to tour the island's blossom-lined streets and lanes in one of the horse-drawn surreys with a fringe on top.

When we were there we also took several long tours in one of the island taxis. Those sporting a blue flag are driven by qualified tour guides who know all about everywhere.

Ours was a jaunty, good-natured and most eloquent Bermudian in his 40's who had an immense knowledge of the island's history — and some fascinating local anecdotes.

On the route from Hamilton — through gently rolling landscape — he stopped to show us his own charming white cottage, surrounded by oleander, hibiscus, bougainvillea in abundance, morning glories and poinsettias.

It was a wonderful day — with lots to see. We looked at the historic Ducking Stool and visited the Government Aquarium and Zoo, with its superb collection of marine life, gaily colored exotic birds, and relics of Bermuda's history alongside the fabulous Tucker Treasure, recovered from a Spanish galleon shipwrecked off Bermuda.

Next stop — the Perfume Factory, at Bailey's Bay; then on to St. George's, the island's former capital, steeped in the colony's history.

Here we had a camera field day posing each other as a "victim" in the pillory and stocks, and shooting the glistening white facade of St. Peter's, the oldest Anglican church in the western hemisphere.

Later we stopped at nearby Fort St. Catherine (at Bermuda's eastern end) to examine dioramas of the colony's history, Tussaud-designed waxworks and replicas of the Crown Jewels.

Then we went on to the Crystal Caves and returned to Hamilton by way of Devil's Hole, where you can fish with a hookless line.

We did some exploring on our own one day — with bikes we rented at our hotel. You can also rent motorbikes. Walking can be fun too. And — there's also the ferry boats.

They told us that Bermudians have such an easygoing attitude about time that the ferry terminal clock is kept a bit slow so you won't miss the ferry boat.

One afternoon we took a fun cruise through the crystal-clear waters around the islands — complete with a calypso band and a big pot of very potent rum swizzles.

Later — after a convivial hour or so — a boatload of happy-hearted but warmly "swizzled" passengers was dropped off — guess where? Right at the Front street shopping center!

How's that for good planning!

Bermuda Shorts

Here, a man can wear shorts around the clock, all year long. And does — at work, at play, at all but the most formal occasions.

Bermuda-length shorts, worn with knee socks, stem from an old British military custom of wearing shorts in warm climates.

It's a perfect costume for Bermuda, where it's always spring or summer.

Bermuda shorts give you a clue to the casual life of an island devoted to play, entertainment and hospitality.

Bermuda Onions

Bermuda no longer exports onions, but they're on the menu, sweet as ever. Other local dishes are rockfish chowder laced with pepper sauce, Bermuda lobster, mussel pie and syllabub — a rich concoction of guava jelly, sherry and cream.

But even if you don't try these you'll enjoy the food in Bermuda — from breakfast on your terrace to a picnic at the beach, from afternoon tea by the pool to roast beef, scampi, coq au vin or curry.

Dining can be indoors, outdoors, by the water, or on a balcony looking across at the twinkling lights of a cruise ship.

Mexico Cutting Liquor Prices

As part of a drive to hold down costs of tourist travel to Mexico, the Mexican government plans to impose a price reduction on liquor served in the nation's hotels, restaurants and night clubs.

A government spokesman who made the announcement said the cuts were necessary to prevent Mexico from gaining a reputation as an expensive country to visit and to maintain Mexico's competitive position in the international tourism market.

Tourism To Israel Up Over 40 Per Cent

Tourism from the United States to Israel rose over 40 per cent in the first half of 1971. Nearly 105,000 Americans visited Israel between January 1 to June 30.

In addition to the obvious locations of tourist interest such as Tel Aviv and Jerusalem there are a number of sites in Israel that have become favorite stops on the tourist itinerary.

Most popular of these remains Caesarea, ancient city on the Mediterranean shore. Another is the mountain fortress of Massada.

As a result of a new road along the Dead Sea and a cable car that takes visitors to the top in minutes, more than 100,000 sightseers have scaled the heights of Massada in the past six months.

The desert fortress, which overlooks the placid Dead Sea waters and the soaring mountains of Moab on its eastern border, was built as a mountain stronghold by Herod who feared deposition by the Jewish masses or conquest by Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt.

Encircling the base of the mountain are the remains of eight Roman army camps.

Both the cable car and the walk up the winding Snake Path provide a panoramic view of the Dead Sea and the mountains where the Biblical character, Ruth, was born.

On the summit visitors can see the remains of a synagogue, ritual bath, columbarium, the Palace of Herod on three terraces, storerooms and a Byzantine church.

Excavators have unearthed tens of miles of walls, some 4,000 coins and more than 700 ostrakon inscriptions in Hebrew, Aramaic, Greek and Latin, and 14 fragments of scrolls on the craggy heights of Massada.

The desert fortress is a few minutes drive from several hotels lining the western bank of the Dead Sea. There's also a hotel and youth hostel at the base of the mountain.

Riessen Eyes Tennis Win Before A Hometown Crowd

Evanston's Marty Riessen, who has appeared in three pro tennis tournaments here over the last two years, has his best chance to be a big winner before a hometown crowd when he plays in the Sept. 17 and 18 Marriott All-Star Tennis Classic at McGaw Hall, Northwestern University.

The 29-year old ex-basketball player from Northwestern, former Hinsdale High School star, is having his best year to date in pro tennis. So far in 1971 he has made $50,000 and can win a lot more before the year is out. The Aug. 30 issue of Sports Illustrated picked Riessen as "The best bet for a U.S. victory at Forest Hills," and he ranks 7th in point standings in the million-dollar World Championship of Tennis.

His hometown appeal and marked improvement this year have prompted the local promoters of the two-night tennis classic to schedule Riessen for both singles and doubles action. On Friday, September 17, he and doubles partner Tom Okker play Nicola Pietrangeli and Ismail El Shafei. Saturday, Sept. 18, he takes on 1971 Wimbledon Champion John Newcombe for $5,000.

Doubles has always been Riessen's game. Prior to this year, he and Okker were known as the "second best doubles team in the world." This year they are the top doubles team of the World Championship Tennis contract players.

But now Riessen, like his doubles partner, is coming into his own as a top singles player. His forehand and serve have improved and he is more than just a good quarterfinalist.

In Teheran, one of the stops on the World Championship of Tennis circuit, he beat Laver and Newcombe on successive days and then won the tournament from John Alexander, the best young player on the tour. For 1971, he holds three victories over John Newcombe, his Sept. 18 opponent at McGaw Hall.

If Riessen does well at Forest Hills, he should be psychologically prepared for his match with Newcombe. But one must also consider that despite "Newc's" first round loss at Forest Hills he is still considered by many to be the No. 1 player in the world (he's point leader in the World Championship of Tennis). He also won in his last two appearances at McGaw Hall, beating Gonzalez last year and Rosewall this Spring.

Gonzalez will also be back again this year. He plays Arthur Ashe for $5,000 following the doubles action on Friday night. On Saturday night, the Riessen-Newcombe match will be preceded by doubles featuring John Alexander and Phil Dent against ex-Davis Cuppers Bob Lutz and Charles Pasarell.

Tickets are now on sale at Dyche Stadium, Northwestern University, at all Ticketron outlets, Marshall Field and Montgomery Ward Stores. Mail orders will be accepted at Suite 505, 333 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill., 60601, c/o All-Star Tennis, Inc. Ticket prices are $10.00 for reserved sideline box seats, $6.50 for reserved grandstand and baseline seats, $5.00 for reserved end section grandstand seats, and $3.00 for unreserved balcony seats.

SOPHOMORE SKIP PETERSON (6-1, 196), former standout performer at Hersey High School, is one of 93 candidates for Purdue University's 1971 football squad. Skip was the second leading rusher on the '70 Purdue freshman squad with a 5.3 average. A hamstring injury slowed his development during spring practice but he is being counted on to provide depth at a halfback spot this fall. He gained 290 yards and scored three TD's in one prep game.

Award Third Getaway Golf Grand Prize At Sportsman

Defeating 12 other finalists, James Peifer of Chicago won the third Getaway Golf Grand Prize playoff at Sportsman Country Club in Northbrook.

He qualified by finishing first in the contest ending July 31 at Sportsman.

Peifer's prize is a trip for two, for a week, to Pipestem Resort, a new $14 million West Virginia State Park in the Appalachian Mountains. His prize includes a transportation allowance, room, meals, and green's fees on both of Pipestem's golf courses.

Using the Peoria Handicapping System to compute all scores, Peifer won by seven strokes with a gross score of 96 and a net of 54 over Sportsman's 6,615-yard, par-72 championship course.

Second is Thad Fils of Deerfield, with a gross of 94 and a net of 61. He qualified by finishing second in the August contest at Sportsman.

Third, at net 68, is Dennis Dick of Chicago, whose gross score was 104. He qualified by winning the August contest at Sportsman.

Fourth, one stroke back, was Dan Hofelt of Itasca, who finished second in the August contest at Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomington. His gross score was 87.

Low gross score went to Bill Page of Elmhurst with an 84. Page, second place winner in the July 31 contest at White Pine Golf Club in Bensenville, had a handicap of only 12 which left him fifth in the final tabulation.

Getaway Golf Contests are exclusively for weekday players; there is no entry fee other than the normal greens fee. Contests are continuing at Buffalo Grove Golf Club in Buffalo Grove, Indian Lakes, and Sportsman through Sept. 15.

All Getaway Golf contestants in the grand prize playoff have already received trophies and merchandise certificates at the clubs where they were winners as well as qualifying for this winner-take-all special playoff.

Other playoff participants, their home towns, their clubs, and their scores are: Robert Charron, Chicago (White Pines) — 88-15-73.

Jim Loris, Des Plaines (White Pines) — 132-57-75.

Donald Humphrey, Elmhurst (White Pines) — 127-46-79.

Robert Owens, Great Lakes (Buffalo Grove) — 112-32-79.

Bill Swanson, Buffalo Grove (Buffalo Grove) — 94-12-82.

Chris Popoff, Waukegan (Buffalo Grove) — 92-9-83.

Jerry Lively, Chicago (Buffalo Grove) — 99-15-84.

All the golf clubs participating in Getaway Golf Contests and Pipestem Resort in West Virginia are managed by The Branigan Organization, Inc.

'A Strange Feeling' When You Visit North Practice

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Nothing should distract Maine North's football team this season when playing varsity competition.

Large crowds, blaring bands, poor lighting, loose turf — hazards which face nearly every football team during the course of a nine-game schedule — should not affect the Norsemen.

If Maine North's football team has not been distracted by its practice field decorations, nothing else could possibly bother the Norsemen on game days during the season.

You see, a number of Commonwealth Edison power lines and poles dot the Maine North practice field. Large conductors hang from the large steel structures, giving off a low, humming and, sometimes, a crackling sound.

It is under these conditions that the Norsemen gridders attempt to concentrate on football.

The setting gives a first-time visitor to the field an eerie feeling and a sore neck from looking up, making sure those wires stay exactly where they are.

There is no need to worry about one's safety, however.

"This place is perfectly safe to practice," said Maine North head football coach Lou Gartner. "It gives you a strange feeling when you first come out here, a feeling that this isn't a good place to be."

"But this practice field is perfectly safe. If it wasn't, we wouldn't be out here."

Last year Maine North's football team practiced on a field directly across Dempster Street from Maine East High School. The field was conducive for football practice, but, says Gartner, "It was very difficult getting the boys together. It is quite a distance from our campus and we didn't want to take all the time and the effort to bus the boys over there."

Much of Maine North's campus has yet to be landscaped so there is a scarcity of grass — a much needed element for football practice. The Norsemen could get toughened up practicing on the rock-gravel parking lot, but, ooooooh, those injuries . . .

Therefore, Maine North had to find another place to conduct its practices.

A tract of land, owned by Commonwealth Edison and adjacent to the Maine North campus, caught the eye of the Des Plaines school's administration. The land was hardly attractive — there were only patches of grass and the looming towers were prevalent. But it was a field — good enough for practice.

"We knew that if we could get this land it would be a great help to our program," Gartner said. "That is why we asked Commonwealth Edison to lease it to us."

Maine North principal Robert Wells approached Commonwealth Edison for the land. ComEd said sure, but at a price.

The total price was one (1) dollar. Maine North could not have done better even if it had taken top prize on the television show of "Sale of the Century."

Needless to say, Maine North was very grateful.

Maine North was to become even more grateful during the summer.

Commonwealth Edison brought out machinery to level the land and sodded the entire field — at no cost to Maine North.

"It was great of them to do this for us," said Maine North athletic director Dave Kennedy. "We sure are thankful to them."

So, to all Maine North future opponents — bring out the tubas and the cow bells and the fog horns, clap and cheer and stomp.

After practicing under humming high voltage conductors for two hours a day, certainly no tuba is going to disturb any Maine North football player.

Highwood Invitational Tournament
Niles All-Stars 931 100-5-2-2
Arlington Red Sox 800 300-3-2-2
Arlington fell behind early in the game, rallied but couldn't come back all the way in finishing third in the eight-team double elimination tournament at Highwood. Key plays by the Niles' defense kept Arlington off the scoreboard until the fourth. A hit batsman and singles by Ken Wuestenfeld, Paul Conline and Scott Kempton accounted for all three of the runs for the Red Sox. Kempton also singled earlier but was erased by a double play. The only extra base hit was by Gary Kempton — a double. Dennis Drolet fanned six in going the distance on the pitching mound. This was Arlington's fifth game.

Chicago Hornets 002 00x-2-5-6

A potent hitting attack superbly pitched by Gary Kempton and aggressive team play literally demoralized the opposition as Arlington won game No. 4. Kempton whiffed nine in registering his second tourney win. Scott Kempton blasted a triple and a double. Wuestenfeld and Mark Bayk fanned their batting averages as each smashed a double and a single. Steve Panfil, Drolet and Mike Devier also collected two hits apiece. Despite a slight pre-game injury, Martin Buckingham hit a double to help Arlington move to an early lead. Paul Conline led off the final inning with a solid hit, stole second and then scored following a throwing error after a successful steal of third to wrap up the game under the modified 10-run rule.

Fort Sheridan All-Stars 120 301-7-5-4

Arlington kept its hopes alive in the double elimination by fighting off Fort Sheridan team to win game No. 3. Drolet fanned 13 as he went the distance for the win. Only the daring baserunning of the losers kept the game close. Wuestenfeld led the hitting attack as he smashed a triple and went 3-for-4. Gary Kempton blasted a long triple in a perfect 2-for-2. Dave Devier, Paul Preissling and Gary Vevang also contributed key hits. Pitcher Drolet was twice robbed of extra-base hits by spectacular defensive gems by the inspired Sheridan team who was eliminated from further competition.

Chapple Bids At Santa Fe

Charlie Chapple of Flint, Mich., will try to achieve his first Santa Fe Speedway motorcycle championship as the southwest side clay oval concludes its 19th consecutive season of exclusive American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned competition with its Motorcycle Season's Championship this Wednesday night, Sept. 8.

The 10-lap feature race on the half-mile oval will attract a field of at least 70 riders including many of the nation's top cyclists. Starting time is 8:30 p.m. with time trials scheduled for 8 p.m.

Trying to thwart Chapple's bid for his initial Santa Fe title are a talented quartet of motorists — defending speedway champion Neil Keen of St. Louis, Mo., nationally ranked David Sehl from Atlanta, Ga., local favorite Billy O'Brien from Waukegan, and first-year rider Michael Johnson out of Flint, Mich.

Along with the regular 12-event card this Wednesday night, Santa Fe Speedway has scheduled an extra attraction for its final AMA-sanctioned show. A "motorcycle jump" featuring a cyclist leaping over six autos and landing on a ramp will be performed.

Boy For Everharts

A boy has been added to the Herald sports department family.

Ryan Lawrence Everhart arrived Saturday morning.

Ryan weighed 6 pounds 7½ ounces and is 20½ inches tall.

Mrs. Larry Everhart and Ryan are doing fine at Holy Family Hospital.

The latest count for the sports department now shows five girls and four boys.

safe. Maine North leased the practice field from Commonwealth Edison for the incredible cost of one dollar. See accompanying story.

Fall Horse Show

The members of the Intramural Riding Club will conduct the University of Illinois Fifth Annual Fall Horse Show on Saturday, Sept. 25, at the University Stock Pavilion in Urbana.

This will be the largest show to date, with a total of 40 halter and performance classes. Howard Behl of Springfield will judge the English division and Harold Baker of Neoga will tie the Western classes. Long time student ringmaster Gary Pace will again preside in the Stock Pavilion show ring.

Beginning at 9:00 a.m., the morning session of this show will feature halter and juvenile classes including 1971 Foal, Most Classic Arab, Model Quarter Horse, Bar back Pleasure, and Stock Seat Equitation.

The 17-class afternoon session will resume at 12:30 p.m. with Open Men's Western Pleasure and will offer a potpourri of classes ranging from English Equitation, Beginning Riders Walk-Trot, Tennessee Walking Horse and Arab Open English Pleasure to Quarter Horse Type Western Pleasure, Morgan Park, Open Costume, and Open Trail.

The evening performance will begin at 7:00 p.m. with the flashiest of classes: Arab Native Costume. This nine-class session will include the English and Western Pleasure Championships, Tennessee Walking Horse Stake, Three-Gaited Saddle Horse Open, Open Pleasure Driving, and Single Pony in Harness.

For a copy of the show bill, write Intramural Riding Club at P.O. Box 2436, Station A, Champaign, Ill. 61820.

Elliott Family Saga

Another generation will add a new chapter to the Big Ten saga of the Elliott family when Michigan and Northwestern — two of the leading contenders for the 1971 Big Ten title — meet in the opening game of the season at Dyche Stadium, Saturday, Sept. 11.

Carrying the Elliott name into that game will be defensive backs, Dave and Bruce Elliott, Wolverine sons of Pete, former Michigan star and one-time Illinois coach. Pete and his brother, Bump, who now is Iowa athletic director, were backfield standouts for the great Michigan teams of the late 1940s.

But few are aware that the Elliott story, closely linked as it is with the Michigan and Illinois traditions, actually began at Northwestern more than half a century ago. That was when the father of Pete and Bump, the late Dr. J. Norman Elliott, served as head basketball coach and assistant football coach at Northwestern, while he was attending Northwestern Medical School, which he entered in 1917.

Pre-Season Rookie Camp

The Chicago Bulls will open their pre-season rookie camp at Wheaton College on Friday, Sept. 10 at 7:00 p.m., under the direction of Coaches Dick Motta and his Assistant Phil Johnson.

Among the new rookies reporting to Camp will be Kennedy McIntosh, the Bulls No. 1 Pick in this year's draft, Howard Porter from Villanova, Clifford Ray from Oklahoma, Jackie Dinkins from Voorhees, and Sam Watts from College of Great Falls, Mont. Also reporting to camp is Sim Hall, a 6-7 forward from West Texas State who saw action in the ABA last season.

Some of the veterans have indicated that they will be in camp with the rookies on Sept. 10, although they are not slated to report until Sept. 14 at 10:00 p.m.

Coach Motta will hold two practice sessions daily — 10:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m., on Sept. 11 and 13th. All drills are open to the public. The Bulls will play an exhibition at Prospect High School Wednesday, Sept. 22.

State Farm To Refund $$

by BERNARD BRENNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Farmers Union (NFU), after taking several weeks to ponder President Nixon's dramatic new economic policies, has decided to view the President's package with chilly scorn.

"The key point of the policy is that it pointedly refuses to deal with the major problem facing the economy — maldistribution of income and ownership. Under the plan, the NFU said it will continue to get richer," the NFU said in a news-letter.

Other farm organizations have given the Nixon plan a friendlier reception. The National Grange, for example, sent the President a message of praise. The big American Farm Bureau Federation pledged cooperation, though voicing reservations about the new import surcharge and making plain it considered cuts in federal spending of basic importance in attacking the causes of inflation.

BUT THE NFU, in its free-wheeling blast, charged "the absurdities surrounding this new economic game plan know no bounds."

"The president calls for more jobs, but abolishes government jobs. Additional spending is urged, not to end hunger and hardship, but to buy more luxuries such as Detroit automobiles," the farm group said.

The NFU conceded Nixon's action to cut the value of the U. S. dollar abroad will help farm exports. But it complained the 10 per cent import surcharge will invite foreign retaliation against American exports.

"The price-wage freeze is shot through with deception," the NFU added, charging that exemption of raw farm products from the freeze was meaningless because processors will hold farm prices down in order to protect their profit margins.

"THE TEMPORARY nature of the 90-day freeze appears to be a deception in itself, with the 90 days to be used only to ready the American people for acceptance of its continuation. If it is continued, machinery should be established at once to adjust inequities. Profits, dividends and interest rates should be frozen," the statement continued.

NFU criticism of administration policy is not new. Tony T. Dechant, NFU president, has been among the sharpest critics of administration farm policy, and has been heating up his attacks in the wake of recent indications that 1971 may produce surplus grain output and sagging grain prices.

This year's economic downturn may bring some good news after all, according to the president of the state's largest auto insurer.

In last week's announcement that State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. is refunding $5.3 million to its Illinois clients, president Edward B. Rust cited the smaller number of claims as a reason for this unprecedented move. "We believe the economy had something to do with this downturn," he said. "People just don't get out as much when times are not so good. And if they're not driving as much, they're not going to have as many accidents."

State Farm's regional headquarters in Bloomington will mail dividend announcements to most of its Illinois policyholders with their regular premium notices during the next six months.

Raymond D. Danielson, regional vice president for State Farm in Illinois, said the amount of dividend will be about 8 per cent of each customer's bill. The dividend will be paid as credit on the next premium due, or will be refunded by check to those who do not renew their policies.

State Farm insures over 770,000 cars in Illinois.

Danielson said the $5.3-million dividend is part of more than $30 million being returned by State Farm to its customers in 31 states and the District of Columbia. The amount ranges from one to 17.8 per cent, depending upon State Farm's profitability in each state.

The announcement came after the company reported profits of $108 million nationally in the first half of 1971. Danielson said the good results were due primarily to a decrease in claims reported by policyholders. This offset an increase in the cost of the average claim.

In Illinois, Danielson said, the frequency of liability claims dropped 12.7 per cent in the first half of 1971. Collision claims were down 13.1 per cent and claims under comprehensive coverage were down 11.6 per cent.

Tightening up on the State Farm underwriting policies is another reason for the decrease in claims according to Wayne Brennan of Arlington Heights, an agent for the firm. "Also, the insurance companies in Illinois can charge the rate they need, under the file and use rate law," he said. "This means that an insurance company can go ahead and charge the rate that is needed and then file it with the state insurance bureau. They don't have to request permission from the state and then wait several months for a ruling, as they used to do."

Brennan said he expects auto insurance rates to remain stable for the next several months. Another dividend refund will be given next year if profits are up, he said.

'72 May Be Record Year For Auto Industry

The 1972 model year may be a record one for the automobile industry if President Nixon's new economic proposals are successful, according to General Motors chairman James M. Roche and president Edward N. Cole. This statement is part of a summary of the 1971 vehicle market and an outlook for the coming year.

Retail deliveries of new cars and trucks in the United States for the 1971 model year appear headed for a total of about 11.1 million units, 2 per cent over 1970 sales and second only to the record model year total of 11.6 million reached in 1969 according to the report. Passenger car sales, including imported car sales, are expected to reach 9.2 million units, a 2 per cent gain over 1970, while commercial vehicle sales of over 1.9 million are virtually unchanged from last year. Motor vehicle sales volume in the 1971 model year fell some 6 per cent below normal long-term trend estimates because of the lengthy strike against GM in the fourth quarter of 1970 and the relatively slow economic recovery this year.

A notable feature of the 1971 model year was the continued public interest in the small cars including the Chevrolet Vega. The demand for these cars remained high during the year and, in the case of the Vega, exceeded General Motors production capacity. Small domestic and imported cars accounted for over one-third of all new car sales during the year. Imported cars alone accounted for about 16 per cent of the industry total.

The President's new economic program should accelerate the recovery pace while establishing a base for greater price stability, the report said. Both are important to restoring consumer confidence in the outlook for creating an enlarged demand for goods and services and for expanding employment opportunity. Under these conditions, the high consumer savings rate evident last year and continuing in 1971 would constitute a reserve available to consumers in filling their deferred demands.

A key factor in the assessment of the outlook for passenger car sales in the 1972 model year depends on a favorable action by the Congress on the President's recommended repeal of the 7 per cent new car excise tax the GM executives said. As recommended, the repeal would be applicable to all new cars sold after Aug. 15 and would represent a savings to consumers which would average close to $200 per car.

If Congress follows the recommendations of the President in regard to repeal of the excise tax, General Motors will refund the full amount of the excise tax reduction to purchasers who took delivery of new 1971 or 1972 cars between Aug. 15 and the date on which the tax is repealed.

The competitive position of cars produced in the United States will be improved as a result of the 10 per cent surcharge now applied to imported products. In the case of passenger cars, the effect of the surcharge is to raise the duty on new cars by 6.5 percentage points — from the 3.5 per cent rate which was in effect prior to Aug. 15 to 10 per cent.

General Motors 1972 model cars and trucks are being introduced during the 90-day wage-price freeze. Tentative price increases for these new models which had been announced on Aug. 5 were rescinded immediately following the President's announcement on Aug. 15. As a result, all General Motors 1972 model cars and trucks will carry list prices which have been frozen at the 1971 model level for comparable cars.

Assuming that the President's program receives the endorsement of the Congress, the economic backdrop would be conducive to a strong new car sales year, the report said. On this basis, it is reasonable to project passenger car sales in excess of 10 million units, including imports, with 10½ million clearly possible if consumer confidence is restored in the months ahead. In commercial vehicle sales over 2 million and possible 2¼ million units would seem within reach. In summary, assuming the recent government measures are successful in achieving their intended goals, the 1972 model year could be a record one for the automobile industry with total motor vehicle sales approaching 12½ million units the report concluded.

Small Investor 'Looking'

"Let's wait a while" has now changed to, "Let's take a good look."

This is the current psychology of the small investor, a result of President Nixon's announcement of a new economic game plan, according to Sabine Marinella, senior vice president, Continental Investment Corp., Boston.

"No one questions the shot in the arm that the new economic game plan has given to the consumer, and to business in general as well as Wall Street. The program is well balanced and comprehensive — and has to be good for our economy, both on the short and long range scales," Marinella said.

He predicts the biggest gains will be seen in 1972 "but we are looking for substantial and definitive pluses by the fourth quarter of 1971. One cannot overlook the psychological factors. The program is already showing impact, from coast to coast, on both business and consumers," Marinella said.

"The investment tax credit will spur profits this year and next," he said. Most economists are now revising their estimate of profits for the remaining months of 1971; the big jump in profits will come in 1972.

Optimism is not unbridled, he added. Some professional money managers are still advising caution. "But one cannot miss the crescendo of optimism."

"Too many stock market watchers forget the importance of what we in the mutual fund field refer to as investor confidence levels. Any lowering of those levels brings about an automatic slackening of fund sales and a concomitant loss of enthusiasm on the part of the financial service sales representatives."

"Someone described the present mood of Mr. and Mrs. America as confident — there is music in the air — with a touch of prudence. This is quite a reversal of the gloom-and-doom auguries preceding the President's bold announcement of his new economic program," Marinella concludes.

Store Safety Is Important

A department store enjoying an average profit margin must sell over 8,000 pairs of children's socks to offset with profits a $100 accident loss, according to Hugh E. Muncy, president of the Illinois Retail Merchants Association. "The sad fact," Muncy added, "is that most accidents can be prevented. The IRMA September Member Bulletin is devoted to store safety with guides for stores re-evaluating or instituting in-store safety programs."

Falls, according to the bulletin, are the most common store accident, involving both customers and employees. The bulletin urges merchants to tour their stores in search of potential and existing hazards. A three-step program for investigating and preventing accidents is suggested: What Happened? Why Did It Happen? What Should Be Done to Prevent a Recurrence?

"Almost all accidents," said Muncy, quoting from the bulletin, "can be traced to one of three general causes: hazardous environment, improper safety attitudes, human physical defects. These situations can be corrected through observation, training and planning. The new Federal Occupational Health and Safety Act, in effect since July 1, 1971, has made many business men more concerned with safety."

The September Store Safety bulletin is the second to deal with a specific area of store operations developed by the association's information assistant, Michael Walters. August Member Bulletin covered Store Remodeling and provided suggestions and guides for merchants planning a remodeling program.

"Statistics show that most stores undergo some remodeling every two years. In preparation for a remodeling program the August bulletin provided a step-by-step outline from planning to actual construction. Using both the August and September bulletins together merchants can plan ahead and build safety systems into their remodeled store." Additional bulletins detailing other aspects of store operations and merchant concerns are planned for the coming months Muncy announced.

Miller Distributes

Key Pipe Compounds

The Miller Supply Co., 1455 E. Golf Rd., Des Plaines, has been appointed as a stocking distributor of Key Pipe joint compounds in this area.

Founded in 1943, the Miller Supply Co. has been serving the plumbing, heating and refrigeration contractors and various industrial accounts with piping supplies throughout the metropolitan Chicago area. The company is headed by Stanford B. Miller.

Key Compounds are formulated and manufactured by W.K.M. Valve Division, ACF Industries, Inc. The line consists of Key-Tite, a waterproof sealant for air, gas, water and steam joint lines; Key Graphite Paste for petroleum products, acids and high pressure steam line joints; Key Red-D-Mix, a graphite sealant for extreme temperatures, with an easy breakout capability; Key Aluminum Joint Paste for high temperatures, with an easy break-out; and Key Abco-Lute, a non-seizing, non-corrosive oxygen sealing compound.

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) I want to clear out some of my old bank records, check stubs, cancelled bills and the like. Is there any need to keep these personal records for tax purposes?

A) Records should be kept as long as they are material in administering any Federal tax law. As a general rule, the IRS may assess additional tax or you may claim a refund within three years of the due date of a return. Therefore, any record you might need to support an item listed on your return should be kept at least three years.

Naturally, you will want to keep some records longer. For example, records on the purchase of a home or the acquisition of stock should be kept longer, because they will be needed for your tax return when the assets are sold or exchanged.

Q) Do U.S. citizens living in another country have to pay U.S. income tax?

A) U.S. citizens, wherever they are, are subject to U.S. tax laws. Under certain conditions, however, certain income earned abroad by those who are bona fide residents of a foreign country or who are physically present in a foreign country for a specified period of time is not subject to U.S. tax.

Details can be found in Publication No. 54, Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens Abroad, available free by dropping a postcard to your IRS District Office.

Q) How can I get a copy of my 1969 federal income tax return?

A) Write the IRS Service Center where you filed your return. Be sure to include your name, address and Social Security number. The basic rate for reproduction of a document is one dollar per page.

Q) I don't understand the letter I got from the IRS. What should I do?

A) Contact your local IRS office and explain the situation to them. Identify the letter you received so that the person helping you can advise you what action may be necessary.

Junk Mail Outlives Towns

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — By far the most sinister news of the year is the Census Bureau report that four American towns disappeared during the last decade.

Although the public at large is taking this development calmly, indicating that the public at large doesn't understand the situation, as usual, I can assure you that government security agents are properly concerned and alarmed.

"I don't buy the popular assumption that the towns simply were misplaced and will turn up again later," one agent told me.

"If only one town were missing, or even two, we could perhaps laugh it off as another case of bureaucratic bungling. Even the best countries will lose a town every now and then.

"BUT WHEN YOU have four towns vanishing off the map in the same 10-year period, you have a definite pattern — the element of conspiracy.

"During the next few weeks we're going to be asking some pretty pointed questions, and somebody had better come up with the right answers."

I said, "Like what kind of questions?"

"Like why wasn't this discovered sooner? Why did we have to wait for the census to uncover something that should have been routinely reported to the Missing Metropolis Bureau?"

I said, "Well, maybe nobody noticed the towns were gone. After all, they weren't very big."

"Oh, come now," the agent chided. "How about the Postal Service? Surely they would have noticed it when they tried to deliver the mail."

"But if the towns no longer existed, there wouldn't have been any mail addressed there," I pointed out.

"Are you kidding?" the agent exclaimed, shaking his head in amazement at my obtuseness.

"WHAT ABOUT junk mail? Junk mail doesn't stop coming just because a person dies, or moves away or the address no longer exists."

He was right, of course. Once on a mailing list, you are there for the rest of eternity. It's a virtual certainty that junk mail is still being addressed to those four deserted villages.

I said, "There is definitely something fishy about this case, all right. Do you have any clues or theories to work on?"

The agent smiled knowingly. "All I can tell you at this point is that it looks like an inside job," he said.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — What hath "Sesame Street" wrought?

Part of the answer came Thursday night when ABC-TV offered a preview of "Curiosity Shop," one of the various new Saturday daytime series for children that the networks will present this season trying to emulate the success of non-commercial television's "Sesame Street" pacesetter.

All this sudden do-gooding is nice, I suppose, primarily because the new series will be displacing some of the moronically violent Saturday morning children's fare that developed into a network disgrace. On the other hand, if the preview of "Curiosity Shop" was an example, these new replacements will serve chiefly as less harmful video babysitters — surely nothing brilliant as educational entertainment tools, or even coming near equaling the programming achievement of "Sesame Street."

MY OWN FEELING is that an ideal situation in video would be Saturday mornings with absolutely no children's programming at all, so that youngsters, in their weekend spare time, would not be distracted from more active, self-involved pursuits that invariably are more personally rewarding.

But there are products to sell to children, so the shows are there, and I guess we should be grateful for the new trend. But I think hopeful viewers delude themselves if they try to believe the new shows for youngsters are much more than merely quieter timekillers.

The preview of "Curiosity Shop" was the same mixture as before in these projects for children — film, live action, animation, music, comic puppets, bits and pieces of alleged educational material, sequences at least aimed at trying to make youngsters think as though they wouldn't think otherwise, and precocious kids all over the place.

I don't mean to put down the intent of the hour, but, despite several amiable bits, it didn't seem to have any particularly worthwhile point of view, or, for that matter, any point of view at all, except to distract pleasantly.

IN SHORT, IT came primarily as a work of show business rather than a work controlled mainly by persons whose chief expertise and concern are in fields dealing with the minds, emotions and development of youngsters. Otherwise, there would have been more cohesiveness, and the few segments that stood out in the 60-minute production would have seemed more pointedly purposeful rather than simply individual moments in a scattershot potpourri aimed mostly at titillating.

They'll Be Able To Buy Stock If ICC Gives Go-Ahead

C&NW Employees May Find New Way To Run A Railroad

WANT TO OWN a railroad? Employees of the Chicago and North Western Ry. may be able to purchase their company. Some 14,000 railroad employees may be able to invest and take over the 11,500 mile line, resulting in the creation of the nation's largest employee-owned firm.

Everyone from the stationmaster to the president of the Chicago and North Western Railroad (C&NW) will be able to buy stock in the railway if the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) gives its approval. The plan by an employee group to purchase the railroad and sell shares to employees moved a step closer to reality last week with a favorable nod from one ICC examiner.

Larry S. Provo, heading the Northwest Employees Transportation Corp. (NETCO) which is seeking permission to buy railroad assets from the parent firm (Northwest Industries, Inc.) said he viewed the recommendation of ICC examiner Edward J. Reidy as clearing "the most significant hurdle toward the consummation of the purchase," Provo is also president of C&NW.

"We are happy the examiner recognized the potential benefits of employee ownership and saw it as a possible solution to a number of problems in the railroad industry," Provo said. He said he did not know how soon a final decision from the full ICC could be obtained.

Provo indicated that he could not speak for the C&NW on the conditions of the transaction that Reidy had recommended. These include the provision that Northwest Industries guarantee financial assistance to NETCO if needed.

If NETCO gains approval of its plan to purchase the railroad, the group plans to ask for ICC permission for the sale of stock to some 14,000 employees of the railroad. Maximum stock purchase would be limited by the employee's annual salary and no employee could buy more than $100,000 worth of stock.

A spokesman for the railroad said employees have not been told all the details of the proposed stock offering pending the ICC decision.

The directors of NETCO, in addition to Provo, are Richard Freeman and Robert Brooker. Freeman is the vice president in legal affairs for the railroad. Brooker is a former chairman of Marcor and has had experience in employee stock ownership plans with both Sears, Roebuck and Co. and Montgomery Ward.

'Unique In Rail History'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) hearing examiner has recommended that the 14,000 employees of the Chicago and North Western Ry. be allowed to buy the 11,500-mile line — a move called "unique in railroad history."

If the decision is approved by the ICC as a whole, it could lead to one of the nation's largest employee-owned companies and possibly create a new pattern in the troubled railroad industry.

It also would solve a headache for Northwest Industries Inc., the conglomerate company which is the North Western's parent firm.

Hearing examiner Edward J. Reidy recommended that the North Western Employees Transportation Co. (NETCO) be allowed to purchase the railroad even though the move may be "latent with unforeseen imperfections."

Reidy said that even if he were to turn down the application, it would mean "the railroad's financial difficulties would not disappear, but that an opportunity to find a realistic, although novel, solution to Chicago and North Western's economic bondage would."

HE SAID FINANCING would be the key problem facing NETCO and that his recommendation was contingent on NETCO obtaining financial assistance from Northwest Industries.

The conglomerate would have to guarantee payment by the railroad or NETCO of any obligations owed by C&NW, Reidy's recommendation said. If a loan became necessary during the next 10 years, Northwest Industries would have to make available up to $25 million, he said.

When the proposal was first broached a year ago, NETCO proposed to assume $401 million of the railroad's publicly owed debt and pay Northwest an additional $19 million over a period of 20 years.

Stock would be sold to the employees on a scale related to their salaries — workers earning up to $10,000 a year would be allowed to purchase up to but no more than $5,000 worth of stock; those earning more than $30,000 could buy up to $100,000.

ONE OF THE arguing points for the plan was that employee ownership would bring to the railroad a new enthusiasm and desire for improvement and innovation among those on its payroll. The ICC itself has called the plan "unique in railroad history."

Such a sale also would ease Northwest Industries of an undesired burden. Although the North Western has acquired a national reputation for its profit making Chicago suburban commuter operation, the 11-state rail system as a whole has been reported to be a struggling operation whose annual net loss was placed in 1970 at $15 million.

Ben W. Heineman, the Northwest Industries president who won acclaim in the 1950s and '60s for rescuing the North Western, has made no secret of his desire to get out of the railroad business.

"To put it simply, I've become discontented with the railroad industry and its long-range outlook under present circumstances because its rate of return is disgustingly inadequate," Heineman has said.

One area stationmaster, asked his opinion of the plan to offer railroad share to employees, said, "I have too many bills to buy any shares now, but I'll just wait and see when the announcement comes out. He added that if the company is going broke and he might lose his job, he would take a second look at the offering.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Today, most experts use limit jump raises. They are easy to use and extremely effective.

Many players use them unknowingly. In today's hand, North passes as dealer. South opens one spade in third seat and North's correct bid in standard American, JACOBY MODERN, British Acol or almost any system is a jump raise to three spades. This is not forcing, since North has passed originally, but it is a strong invitation to bid further. If South is used to playing limit jump raises at all times, he continues to four spades.

The principle involved was described some years ago by California expert Marshall Miles who said, "When your partner gives a limit jump raise, you should continue to game with any minimum hand that includes a decent trump suit and has a singleton on the side."

Suppose South were dealer. He would open one spade. JACOBY MODERN bidders sitting North would raise to three (nonforcing) and South would bid on to four. Standard American bidders would have to respond two diamonds. They might reach game or they might not. In any case, they would be getting there by a complicated, roundabout route.

Four spades makes easily. Assuming West continues clubs, South must ruff the third club high. After that, he wraps up 10 tricks.

Defensive Driving Class Is Offered

A four-week defensive driving course will be offered in September by the Des Plaines Police Department.

The National Safety Council course will be taught Thursdays, Sept. 9, 16, 23 and 30 from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., in the second floor classroom at the Public Works Building on Campground Road, just north of Algonquin Road.

Registration for the course is open to the first 30 persons who telephone the police department at 297-2131.

There is a registration fee of $1 per student.

At the conclusion of the course, students will receive a certificate and wallet card.

Beth Tikvah Invites Families To Brunch

All unaffiliated Jewish families in the area are invited to be the guests of the Beth Tikvah Congregation of Hoffman Estates at a Lox and Bagel Brunch, at 10:30 a.m. Sept. 12.

The Rabbi and members of the board of directors will be introduced and religious school registration will be held that morning.

The Temple is located at 271 Hillcrest Blvd., Ira Kopin, may be contacted at 882-3148 for membership information. Mort Braverman, religious school chairman may be reached at 529-8864 for information.

MONEY TALKS

How to Become Wealthy — 3

"Are You Willing to Act — Right Now?"

by Donald F. Morton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

The crucial test to the self-helpers on whether you are content with phantasms of success or propose to do something about them is your willingness to get started — right now.

Procrastination is the formidable foe of achievement. All of us have experienced emotional excitement at some stage of our lives over a cause or personal goal that gripped us. We recall, too often, that the good intentions surrounding this inspiration were eventually lost because we didn't act upon them immediately.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men," wrote Shakespeare, "which taken at the flood leads on to fortune; omitted, all the voyage of their life is bound in shallows and in miseries."

It is not necessary at this moment that you see through to the end of the enterprise lurking in the back of your mind. Without burning present bridges behind you (since you may not now be aware of your destination) you can nevertheless take initial steps toward refining your plan of action.

One thing every self-help book will tell you is to save something of what you earn. Noting that wealth can be acquired on a modest salary, George S. Clason in his book The Richest Man in Babylon proposes this formula:

- 1) Just save one dime out of every dollar you earn.
- 2) Each six months invest your savings and interest returns from these savings.
- 3) When you invest, seek expert advice on safe investments and thus you won't rashly lose your principal.

Napoleon Hill reports that one 50-year-old man told him he had read his book Think and Grow Rich but had not yet become wealthy — in fact, he was still in debt. Hill replied that the reason was he had not applied the lessons he had learned. He still lacked "a positive mental attitude."

Five years later the man reported that he had taken the advice, was out of debt, and felt he was now on the road to wealth.

The authors find various and good reasons for suggesting saving. However expressed, they can be summarized along these lines:

— Saving will alter your thinking from purposeless, day-to-day expenditure of all your resources to the realization that your employment should provide for your future as well as the present.

— It will afford tangible evidence that you are making progress toward your financial goal.

— It will provide the initial investment for whatever projects your new life goals may encourage.

Many successful men attest that the first few thousand dollars they saved were the most difficult. After that, with their accumulated capital, a sense of purpose, and the ability to recognize opportunity when it came, they found the going easier.

Getting started on the road to wealth may be likened to launching an expedition to the moon. The biggest problem was getting men and equipment out of the confines of the earth's atmosphere. That accomplished, the rest was smoother sailing.

REWARDING

Immediate openings in our phone room for ladies who have lots of enthusiasm, a will to learn and a desire to talk with people. You'll be working for an advertising director and a company who really cares about people. It could be the most rewarding and enjoyable position you've ever had. Sound interesting? You bet it is! This 5 day per week position involves handling established advertising accounts and developing new ones. Previous experience in sales, public contact or phone work helpful but not necessary. A pleasant outgoing personality, a little determination and the ability to type is what it takes. We'll train you to do the rest.

SALARY PLUS INCENTIVES

Wage review guaranteed after first 3 months, then regular increases in merit. This is not a commission-type job but added incentives mean you can easily make more than the set wages. Your extra earnings will largely depend on how well you personally perform. Many liberal company benefits including paid vacations and holidays, sick leave, profit sharing, hospitalization, disability insurance and company paid life insurance. You may be just the person we're looking for and we may be just the company you're looking for. One way to find out — come in between 9 a.m. and 12 noon and fill out an application. ACCOUNTING MANAGER

An unusual opportunity has been created due to growth and expansion of a subsidiary of G. D. Searle & Co., the Curtis Breeding Service.

The successful candidate will office in Cary, Illinois in a scenic, 80-acre rural setting. His duties will be interesting and varied. He will supervise all accounting personnel and will develop data for management presentation. His responsibilities will encompass inventory control, operating and financial reports, accounts receivable, and customer financial communications.

We require a degree in Accounting with about 3 years experience. We offer an excellent starting salary, and exceptional benefit program plus a chance to work in an environment where emphasis is placed on personal and professional growth. Send resume in confidence to:

Notice of Special Election

COMMUNITY CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL DISTRICT NUMBER 96 LAKE COUNTY, ILLINOIS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a special election has been called and will be held in and for Community Consolidated School District Number 96, Lake County, Illinois, on Saturday, the 26th day of September 1971, at which election there will be submitted to the legal voters of said School District the following propositions:

1. Shall the Board of Education of Community Consolidated School District Number 96, Lake County, Illinois, acquire three new school sites, one in the southeast portion of the District, one in the northeast portion of the District and one in the northwest portion of the District, equip the Kildeer Countryside School Building, the Willow Grove School Building and the school building to be built by the School Building Commission and improve the sites of each of said buildings and issue the bonds of said District to the amount of $885,000 for said purpose?

2. Shall the Board of Education of Community Consolidated School District Number 96, Lake County, Illinois, levy annually a tax of not to exceed $133.000 upon all taxable property within the District, such annual tax to be unlimited as to rate or amount under any provisions of The School Code of the State of Illinois, and such annual tax to be used for the purpose of paying rentals fixed by the School Building Commission for the use and occupancy of a school building owned by the State of Illinois, so long as such building shall be leased by said School District from the State of Illinois?

That for said special election said School District has been divided into two (2) election precincts, the boundaries of which and the polling place for each are as follows:

ELECTION PRECINCT NUMBER 1
All that part of Community Consolidated School District Number 96, Lake County, Illinois, lying outside the Village of Buffalo Grove, Lake County, Illinois.

polling Place: Kildeer Countryside School, McHenry Road, Long Grove, Illinois 60047

ELECTION PRECINCT NUMBER 2
All that part of said School District lying within the Village of Buffalo Grove, Lake County, Illinois.

polling Place: Willow Grove School, 777 Checker Drive, Buffalo Grove, Illinois 60089

Voters must vote at the polling place designated for the election precinct within which they reside.

The polls at said election will be opened at 8:00 o'clock A.M. and will be closed at 7:00 o'clock P.M. on said day.

By order of the Board of Education of Community Consolidated School District Number 96, Lake County, Illinois.

Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan, all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Take stock in America. Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Religion Today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

Working newsmen throughout the world recently received a helping hand — at least in its ideal — from The Vatican.

In a 20,000-word pastoral instruction, approved in its entirety by Pope Paul and entitled "The Media, Public Opinion and Human Progress," The Vatican "utterly condemns the violence against newsmen."

Citing reporters and photographers who "at times risk their lives in the line of duty," the document says: "The safety of such correspondents should be assured in every possible way because of the service they render to man's right to know what is happening."

Press photographers will be particularly grateful for this expressed concern — especially those who must photograph riots, and are dangerously vulnerable to attack from the side, while trying to focus their lenses.

Reporters, who often shield their photographers from such attacks, will also be grateful for the Vatican's admonition to: "Keep to the facts and bear down on the most important of these . . ."

COLUMNISTS, editorial writers and other interpretive writers will appreciate another admonition in the document: "The meaning of what the press reports should be brought out by explanation."

Regulation writers will especially rejoice in this statement of ideals from the head of the world's largest denomination — particularly if these ideals are ever carried into effect throughout the Catholic Church itself. For instance:

—This might mean that Pope Paul would give consideration to a new editorial policy (preferably a new editor) for the Vatican's own daily newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, which is very probably the dearest excuse for a newspaper of any publication west of Prayda. (One candidate for editor could be Robert Hoyt, who made The National Catholic Reporter one of the top religious newspapers in church history and was recently fired by an ungrateful board.)

—The U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, which makes decisions vitally important to 49 million Catholics (and a great deal of their cash) would immediately stop holding their deliberations behind closed doors.

ACTUALLY THIS attempt at secrecy has been in vain, according to Hiley Ward, religion writer for The Detroit Free Press. Ward reports that he has monitored the last six Bishops' meetings, by using everything from the men's room to a 20-foot extension ladder. His only concern, as he and another religion writer listened behind a curtain at the recent Bishops' meeting in Detroit, was that they might give themselves away to the security police by snoring audibly during some of the more extended speeches. Writes Ward:

"I am confident that, even betraying our secrets, the Bishops' meeting could again be cracked. I suspect that it would take 50 policemen, a budget of $50,000 and some know-how from the FBI to really keep us out."

Catholic bishops are by no means the only denominational officials who are fascinated with the (inevitably vain) allurements of concealed conclaves. Episcopals can be every bit as sticky regarding "executive sessions." And sometimes laymen can be even stickier — as was the case recently with University of California professor John T. Noonan.

Dr. Noonan is a Trustee of the Jesuit-owned University of San Francisco, which recently underwent a spectacular "Battle of the Jesuits," when the president, Father Albert Jonsen, described his seminary classmate and vice president, Father Robert Sunderland, as "a good guy, but a bad administrator."

AT THE CONCLUSION of a (closed) meeting of the USF Trustees — at which Father Sunderland appeared to testify — this writer went to the executive offices and tried to obtain some official comment regarding the Trustees' decision in this undeniably newsworthy case. Here he was confronted by Dr. Noonan, who issued a unilateral order:

"Get out!"

By way of charitable response, this writer has sent Dr. Noonan a news report of the Vatican Document about the press — with underlined passages regarding the reporter's obligation to "bear down," together with the document's sympathetic notation that newsmen often encounter "formidable obstacles."

Masters' Voices Are Capsulized

by ROBERT COCHNAR

NEW YORK — From behind the rosebushes, the voice of Colonel Sanders draws as the executive kneels to report a plant.

As he drives to the office, the executive is tuned in to the views of film producer Joseph E. Levine.

And on the seventh hole, Daniel Patrick Moynihan's New York Irish voice drifts from a golf bag.

Not only is enlightenment portable these days, it's available even when it's impossible to read, watch television or talk face-to-face with the person who is attempting to enlighten. The source of all this instant education is the audio cassette, a handy sandwich of recorded tape and plastic which up until recently has been devoted most exclusively to music.

More and more communications firms are discovering that cassettes can convey certain forms of information better than the more conventional methods.

Says Jim Levy of Time-Life Audio, which is responsible for "The Executive Voice," a monthly cassette "magazine" sent to subscribers for $30 a year.

"WHAT WE ARE after is a lively listening forum where business leaders can exchange ideas and information quickly and easily. We are in the business of bringing information and opinion to the people who count, but we are also in the business of making that information entertaining and easily digestible."

"The Executive Voice" interviews such people as Colonel Sanders, Levine, Moynihan, management consultant Peter Drucker and fashion designer Bill Blass and sends the results off to subscribers in 60-minute cassettes. Levy says there are about 10,000 executive-subscribers and he expects some 20,000 more by year's end.

The granddaddy of the cassette information business is probably the California Medical Association, which developed the concept several years ago by recording medical conferences, editing them and mailing them monthly to doctor-subscribers. Called Audio Digest, the service has more than 20,000 subscribers.

Another new organization, Cassette Clearing House of Norwalk, Conn., acts as an informal "club" by providing up-to-date listings of various instructional cassette programs.

"THE PROBLEM," says Michael Schall of Cassette Clearing House, "is that while many firms are producing cassettes, the public for the most part has no idea what's available."

"We're attempting to perform an industry-wide service by letting people know where they can find cassette programs."

Jim Levy of Time-Life calls the business "audio publishing" or "nonprint publishing" which almost sounds like a contradiction in terms. Nevertheless, he feels that it is likely to make a dent in much of the publishing industry in years to come.

For self-improvement, Levy says, the cassette is made to order. "There are so many areas which are perfect for cassettes. Language instruction, children's stories, art appreciation, travel tours. We're just getting started."

Cassette Clearing House's Schall makes available such diverse programs as vocabulary building, data processing, spelling, Bible stories, yoga exercises, investing, business writing and flower arranging.

"Practically every household has a cassette recorder today," says Schall. "Eventually, it will have a cassette library for self-improvement and entertainment to go with it."

Readers interested in cassettes can write for the free listing prepared by the Cassette Clearing House, Box 11, South Norwalk, Conn.

Registration Begins For Adult Education

Registration for adult education programs in High School Dist. 211 can be made by mail or during the day at any of the district's four high schools.

Mailed registrations should be sent to Charles Mueller, director of the program, at the Administration Center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd. in Palatine.

Daytime registration is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Palatine, William Fremd, James B. Conant and Schaumburg high schools.

Evening registration for the more than 150 courses will be held from 7:30 to 9 Monday, Sept. 13 at Schaumburg High School and Tuesday, Sept. 14, at Palatine High School.

Courses are divided into mini (four to six weeks), midi (eight weeks), and maxi (twelve weeks) courses.

NEW COURSES include how to enjoy eating without committing suicide, how and where to travel, wood carving, general law, salesmanship, English art, beginning sailing, Hi-Fi stereo and you, children's clothing, crewel, needlepoint, crocheting, co-recreational activities, aikido, antiques, astrology I and II, advanced welding, know your car, advanced machine woodworking, general metals, and personalized conditioning for men.

A travel-adventure series co-sponsored with Harper College will also be offered again this year. The first of six programs will be at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 19, at Cutting Hall in Palatine High School. Thailand will be the first subject.

A high school diploma program for adults not presently enrolled in a high school program will be offered Monday through Thursday evening. Persons interested in participating should contact the continuing education office in the administration center, 359-3300.

Northern Illinois University will offer an extension course in care, treatment, and prevention of athletic injuries at Fremd High School beginning Monday, Sept. 13. Registration for the course can be made through the extension division of Northern Illinois University in DeKalb.

HARPER COLLEGE will offer introduction to philosophy and principles of economics I at Conant High School this fall on Wednesday evenings, beginning Sept. 15. More information is available from the Harper College Admissions Office, 359-4200.

A brochure listing the fall curriculum has been mailed to Dist. 211 residents. Residents who did not receive a brochure and non-residents can obtain information from the Dist. 211 continuing education office, 359-3300.

Equivalency Tests Set At Harper College

Applications for the high school equivalency tests will be available at Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine, in the Counseling Center A-347, Tuesday, Sept. 7, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Successful completion of the General Educational Development (G.E.D.) tests entitles the applicant to receive a high school equivalency certificate which may be valuable in fulfilling college entrance requirements or in meeting educational standards for job placement or advancement.

Application is restricted to adults 19 years of age or over presently living in Cook County who have not received a high school diploma. Applicants must also have lived in the state of Illinois for at least one year.

The examination requires three testing periods. These are scheduled for Sept. 17, 18 and 24, at Harper College. A $5.00 fee paid at the time of application covers all sessions.

More information concerning the tests is available from Supt. Richard J. Martwick's office at 321-8726.

The Hollywood Scene

by Vernon Scott

by VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The dance as a commercial art form is enjoying the same popularity boom as flag pole sitting and intercontinental zeppelin travel.

The observation can be documented by Miss Juliet Prowse who is perhaps — in fact, assuredly — the most successful contemporary commercial dancer extant.

She also is probably the only one who works steadily.

While dancing may not be a dead art, it is suffering fallen arches.

"Where can a dancer dance today?" Miss Prowse asked, knowing full well what the answer would be.

Hardly anywhere.

"IN THE VERY OLD days night clubs always included a dance team along with a comedian and a singer or magician," the South African-born beauty said. "Today there are almost no night clubs except in Las Vegas."

"Even there the dancers are in the chorus, not featured."

Juliet is the exception. She can be seen there this week with her own specialized act which includes singing, comedy numbers along with the hoofing.

"If a dancer wants to appear on television there is only Carol Burnett's show and Dean Martin's. Ed Sullivan's gone and none of the other musical shows are set up for dancers."

A TRAINED ballerina, Juliet recognizes that modern dance troupes and ballet groups travel around the country presenting concerts.

But none of the dancers, excepting a star or two, ever become rich, famous and footloose so to speak.

"That is the 'arty' side of dancing," Juliet explained. "There is a limited audience for that sort of entertainment."

"Fortunately I keep busy with summer stock, playing Vegas and doing occasional television guest shots. But I'd advise anyone thinking of becoming a dancer to develop another talent or career on the side."

Teachers Reject Pact, But Talks 'Still Friendly'

Intention to follow, to the letter and spirit, the wage freeze set by President Richard Nixon was reiterated Thursday by Donnie Rudd, school board president in Dist. 54, when announcing the teachers rejection of a contract for the 1971-72 school term.

"We are going back into negotiations, and stress that they are still friendly," asserted Rudd.

Rudd announced the Schaumburg Teachers Association rejection of a contract still being negotiated during a Thursday session of the school board.

A total news blackout is being observed by both teachers and school board members, said Rudd, adding, the agreement turned down by a teachers' vote late Thursday had been agreeable to the negotiators.

THE BOARD AND teachers association had both expected a quick settlement and had predicted approval of the contract before action is taken on Dist. 54's budget expected to be adopted Sept. 23.

Teachers in the audience agreed with Rudd's comments that minor issues are holding the approval. They discounted rumors of a teacher strike as an attempt to create an issue where one does not exist.

Approximately half of the 411 teachers in the district eligible to vote, did so Thursday. The vote was estimated to be 142 to 88.

One of the board members commented later that a larger vote would have found approval of the rejection but was still surprised at the rejection by that many teachers.

Details of the contract negotiated since May were provided by an unofficial source.

THE CONTRACT would have provided for a 3.3 per cent increase in base pay from $7,600 to $7,850, a 7.3 increase in the salary of an average teacher.

Other provisions were a study of an incentive pay system, a change in the medical insurance policy and an increase in extra pay for teachers with graduate study hours.

Pay for graduate study was to have increased from $18 per hour beyond a bachelor's degree to $15 an hour. The ceiling was 25 graduate hours.

Another provision was the reduction in the number of teachers allowed to take sabbaticals. The district has allowed up to two per cent of its total staff to take them, with the stipulation applicants must have seven years of experience. The contract said only one per cent were to be granted the one year sabbatical leave.

Rudd said the teachers rejection was a surprise but repeated that the district is confident a successful negotiation is close.

Swim Meet Slated

An open swim meet is planned Saturday for Schaumburg residents at Atcher Pool. It will be sponsored by the village Jaycee chapter and park district.

Events begin at 10 a.m. and will include 25-yard freestyle, backstroke, breaststroke, and butterfly in two age groups; 8-year-olds and under and 10-year-olds and under.

The same stroke events will be held in 50-yard events for 11 through 14-year-olds. A series of 100-yard events will be open to all age groups.

Swimmers may not enter more than two events, exclusive of relays, and must compete in assigned age divisions. Ribbons will be given for first through fifth place in individual and relay events.

Late registrations are being taken by Warner Rivers at 894-2747 or 671-2617. Rivers will also provide additional information.

POSTERS ARE UP at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates encouraging students to volunteer for the creek cleaning effort to be held this weekend and next in Schaumburg. Debbie Neotonge, 15, left, and Donna Nydan, 15, inspect posters with Craig Elderkin, 17, a member of Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee and the Hoffman Estates Environmental Concerns committee.

Campaign To Enlist Help For Creek Clean Up Working

Eleven new signups have been received in the campaign to enlist 200 volunteers for the creek clean up sponsored by Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee.

And, sign-ups began sign-ups.

Mrs. Jean-Paul Potier of the Sheffield Towne Women's Club, last week volunteered her services, adding she'll recruit more volunteers when the club meets tonight.

"We'll send out flyers all over the development and go on-mass by car to Great Hall," said Mrs. Potier.

MRS. DIANE JENSEN called too, and said, "I'm calling as vice president of PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problem). I've been contacted by PEP's youth chairmen who will try to get volunteers."

The two youths, Chris Conway and Claudia Mueller, are students at Palatine High School. "We feel this is very important," Mrs. Jensen said about the creek cleaning effort.

The first group of volunteers from Schaumburg High School have signed up too. They are Bill Homnawen, 1968 Oxford, Hanover Park; Claudia and Kathy Carver, 1027 Duxburg Ln., Schaumburg; and Penny McIlraith.

No volunteers have been enlisted at Conant yet, but Don Fletcher, who's heading the campaign there, said he expects numbers of students to sign up this week.

The clean up will be held this weekend and next weekend with volunteers meeting 9 a.m. each day at Great Hall in Schaumburg. There are 30 miles of creek stretching through the village. The clean up is aimed at preventing the further eye sore and flooding problem the creeks could become.

OTHER NEW VOLUNTEERS are Mrs. Mary Lou Barr and her daughter Daren, 11, of 186 Harvard Ln., Hoffman Estates;

Miss Constance Jelke, 304 Bantree Dr., Schaumburg; Byron Line, 13 of 2074 W Danbury, Hoffman Estates and John Rice, 13, of 141 Devon, Roselle

Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee (CEC) is chaired by Trustee Jack Larson. Heading up the creek cleaning campaign is Ken Dopp, a CEC member. Other CEC members are Mrs. Diane Luciani, Mrs. Terri Glynn, Dennis Ledgerwood, Mrs. Jane Murphy, Don Fletcher, Craig Elderkin, and Mrs. Sandy Etchingham.

Still needed are 140 volunteers. Call The Herald at 394-2300 to sign up.

Palatine Man First Fatality

A 26-year-old Palatine man became the first fatality of the Labor Day weekend when his car crashed head-on into another car on Quentin Road, north of Rte. 68, at midnight Friday.

The man was identified as John Bastian, of 647 E. Baldwin.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Bastian was trying to pass another motorist, when he collided with a car driven by Cindy Daczewitz, 18, of 625 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights.

Police said Bastian swerved to avoid the oncoming car, but not in time. The accident happened at Quentin Road near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Miss Daczewitz was taken to Northwest Community Hospital with multiple contusions, lacerations and a fractured nose. As of Monday morning, she was listed in good condition by the hospital.

Police said she said she didn't see Bastian in time to swerve away.

In Elk Grove Village Friday afternoon an 8-year-old boy, Ronald Bartlett, 200 Kingsbridge, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident.

The boy, according to police, was riding his bike in front of his home when a car swerved into him and then kept going. Young Bartlett suffered only an abrasion to his left arm, which was treated at home, but police said they are investigating the accident.

ELSEWHERE in the Northwest suburbs during the holiday weekend, traffic accidents were limited to fender benders without injuries.

Illinois State Police reported no serious accidents on the Northwest Tollway as of Monday afternoon. A spokesman said traffic on the tollway was very heavy Saturday, slackened Sunday and was expected to be very heavy again Monday evening, as weary motorists drove home at the end of the holiday.

Fund Drive For Hospital Start

by JERRY THOMAS

A Hoffman Estates woman facing a Dec. 15 deadline is collecting a half-penny apiece from 600,000 people to help her home town hospital buy a kidney machine.

Mrs. John Parrish of 182 Meyer Rd., found out about the Paris Illinois Community Hospital fund drive during a home town visit.

However, the fund drive is not limited to cash donations. She explained the Nursing Service at the hospital, serving a population of 10,000, is also collecting Betty Crocker coupons, found in General Mills products.

General Mills will pay the hospital a half penny a piece for every coupon turned in, she said.

"That's what I mean by saying I'm going to try to get as many half pennies out of my neighbors as I can," she explained.

"THE HOSPITAL'S goal is to collect at least 600,000 coupons and turn them in for $3,000 worth of cash. With the additional cash donations this should be enough money to purchase a kidney machine," said Mrs. Parrish.

Nurses at the Paris hospital said three Paris area residents must travel approximately 50 miles to Springfield for kidney machine dialysis treatment. Paris is located about 200 miles from Chicago near the Indiana border.

Superintendent of nurses Marcelle Kincaid said the hospital is near a half way mark in its coupon drive, and said Mrs. Parrish and others like her will make it successful.

Coupons may be mailed directly to the Nursing Service at the Paris Community Hospital, Paris, Ill., 61944 or to Mrs.

Parrish at her Hoffman Estates address. Mrs. Parrish, a registered nurse, has enlisted the aid of local businessmen and neighbors who are helping her coupon collection grow.

IN THE FIRST week of collection she has been given about 1,000 Betty Crocker coupons from her neighbors.

"Reaction to my plea for coupons has been varied," said Mrs. Parrish. Some people are eager to help the hospital get a machine, knowing it means life or death for those whose kidneys do not function."

But, then there is the woman who remarked that she might have a few coupons, but not until she saved enough for her coffee pot."

"I don't think about those; just the many kind people who have brought in coupons one by one, or in fistfuls of hundreds. With their help Paris Hospital will get a kidney machine," said Mrs. Parrish.

The General Mills offer to redeem the coupons for cash ends on the Dec. 15 date, however the hospital nurses said the firm will redeem as many coupons as have been collected if the full 600,000 is not gathered.

Board OKs Teacher Hiring

A former School Board member in School Dist. 54 was one of several teachers hired for the 1971-72 school year in board action Thursday.

Mrs. Eleanor Thorsen's employment was not approved by Board Pres. Donnie Rudd, and members Jerry Spatz, and Gerald Lewis Lewin. Rudd explained the vote was not directed at Mrs. Thorsen whose "qualifications were exemplary."

Rudd said in this case the board's split was a result of a varied opinion on whether a previous board member should apply for work in the district within the year he has served as a board member.

Mrs. Thorsen did not seek reelection in April after serving on the board for seven years.

MRS. THORSEN, who holds a master's degree from Northern Illinois University has four years of experience and was hired as a Psycho-educational diagnostician. Her salary is $10,414 a year.

Other teachers hired were, Nancy Heberlin, Jeanie Lang, Carolyn Michuda, Sharon Masters and Laura Tasky; all primary teachers who will be paid $7,600 annually.

Others are Carol Steepy who has two years experience and will teach Junior High English for an $8,360 annual salary and Mary Weaver, a primary teacher with three years of experience who was hired for $8,740 a year.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,500-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

Ironic Twist In Cop's Life

by STEVE NOVICK

Ray Cox is a nice guy and a dedicated cop, working for the Hoffman Estates Police Department. He's nearly a fanatic when it comes to traffic safety and that's why I found it so ironic when hearing he was, of all things, hit by a car last week.

While on vacation from the police force, Cox was working as a flagman at the Higgins Road construction site to pick up a few extra dollars.

It was about noon when a car came passing by, striking Cox and sending him flying up on the car's hood. He spent the night in the hospital and was released the next day. Fortunately he's okay, according to Police Chief John O'Connell.

I FIRST MET Ray while doing a feature story on VASCAR, a speed detecting device Hoffman Estates police took on in April 1970.

The story began, "New lifesaving equipment has been installed in a Hoffman Estates patrol car... the way Officer Raymond Cox sees it."

He went on to explain the mechanics of the equipment and taught me how to use it after a short time. We had some fun, laughing as we clocked for speeders on Nicholson Road and in the Guido's store parking lot.

But to Cox it was all very serious, deep down.

"Speed is the number one cause of traffic fatalities," he said, adding, "If only one life is saved because VASCAR prevented a speeding violation, it is all worthwhile."

Thinking about it all 16 months later, VASCAR the machine is out of my mind. I can only think about Cox, who cares so much about traffic safety. He's the one who helps save lives by deterring speeders. Let's all watch out for him a little more closely... and for each other.

Arguments To Suppress Heidt Evidence To Open

Arguments were to open this morning on a motion to suppress evidence against William F. Heidt, 31, of 962 Valewood Dr., Bartlett, a former Schaumburg police patrolman charged with grand theft.

Heidt was arrested by the Schaumburg police June 29, while still a member of the force. He was charged with stealing $1,100 worth of merchandise from the Woodfield Sears store, unopened at the time. The thefts allegedly occurred while Heidt was working as a security guard at the store during his off-duty hours. A Schaumburg patrolman for five years, he had been hired by Sears through the department.

A continuance in Heidt's case until today was granted Aug. 10, when Heidt made his fourth appearance in Cook County Felony Court, Niles. Attorneys had been expected to argue the motion to suppress evidence at that time, but assistant State Atty. Daniel Miroballi, prosecuting, said he had not received a copy of the motion until the previous day. It was the first time the prosecution had requested a delay.

Prior to his arrest, Heidt had turned in his resignation from the Schaumburg force, planning to move to Las Vegas, Nev. The resignation was to have taken effect June 30, the day before the patrolman was arrested. Police Chief Martin J. Conroy refused to accept the resignation, and filed charges of conduct unbecoming a police officer before the Schaumburg Fire and Police Commission.

The commission found Heidt guilty, and dismissed him from the force, but that action has no legal bearing on Heidt's court case.

Village Given To Oct. 3 On Bondholder Suit

The Village of Hoffman Estates has been given until Oct. 3 to answer a bondholders suit filed in U. S. District Court claiming fraud and violations of the Securities Exchange Act in the handling of the special assessment for Howie-In-The-Hills development.

The suit was filed in August, and the petition requested an answer from the village and co-defendants within 30 days. Village Atty. Edward Hofert said Friday he had requested and been granted a continuance to Oct. 3. "It is a very complicated thing and requires time" to prepare an answer, said Hofert. He had not yet begun to answer the suit but said he would do so this week.

The suit is related to the sale of $331,130 in bonds to finance street, curb, gutter, sewer and water improvements in the undeveloped Howie-In-The-Hills subdivision, in the north end of the village off Palatine Road.

Irving Rootberg and several firms which purchased the bonds are seeking reimbursement of their $331,130 investment plus $250,000 punitive damages from individuals named in the suit.

The bondholders suit refers to a $1 million Circuit Court suit by the Teamster's Union pension fund, filed in June 1968, as mortgage holder of the defunct development. The pension fund also charged fraud in setting up the special assessment to finance the same items for which the bonds were sold.

Co-defendants in the bondholders suit are George Holt, village engineer; Peter Schultz, former village attorney; Laura Reedy, former village clerk; Robert Kramer of the development companies, and a group of contractors who received payment from money obtained in the bond sale.

New Tennis Club Is Ahead Of Schedule

The Right Club, a new indoor tennis club is one week ahead of construction schedule for its Oct. 1 opening.

Located in the Plum Grove Industrial Park, Algonquin Road and Hammond Drive, Schaumburg, the new tennis club will have a lounge, viewing area, six courts, saunas, whirlpool, exercise room, sun rooms and massages available.

Dynaturf has been laid on the courts providing true bounce, no dead spots and cushion for less fatigue and more comfort, and a Right Club spokesman adding "it will provide unequalled playing conditions."

The Right Club is one mile west of Rte. 53 and will be easily accessible from all the Northwest suburbs.

Lessons will be available for all types of players and reservations for permanent court time are now available by calling Mickey Wright at 358-5100.

Prepare For Resumption Of Carlson Hearing

Filings Made Today To Reinstate Fireman

New filings were to be made today in the Circuit Court to reinstate a dismissed Hoffman Estates fireman, David L. Carlson Jr.

Attorneys for both Carlson and the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District, meanwhile, are preparing for resumption Friday of Carlson's hearing on his dismissal before the fire district board of trustees.

Carlson has claimed his dismissal results from his activities in organizing Local 2061, International Association of Fire Fighters, an affiliate of AFL-CIO.

The fire district has denied this but has not recognized the union.

Discharged from the fire district's employ July 16 by Chief Carl Selke, Carlson requested and was granted the hearing before the board. It opened July 23 and was adjourned to Friday night. The same arguments made at the opening board hearing are being brought before the Cook County Circuit Court in a writ of mandamus filed by Carlson's lawyer, Gilbert A. Cornfield of Chicago.

A writ of mandamus requests courts to direct governmental bodies to take specific action. In Carlson's case, the writ seeks a court order for Carlson's reinstatement with the fire district, pending the result of the board hearing.

Carlson has not been working for the district since his dismissal, but if the court grants the writ, Carlson will gain back pay and benefits to the date of his discharge.

IN THE COURT case, Cornfield is arguing that state statute prohibits the district from firing Carlson until after a hearing. Francis E. Kelly, fire district attorney, contends the statutes do not apply. The statute was set up for fire districts that have fire and police commissions. The Hoffman Estates district has no commission, said Kelly. Therefore any provisions of the statute are irrelevant, he claimed at the opening of the board hearing.

The board ruled in agreement with Kelly, that the statute does not apply, at the opening of the hearing. The mandamus writ was filed as an appeal on Kelly's contention.

The specific causes for Carlson's dismissal never were made public. Kelly said the charge concerned Carlson's conduct at a fire.

The board has left Carlson the option of requesting a closed hearing, or leaving it open to the public and press. Cornfield said Friday he intends to keep the hearing open.

The charges against Carlson will be read Friday night, said Kelly, and he will be given an opportunity to put forth a defense. The board then will decide whether or not to uphold Carlson's dismissal by Chief Selke.

Builder To Leave Many Old Trees

A group of century old trees near a Schaumburg Township historical landmark will not be entirely felled by bulldozers next spring.

Members of Hoffman Estates Environmental Concerns Committee elicited a promise to save trees from "Tex" Guggemos, of Kaufman and Broad, Inc. last week.

At Thursday's plan commission meeting, environmental committee members had an opportunity to discuss with Guggemos plans for Kaufman and Broad's quadrominium development next to Barrington Square on Higgins Road.

The area contains a private burial plot now owned by Cook County; the developer has agreed to give Hoffman Estates Park District a 1.9 acre parcel encircling the cemetery plus another parcel of land north of the site.

It is the intention of the park district to keep the cemetery intact and to create a nature area on the perimeter land.

ENVIRONMENTAL committee members persuaded Guggemos to rope or chain off the park district land and identify trees to be saved.

He also promised grading will be done on land other than the park-owned segment and said heavy equipment will not travel the site during the work.

Although not agreeing to the environmental group's demand that a chain link fence be made taller to protect against vandals and intruders, Guggemos agreed to look into feasibility of such a move.

The builder's representative said he would investigate construction of another fence to protect the cemetery but refused to be responsible for its erection.

"If I give one more dollar or one more tree, we will have to go to another land plan," Guggemos said.

He estimated the worth of land being given to the park district at $48,000 and said he could easily sell the sites to another developer.

The acreage involved is expected to be deeded to the park district by Kaufman and Broad, Inc. within 60 days.

"After viewing the original plans, I have to commend Kaufman and Broad for saving these trees. I am certain the developer will work hard to see these promises kept," said Trustee Diane Jensen, chairman of the committee.

The sector involved was originally planned to contain 192 units built in two story buildings. Ranch units are now proposed in an altered plan.

REVISED PLANS call for construction of 164 units with eight one story buildings and 34 two-story buildings representing a total density of 9.72 units per acre.

Environmental committee members felt they achieved some success in preserving the wooded area, adding had they begun work sooner more could have been accomplished.

The committee is newly organized and met, formally, for the first time last Wednesday to establish guidelines.

Future projects suggested for committee study by Richard Regan, plan commission chairman, include a 234 acre parcel north of the Illinois Tollroad proposed for annexation to the village by Centex-Winston Corp. and an area on Barrington Road now in a manufacturing zoning district.

The Environmental Committee is a sub-group of the public works committee and will serve as an advisory body to Village Pres. Frederick Downey and the board of trustees.

Approve Pilot Program For Area Schools

A pilot program using the Individually Guided Education (IGE) concept, was approved for the Hanover Highlands and K and B Schools in School Dist. 54.

Under IGE, large groups of children work under teacher teams meeting in groups of varying sizes, to accommodate the needs of the children in specific subject areas.

The IGE program under study and discussion for more than six months did not receive unanimous approval from the school board Thursday.

Board Pres. Donnie Rudd, and member Gerald Lewis voted against it. The program received the recommendation of the education committee and the superintendent.

Board member Adam Jelen received full support of his proposed amendment, that calls for approval.

Before IGE is implemented, an evaluation must be submitted and approved by the board of education and the education committee.

The Hanover Highlands School construction was planned with the IGE multi-unit concept in mind, and the K. B. School construction plans are now being finalized.

The IGE program will begin as a pilot program in these two facilities only. The school now has 20 elementary schools within the district.

Second Death In One Week Blamed On Heroin Overdose

For the second time in a week, a Des Plaines resident has died of an apparent overdose of heroin.

Des Plaines police said the latest drug victim, Stephen J. Brennan, 25, of 625 Howard St., Des Plaines, was pronounced dead on arrival Friday morning at Holy Family Hospital.

A doctor at the hospital diagnosed the death as an overdose of heroin, according to police.

Des Plaines Patrolman Ralph Tovar said he went to the house in response to a call for an ambulance and found Brennan "barely breathing."

Tovar said he gave the victim first aid until the fire department ambulance arrived and took the man to the hospital.

TOVAR SAID he searched the victim's clothing and found a syringe, still slightly wet; a package of white powder; and a burned bottle cap. He said he also found several fresh needle marks on the man's right arm, one of which was covered with a plastic bandage.

Brennan's death was the second in a week blamed on heroin.

Kevin R. Schneider, 19, of 2074 Locust St. Des Plaines, died Aug. 28 after he was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom by his father, Henry. In this death, police said they found a spoon, hypodermic needle case and three packages of white powder, believed to be heroin, under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Needle marks were found on Schneider's right arm, stomach and toes, according to police.

Will Attend Only Until Noon

Long Summer Vacation Ends For Students Today

The long summer vacation ends today for most area school children.

Students in School Dist. 21, which serves Wheeling, the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove, and northern Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights, will attend class from 9 a.m. to noon.

The first full day of classes will be tomorrow.

Teachers in Dist. 21 have not yet reached agreement with the district on a contract for the 1971-72 school year. However, a union representative has said the teachers would not strike to prevent the schools from opening. He also said a strike was unlikely at any time this year.

Representatives of the teachers and the Dist. 21 administration were scheduled to resume negotiations tomorrow. Earlier this summer, the teachers twice rejected a contract offer from the district.

Two new schools will open today to serve Dist. 21 students. They are James Whitcomb Riley School, 1209 Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights; and Nathaniel Hawthorne School, 200 Glendale, Wheeling.

A spokesman for the district said enrollment in the 15 Dist. 21 schools will not be known until after school starts. Last fall, enrollment was 7,954 students.

School also starts today at St. Mary's School in Buffalo Grove. Classes will be in session from 8:30 a.m. until noon. The first full day of classes will be on Wednesday.

ENROLLMENT AT St. Mary's this fall will be about 770 students, according to the principal, Sister Katherine Mary. The figure is down slightly from last fall's enrollment of about 800.

When school opens at St. Joseph the Worker Catholic School in Wheeling tomorrow, the school will be staffed almost entirely by lay teachers for the first time. Two nuns will teach, but their duties will be limited to religion classes.

The Sisters of Mercy announced last year they would withdraw the rest of its members from the school because of a personnel shortage in the order.

Classes will be in session at St. Joseph from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. tomorrow. The first full day of classes will be Thursday. Enrollment at St. Joseph the Worker this fall will be about 205 students, down from last year's fall enrollment of 275.

Classes will also start today at Wheeling High School. Students will attend classes for a full day. High school district officials could not give exact enrollment figures at the high school this fall, although earlier estimates placed the number attending at nearly 3,000.

Classes began Aug. 30 for students in Dist. 98, serving elementary students in the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, and for students at Adlai Stevenson High School, which also serves the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove.

HAPPINESS IS A HALF DAY of school for children in Mary's Catholic School in Buffalo Grove and at Dist. 21. Classes begin today in the district's 15 schools, but only from 9 a.m. until noon. Tomorrow is the first full day of classes. School also opens today at St. Joseph the Worker Catholic School in Wheeling.

Drug Education Success For Kids Linked To Adult Use

Adults will have to stop abusing drugs themselves if any drug education program is to work successfully for their children, according to Robert Wilford of the post graduate training center at Forest Hospital in Des Plaines.

Wilford spoke Friday to Dist. 21 teachers as part of an orientation program to the new drug abuse curriculum for all Dist. 21 students this year.

Wilford said in order to influence children successfully not to abuse drugs, the old adage, "Don't do as I do, do as I say," will have to be abandoned.

The mother who takes a tranquilizer to calm her nerves or the father who uses a cocktail to relax him is a powerful influence on a young child, Wilford said.

"It is giving children the idea to use chemistry to deal with life," he told the audience.

Commercial, with such slogans as, "Better living through chemistry," reinforce this idea, he stated.

"If you're going to change someone else's behavior, you will have to look at yourself first," Wilford said.

"CHILDREN HAVE to know that it's ok to emulate adult behavior.

"Drugs are here to stay," the educator said. "Marijuana will someday be legalized. There are all indications that it is well on its way. And then we will probably stop worrying about it. Alcoholism is our biggest drug problem and no one worries about it, because alcohol is legal.

"Now we're on a crusade to save the children, because we don't want them to become dope addicts. Some will tell them how bad drugs are.

"The truth is," said Wilford, "that a drug experience 90 per cent of the time is a good experience. 'Freaking out' is pretty much a myth. The idea that drugs are a bad, terrible thing is, from the standpoint of the user, most of the time not true.

"And so, fear has not worked. It hasn't deterred one bit the increased use of drugs among young people and adults," he said. Wilford said that drug abuse cannot be stopped simply by giving out information on the effects of drugs.

"You can kid yourself by thinking you can teach drug education by showing a filmstrip or giving out information. But if you want to take it seriously, you must realize that drug education involves feelings.

"THE DECISION to take drugs is an emotional decision. It isn't an intellectual one. If it were an intellectual decision, we wouldn't have one person in the United States using alcohol, for alcohol destroys the system.

"Happy, loving, secure children don't use drugs," Wilford said. "The child who does use drugs feels, 'the only way I can feel important and relieve the pain inside me is by turning on or turning off.'"

Educators have to be therapists if a drug education program is to be successful, according to Wilford.

"You have to attempt to help children change their feelings. How do you prepare yourself to teach emotionally? The best answers can be found by looking inside yourself, by understanding yourself as a person."

Wheelmen Slate 100-Mile Bike Ride Sunday

Bicycle riders can choose routes as short as 25 miles and as long as 100 miles in a ride Sunday.

The ride, sponsored by the Wheeling Wheelmen, will begin at the Carl Sandburg School on Schoenbeck Road in Wheeling. Registration is at 8:30 a.m.

The entire 100-mile route will take cyclists through Barrington Hills, Algonquin and McHenry to Hebron and then back to Wheeling. Riders who want a shorter route can travel a 25-mile or 50-mile section of the complete route.

The ride is staged in connection with bicycling's National Century Month and riders who complete the 100-mile route will receive a clothing patch from the League of American Wheelmen.

The event is open to the public. The registration fee is 25 cents for the shorter rides and 50 cents for the 100-mile ride. The cost of taking part in the "Century" mile and receiving the patch is $1.

The Wheeling Wheelmen will also sponsor a ride to the Long Grove area beginning at Sandburg School at 1 p.m. Sept. 19, and on Sept. 18 the club will have a ride to the North Shore starting at Heritage Park, Wheeling, at 1 p.m.

Park Bingo Games Are Probably Legal

Bingo games proposed by the Wheeling Park District as a way to raise funds for park development are probably legal, the park board learned Thursday.

Atty. Roger Bjorvik told the board he was unable to obtain copies of the new bingo statute or the necessary forms to apply to hold bingo games from the Chicago office of Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie.

But Bjorvik said the statute and the forms were being mailed to him from Springfield.

"There is no prohibition as far as I understand against the park district holding bingo," Bjorvik told the board.

Village To Begin Work On Streets

The village of Wheeling will begin resurfacing streets in the Hollywood ridge section of the village tomorrow.

The work is a continuation of the village's street maintenance program.

Streets which will be sealcoated as part of the current work include Valley Stream Drive, Kennilworth Drive, Sara-

Park Tax Up Four Per Cent

Next spring property owners will be paying taxes to the Wheeling Park District that are about 4 per cent higher than the park taxes they paid this year.

The Park District Board of Commissioners Thursday approved a 1971 tax ordinance levying $299,501.56 in taxes.

Park district Atty. Roger Bjorvik told the board the levy figure would probably increase the current tax rate of 32 cents per $100 of assessed valuation by 1 1/2 cents.

For the taxes on a house with $20,000 market value, that will mean a tax payment to the park district of $33.50 next spring as compared to $32 this year.

The rate increase follows a massive decrease of 13 cents per $100 assessed valuation from the 1969 to 1970 bills.

BJORVIK SAID he based his estimate of the 1 1/2 cent on a total assessed valuation for the district of $70 million. He said that would be an increase of 3 1/2 million over the current figure. It would be a conservative estimate of the assessed valuation increase for the year, Bjorvik said.

Park district board members asked Bjorvik if there was any way the district could hold the line on the tax rate.

He said it was impossible, because the increase was a result of bond and interest payments due during the year and the fact the district's payments to the Illinois municipal retirement fund (IMRF) had doubled from $4,000 last year to $8,000 this year.

Both the corporate and recreation tax rates have remained constant, he said.

Bjorvik said if the district is lucky and the assessed valuation increases to more than $70 million, then the rates on individual tax bills will not increase.

But he said he was taking a conservative estimate because the issue of paying personal property taxes has not been settled.

HE TOLD THE board members that based on the scheduled bond and interest payments, the rate will be lower again on the 1972 tax bills, which will be received in the spring of 1973.

This year's levy is for a total figure of $299,501.56 as compared to last year's total of $262,041.16, he said.

Of the total levy figure, $91,913.40 will be levied for corporate funds including the administration of the district.

A total of $64,881 will be levied for the recreation fund and a total of $125,545.95, for the bond and interest fund.

The insurance fund totals $5,400, the IMRF and social security fund is $8,521.20, and the audit fund is $3,240.

The levy figure differs from the $370,501.55 the district appropriated to spend during the year by a total of $71,000. That difference will be made up by money received in fees for various recreational programs offered by the district.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,500-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

For Those Away From Home

GRADES AT WHEELING High School averaged the same under the new modular scheduling system and the traditional system. However with good students doing better, and poor ones worse, more students got A's and more got F's under the new system than under the old one. Modular scheduling gives students more free time.

LESS THAN 100 Wheeling and Buffalo Grove youths have taken advantage of the new 18 year old voting age. About 1,500 18, 19, and 20 year olds in the two villages will be eligible to vote in the 1972 election, if they register. Only seven per cent have registered.

THREE HUNDRED buildings — most of them single-family houses — have been completed in Buffalo Grove this year. The village has issued 428 building permits for construction valued at $10,700,000 this year and a village official said construction is "much better than last year."

A MENTAL HEALTH clinic received a $1,500 check from the village of Wheeling, the first part of a $5,000 contribution the village will make in fiscal 1971-72. The money went to the community mental health clinic at Wheeling High School. It is the successor to the TORCH Mental Health Clinic.

AN AMBULANCE went into service in Buffalo Grove last Friday. The Buffalo

Grove Fire Department will use it to make emergency calls in the Cook County section of the village. The Long Grove fire department covers the Lake County section. The phone number for ambulance service is 537-5533.

THE HOTLINE proposed for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove came nearer to reality when $1,300 — $300 over the goal — was donated to a tag day by area residents. The crisis phone is expected to begin operations next month, according to officials of HELP, Inc., the volunteer agency which sponsors the project.

ABOUT 900 STUDENTS began school in Lake County Dist. 21 spent one last week on vacation. Their classes begin today.

FREE BUS RIDES for some Dist. 21 students were eliminated when the district discovered that they lived less than a mile and a half from school. The district used a new method to measure bus routes this year. The rides are free to children who live beyond the mile and a half limit.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE student Anita Komarek arrived at O'Hare Airport at 1:08 a.m. last Tuesday, just 24 hours later than expected. Her hosts became concerned when the Bolivian high school student failed to show up. A misunderstanding over dates caused the mixup.

Palatine Man First Fatality

A 26-year-old Palatine man became the first fatality of the Labor Day weekend when his car crashed head-on into another car on Quentin Road, north of Rte. 68, at midnight Friday.

The man was identified as John Bastian, of 647 E. Baldwin.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Bastian was trying to pass another motorist, when he collided with a car driven by Cindy Daczewitz, 18, of 625 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights.

Police said Bastian swerved to avoid the oncoming car, but not in time. The accident happened at Quentin Road near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Miss Daczewitz was taken to Northwest Community Hospital with multiple contusions, lacerations and a fractured nose. As of Monday morning, she was listed in good condition by the hospital.

Police said she said she didn't see Bastian in time to swerve away.

In Elk Grove Village Friday afternoon an 8-year-old boy, Ronald Bartlett, 200 Kingsbridge, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident.

The boy, according to police, was riding his bike in front of his home when a car swerved into him and then kept going. Young Bartlett suffered only an abrasion to his left arm, which was treated at home, but police said they are investigating the accident.

ELSEWHERE in the Northwest suburbs during the holiday weekend, traffic accidents were limited to fender benders without injuries.

Illinois State Police reported no serious accidents on the Northwest Tollway as of Monday afternoon. A spokesman said traffic on the tollway was very heavy Saturday, slackened Sunday and was expected to be very heavy again Monday evening, as weary motorists drove home at the end of the holiday.

At noon Monday, 480 persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents around the nation. The National Safety Council predicted earlier that from 600 to 700 persons would be killed in cars before the Labor Day holiday ended at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The council also predicted that 24,000 to 28,000 persons would be injured in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

WHILE TRADITIONAL Labor Day traffic placed heavy burdens on the roads, area golf courses also were feeling the extra holiday rush as suburbanites tried to take advantage of the long weekend.

At Arlington Country Club on Dundee Road, there was a 45-minute wait with several hundred golfers on the course at noon.

At the Mount Prospect Country Club course run by the park district, golfers reported a solid stream of players since daybreak, a 3½-hour wait for tee off at 11:30 a.m., and nearly 200 golfers on the course.

At Nordic Hills near Roselle, golfers had a two-hour wait, while at the Buffalo Grove Country Club there was a 45-minute wait and more than 100 players on the course.

A spokesman at the Palatine Hills course said they were keeping on schedule for players with reserved tee-off times, but "walk-ons" who had no reservations had a considerable wait.

Outlying courses such as Bonnie Dundee near Carpentersville had no waiting at all, and at Rob Roy in Prospect Heights a women said "if you can get out here in 15 minutes you can get on, but after that I don't guarantee anything."

Ruley Named Superintendent

The Wheeling Park District Board of Commissioners named Bob Ruley acting superintendent for the district at a meeting Thursday.

Ruley, maintenance superintendent for the district, was appointed to fill the post while Supt. Ferd Arndt is recuperating from a recent heart attack.

Commissioner Lorraine Lark, in suggesting Ruley for the post, explained he was given the post because of his tenure with, and knowledge of the district.

The board also voted to make Dist. Atty. Roger Bjorvik acting secretary until Arndt returns.

Board members stressed Ruley would still perform his duties as maintenance superintendent and that Recreation Director Bruce Coleman and Aquatic Director Ray Kittendorf would continue to supervise their sections of the district.

The board also voted to pay Arndt his full salary during his illness and said his time off will not be deducted from his vacation.

Correction

The percentage of salary increases for two Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 officials had been incorrectly stated in Friday's Herald. The salary of Asst. Supt. Tom Rich was raised about 7.3 per cent from $17,750 to $19,000. A 10.5 per cent salary increase, from $21,000 to $23,000, was granted to Supt. Edward Grodsky. The correct percentages mean two principals and the district's business manager received larger raises on a percentage basis.

THIS BOX IS part of the equipment used by the United States Geological Survey to measure water flowing in Buffalo Creek in northeastern Buffalo Grove.

Survey Measures Water Flow

Did you ever drive on the bridge on Aptakisic Road over Buffalo Creek and notice a green cylindrical-shaped structure on the road side?

It's part of the equipment used by the United States Geological Survey to measure the water flowing in Buffalo Creek.

According to Al Noehre, of the geological survey, the equipment is used to "measure the stages of the river to provide a continuous record for one year. It records the high and low flow."

He said the stream gauge is serviced monthly and the data published annually.

"You have to have a record on any stream to know what you're working with," Noehre said.

He said the data collected is used by developers and consultants for planning purposes.

"It is also used for zoning purposes, if you want to keep people from building in the flood plane," Noehre explained.

According to Noehre, a digital recorder is used which provides tapes that are fed into a computer in the central office in Oak Park.

'Need Low-Income Housing'

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Low and moderate-income housing is a "requirement" for the growth of Arlington Heights, according to an unexpected stand taken by the president of the village's Chamber of Commerce.

Edward "Bud" Mills told members of the low and moderate-income housing study committee Thursday night the attraction of more industry to the village and the availability of a wide cost range of housing are directly related.

Developments for low and moderate-income families will help to attract more industry and office buildings which will "help everyone's tax bills," the Chamber president said.

Mills' speech marked the first time the local group of businessmen have taken any public comments on the housing issue which has been boiling in Arlington Heights for almost 16 months.

The needs which are not being met presently in the village include housing for newly married couples, senior citizens and blue collar workers, Mills commented. Developments can be properly planned so that "we don't have shacks."

The housing is needed "if you want the workers to come in here and build up your industrial tax base," Mills said.

In answering a question, Mills said that housing is needed for not only moderate-income families but also low-income families.

Committee member Alice Harms, who is also on the Arlington Heights Village Board, said she knew the Chamber of Commerce was interested in a healthy economic attitude in the village and asked Mills if low and moderate-income housing might help some of the local businesses.

"It would probably help a great number of them," Mills said and then commented he didn't think the village has lost any business because of a lack of employees. "But we haven't gained many either," he added.

Committee member David Patterson asked if there wasn't enough housing available in areas around Arlington Heights for low and moderate-income housing.

Mills said the lack of housing close to where people work was not a "major" problem but availability of more housing would be helpful to present and future businesses.

Mills was one of about 15 representatives of Arlington Heights groups who spoke at last week's hearing called specifically to judge local attitudes towards the possibility of building low and moderate-income housing. The study committee was formed early this year to study the need for such housing and, if a need exists, recommend to the village board the best way to fulfill the need.

The committee includes members of the village board and plan commission. A deadline for the committee's report on

Kindergarten Kids To Take First Tests

Can your 5 year old identify colors and shapes. School Dist. 23 will find out on Sept. 13 when it gives its kindergarten students their first test.

If your kindergarten-age child is weak in one area of learning, he will be placed in a group that will receive special attention in that area. If your child has mastered another area, such as counting, he won't have to go over it again.

"The main aim of the test is to find out what the children know, so we can do a better job of teaching them," said Mrs. Roger Wingert, a district resident who initiated the test.

The project began last spring, after Mrs. Wingert, a doctorate candidate, visited district kindergarten classes. "I felt the children knew more than the teachers were giving them credit for. I thought it would be better to find out what the children know in the beginning so they won't have to repeat anything."

MRS. WINGERT WORKED with three elementary school principals, James Finke, Esther Pearson and Mary Hyrczyk, to design the test. They started with a test used at the district's Betsy Ross School in past years. This test concentrated on manual and visual skills such as matching.

The final product concentrates on the child's knowledge of conceptual skills such as counting and identifying shapes. According to Asst. Tom Rich this is not the first test developed to group kindergarten children, but it is "one of the most sophisticated in the area."

At each school the test will be administered by groups of three former teachers who still live in the district and volunteered to participate in the project.

It will take the teachers approximately 10 minutes to test each child. In addition to shapes and number, the children will also be tested on colors, letters, and sentence completion.

According to Mrs. Wingert and school officials the average kindergarten child today knows more than the kindergarten children did several years ago. They say this is due to more parental awareness of preschool learning and to more emphasis on the media, especially, television on preschool children.

"SESAME STREET" a new TV program, has had one of the greatest effects on preschoolers, according to the school officials. Last spring Mrs. Wingert distributed a questionnaire to district parents, asking them what their children had learned from the program. Results from that survey showed that children who watched "Sesame Street" are better prepared for kindergarten. However, Mrs. Wingert said the questionnaire is not as accurate as testing the children.

Unfinished Project Prompts School Contingency Plans

Unfinished remodeling at Douglas MacArthur School in Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 has forced the school board to set up a contingency plan when school opens there today.

School officials indicated the remodeling project may be completed no sooner than November, though some parts of the work may be finished sooner. The project includes construction of a new gymnasium, a theater and four new classrooms. The former gymnasium is being converted into a library. A second floor with classrooms will also be part of the revamped gymnasium.

At a meeting Wednesday, the school board approved a contingency plan to be used at the junior high school until the construction is completed.

The construction area will be sealed off to prevent students from wandering into hazardous areas. The transformer in the addition will remain disconnected for safety reasons.

TWO REMODELED classrooms and two new seminar rooms will be ready for occupancy this week. The other remodeled areas and the addition will not be ready. Room assignments will be temporarily switched until the new rooms are completed. One homeroom will meet in the cafeteria and another in the study hall. The learning disabilities class will be held at neighboring Anne Sullivan School.

According to Gerald McGovern, MacArthur principal, two of the biggest problems will be lack of storage space for furniture to be used in the new rooms and lack of space for physical education classes.

The contingency plan calls for using the gym at Sullivan School for the eighth grade varsity basketball team. The multi-purpose room at Dwight Eisenhower School will be used for the seventh grade varsity basketball team. The practices will be held after 3 p.m.

On bad weather days the regular physical education classes will be held in "whatever room is empty," said McGovern. "We hope the new gymnasium classroom will be ready early so that it can be used until the gym is completed."

"THE LIBRARY" will become available for storage purposes no later than Sept. 17," said McGovern. The contractors are expected to begin pouring the cement floor in the old gym this week.

The contingency plan will be explained to the students in general assemblies today. At the end of the day, the students will be given bulletins, explaining the situation, to be taken home to their parents.

Young Adult Group Given OK To Use Neptune's Pool

The Wheeling Park District Board voted Thursday to allow participants in Wheeling High School's Young Adult Education Program to use Neptune's Pool as a part of the night school curriculum.

The program is for young adults ages 18 to 23 who want to complete their high school education.

Henry Blim, director of the program, had asked if the park district would allow the use of the pool on five or six Friday nights for the program. He had asked if reduced rates could be given so the school wouldn't have to pay 50 cents per student to use the pool.

The use of the pool by the students would not interfere with the regular open swim held on Friday evenings, park board members learned.

District Aquatic Dir. Ray Kittendorf suggested that the district charge the school 60 per cent of the normal fee.

The board decided instead to charge the school 50 cents per student. It noted that for swimmers age 19 and older the normal fee would be 75 cents and that for students living outside the park district boundaries the normal fee would be $1.50.

Commissioners Gene Sackett, Alf Wilson and Robert Ross voted in favor of the reduced rate and Comr. Lorraine Lark abstained from the vote.

School Board Seeks More Park 'Pact' Cooperation

Members of the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board are calling for more cooperation from the Prospect Heights Park Board in carrying out their mutual agreement.

The agreement requires the park district to maintain and improve school grounds in the park district in return for free use of those school grounds and buildings. At a meeting Wednesday, school board member John Stull said apparently there is confusion about the park district's responsibility in the agreement.

Last month Diane Guarniere, president of the Eisenhower School PTA, complained to the board that weeds on the east end of the school site have not been cut all summer. She said the high weeds make it difficult for Camp McDonald Road motorists to see children walking along the path by the side of the road at the school.

"We expected the park district to cut the weeds," said Stull. After the parents complained, the school district contracted someone to cut the weeds. Neither the school district nor the park district have the necessary equipment to cut high weeds.

BILL KUHN, president of the park board, said he interpreted the agreement to mean the park district is obligated to maintain "school grounds that are being used." The east end of the Eisenhower site is currently unused. The park district plans to develop the land as a major park.

Stull said he plans to study the agreement to determine exactly what is the obligation of each party. "It may be necessary to discontinue the free service we give to the park district (use of buildings and grounds) if they don't cooperate with us. Or it may be that the problem is strictly on the surface."

Summer Vacation Ends For Most Students Today

The long summer vacation ends today for most area school children.

Students in School Dist. 21, which serves Wheeling, the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove, and northern Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights, will attend class from 9 a.m. to noon.

The first full day of classes will be tomorrow.

Teachers in Dist. 21 have not yet reached agreement with the district on a contract for the 1971-72 school year. However, a union representative has said the teachers would not strike to prevent the schools from opening. He also said a strike was unlikely at any time this year.

Representatives of the teachers and the Dist. 21 administration were scheduled to resume negotiations tomorrow. Earlier this summer, the teachers twice rejected a contract offer from the district.

Two new schools will open today to serve Dist. 21 students. They are James Whitcomb Riley School, 1209 Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights; and Nathaniel Hawthorne School, 200 Glendale, Wheeling.

A spokesman for the district said enrollment in the 15 Dist. 21 schools will not be known until after school starts. Last fall, enrollment was 7,954 students.

School also starts today at St. Mary's School in Buffalo Grove. Classes will be in session from 8:30 a.m. until noon. The first full day of classes will be on Wednesday.

ENROLLMENT AT St. Mary's this fall will be about 770 students, according to the principal, Sister Katherine Mary. The figure is down slightly from last fall's enrollment of about 800.

When school opens at St. Joseph the Worker Catholic School in Wheeling tomorrow, the school will be staffed almost entirely by lay teachers for the first time. Two nuns will teach, but their duties will be limited to religion classes.

The Sisters of Mercy announced last year they would withdraw the rest of its members from the school because of a personnel shortage in the order.

Classes will be in session at St. Joseph from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. tomorrow. The first full day of classes will be Thursday. Enrollment at St. Joseph the Worker this fall will be about 205 students, down from last year's fall enrollment of 275.

Classes will also start today at Wheeling High School. Students will attend classes for a full day. High school district officials could not give exact enrollment figures at the high school this fall, although earlier estimates placed the number attending at nearly 3,000.

Classes began Aug. 30 for students in Dist. 98, serving elementary students in the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, and for students at Adlai Stevenson High School, which also serves the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove.

THE WHEELING HIGH SCHOOL "WILDCATS" were part of the Buffalo Grove Days parade Sunday. The band also played during flag-raising ceremonies following the parade.

Bear Fans Can Watch Blacked Out Games

Chicago Bears fans will be able to watch home games at the Wheeling Park District Fieldhouse this fall.

The district is purchasing a 25-inch color television and an antenna tower to bring blacked-out games into the village for local residents.

In addition to Bears games other blacked-out sports casts will be shown on the set throughout the year, the park board decided.

Board members decided informally following their meeting Thursday that the district would charge $1 admission for adults and 50 cents admission for students to watch a game at the fieldhouse.

The first program will be held next Sunday when the Wheeling High School Band plays at the first Bears game of the season, they said.

90-Degree Heat Takes Toll In Small Crowd

It Didn't Rain On Our Parade, But...

Between rolls of thunder and under muggy, threatening skies, this year's Buffalo Grove Days parade—the highlight of the Labor Day weekend celebration—wound its way through the village Sunday afternoon.

The rain held off until the parade was over, but a performance by the Chicago Nobles, minicycle soccer club, was doused.

The crowd was described as small by Police Chief Harold Smith, who estimated that "less than 2,000" persons turned out to see the marching units and several floats.

The 90 degree-plus heat and high humidity took its toll, with several persons fainting from heat prostration.

This year's parade marshal was former village trustee Kenneth Felten, who had been active in previous Buffalo Grove Days.

The loudest entry, beside the screaming sirens of the Buffalo Grove and Long Grove fire department trucks, was a recruit band from Great Lakes Naval

Authentic Flavor For 'Fiesta'

This year's Buffalo Grove Days "Mexican Fiesta" dinner dance became more authentic than expected when a number of Mexican-Americans turned up Saturday night to help the local populace celebrate the Labor Day weekend.

Mrs. Dede Armstrong, a park district commissioner who was at the dance at the Buffalo Grove Golf Club, said carloads of Mexican-Americans came after word of the dance was broadcast on a Spanish-language radio station.

Trustee James Shirley gave this eyewitness account: "They had their own band. Some guy set up some drums in the club house and they danced with all the ladies in town."

First Illinois Drum and Bugle Corps, the Chicago Highlanders, a bagpipe band, and the Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps of Mount Prospect.

Also on Sunday were rides for the children, a homemaking contest and a fireworks display.

The celebration concluded yesterday with a community field day.

List Items On Board Agenda

The following items are on the agenda for discussion at tonight's special Buffalo Grove Village Board meeting:

—A report urging approval of rezoning to allow the construction of a car and truck dealership at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

—A report from the zoning board of appeals.

—A report on installing temporary traffic signals at two locations in the village.

—Consideration of holding a bicycle registration.

—Discussion on overnight parking on village streets.

—A review of the status of appointments to the civil defense commission.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the village municipal building, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Head Of Civil Defense Commission Resigns

The director of Buffalo Grove's six-month-old civil defense commission has submitted his resignation to the village board.

In a letter to the village board, Steven Brooks cited increased responsibilities in his job with the United States Postal Service. He is also moving to Arlington Heights.

He recommended that Donald Schindler, village health officer, be appointed as the new director.

Commenting on his term of office, Brooks criticized village officials for what he felt was lack of support, although he did say that some support was given.

He was most critical for a village procedure in which, he said, money allotted to the commission is used to pay for radios for the Buffalo Grove Fire Department.

He said the commission has no access to the radios adding "without communications we can't operate."

Brooks questioned the legality of using money from the general fund to pay for radios used by the department, because the department only operates in the part of the village south of Checker Road. The other part of the village is served by the Long Grove Fire Department, which receives no village funds.

Brooks said the $6,400 civil defense budget for this year is "not enough for what they (the village) expect us to do."

Wheelmen Slate 100-Mile Bike Ride Sunday

Bicycle riders can choose routes as short as 25 miles and as long as 100 miles in a ride Sunday.

The ride, sponsored by the Wheeling Wheelmen, will begin at the Carl Sandburg School on Schoenbeck Road in Wheeling. Registration is at 6:30 a.m.

The entire 100-mile route will take cyclists through Barrington Hills, Algonqu and McHenry to Hebron and then back to Wheeling. Riders who want a shorter route can travel a 25-mile or 50-mile section of the complete route.

The ride is staged in connection with bicycling's National Century Month and riders who complete the 100-mile route will receive a clothing patch from the League of American Wheelmen.

The event is open to the public. The registration fee is 25 cents for the shorter rides and 50 cents for the 100-mile ride.

The cost of taking part in the "Century" mile and receiving the patch is $1.

The Wheeling Wheelmen will also sponsor a ride to the Long Grove area beginning at Sandburg School at 1 p.m. Sept. 18, and on Sept. 18 the club will have a ride to the North Shore starting at Heritage Park, Wheeling, at 1 p.m.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,900-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 18.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

For Those Away From Home

GRADES AT WHEELING High School averaged the same under the new modular scheduling system and the traditional system. However with good students doing better, and poor ones worse, more students got A's and more got F's under the new system than under the old one. Modular scheduling gives students more free time.

LESS THAN 100 Wheeling and Buffalo Grove youths have taken advantage of the new 18 year old voting age. About 1,500 18, 19, and 20 year olds in the two villages will be eligible to vote in the 1972 election, if they register. Only seven per cent have registered.

THREE HUNDRED buildings — most of them single-family houses — have been completed in Buffalo Grove this year. The village has issued 429 building permits for construction valued at $10,700,000 this year and a village official said construction is "much better than last year."

A MENTAL HEALTH clinic received a $1,500 check from the village of Wheeling, the first part of a $5,000 contribution the village will make in fiscal 1971-72. The money went to the community mental health clinic at Wheeling High School. It is the successor to the TORCH Mental Health Clinic.

AN AMBULANCE went into service in Buffalo Grove last Friday. The Buffalo

Grove Fire Department will use it to make emergency calls in the Cook County section of the village. The Long Grove fire department covers the Lake County section. The phone number for ambulance service is 537-5533.

THE HOTLINE proposed for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove came nearer to reality when $1,300 — $300 over the goal — was donated to a tag day by area residents. The crisis phone is expected to begin operations next month, according to officials of HELP, Inc., the volunteer agency which sponsors the project.

ABOUT 900 STUDENTS began school in Lake County Dist. 26 last week while students in Cook County Dist. 21 spent one last week on vacation. Their classes begin today.

FREE BUS RIDES for some Dist. 21 students were eliminated when the district discovered that they lived less than a mile and a half from school. The district used a new method to measure bus routes this year. The rides are free to children who live beyond the mile and a half limit.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE student Anita Komarek arrived at O'Hare Airport at 1:08 a.m. last Tuesday, just 24 hours later than expected. Her hosts became concerned when the Bolivian high school student failed to show up. A misunderstanding over dates caused the mixup.

Unfinished Project Prompts School Contingency Plans

Unfinished remodeling at Douglas MacArthur School in Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 has forced the school board to set up a contingency plan when school opens there today.

School officials indicated the remodeling project may be completed no sooner than November, though some parts of the work may be finished sooner. The project includes construction of a new gymnasium, a theater and four new classrooms. The former gymnasium is being converted into a library. A second floor with classrooms will also be part of the revamped gymnasium.

At a meeting Wednesday, the school board approved a contingency plan to be used at the junior high school until the construction is completed.

The construction area will be sealed off to prevent students from wandering into hazardous areas. The transformer in the addition will remain disconnected for safety reasons.

TWO REMODELED classrooms and two new seminar rooms will be ready for occupancy this week. The other remodeled areas and the addition will not be ready. Room assignments will be temporarily switched until the new rooms are completed. One homeroom will meet in the cafeteria and another in the study hall. The learning disabilities class will be held at neighboring Anne Sullivan School.

According to Gerald McGovern, MacArthur principal, two of the biggest problems will be lack of storage space for furniture to be used in the new rooms and lack of space for physical education classes.

The contingency plan calls for using the gym at Sullivan School for the eighth grade varsity basketball team. The multi-purpose room at Dwight Eisenhower School will be used for the seventh grade varsity basketball team. The practices will be held after 3 p.m.

On bad weather days the regular physical education classes will be held in "whatever room is empty," said McGovern. "We hope the new gymnasium classroom will be ready early so that it can be used until the gym is completed."

"THE LIBRARY will become available for storage purposes no later than Sept. 17," said McGovern. The contractors are expected to begin pouring the cement floor in the old gym this week.

The contingency plan will be explained to the students in general assemblies today. At the end of the day, the students will be given bulletins, explaining the situation, to be taken home to their parents.

Young Adult Group Given OK To Use Neptune's Pool

The Wheeling Park District Board voted Thursday to allow participants in Wheeling High School's Young Adult Education Program to use Neptune's Pool as a part of the night school curriculum.

The program is for young adults ages 18 to 23 who want to complete their high school education.

Henry Blim, director of the program, had asked if the park district would allow the use of the pool on five or six Friday nights for the program. He had asked if reduced rates could be given so the school wouldn't have to pay 50 cents per student to use the pool.

The use of the pool by the students would not interfere with the regular open swim held on Friday evenings, park board members learned.

District Aquatic Dir. Ray Kittendorf suggested that the district charge the school 50 per cent of the normal fee.

The board decided instead to charge the school 50 cents per student. It noted that for swimmers age 19 and older the normal fee would be 75 cents and that for students living outside the park district boundaries the normal fee would be $1.50.

Commissioners Gene Sackett, Alf Wilson and Robert Ross voted in favor of the reduced rate and Comr. Lorraine Lark abstained from the vote.

School Board Seeks More Park 'Pact' Cooperation

Members of the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board are calling for more cooperation from the Prospect Heights Park Board in carrying out their mutual agreement.

The agreement requires the park district to maintain and improve school grounds in the park district in return for free use of those school grounds and buildings. At a meeting Wednesday, school board member John Stull said apparently there is confusion about the park district's responsibility in the agreement.

Last month Diane Guarniere, president of the Eisenhower School PTA, complained to the board that weeds on the east end of the school site have not been cut all summer. She said the high weeds make it difficult for Camp McDonald Road motorists to see children walking along the path by the side of the road at the school.

"We expected the park district to cut the weeds," said Stull. After the parents complained, the school district contracted someone to cut the weeds. Neither the school district nor the park district have the necessary equipment to cut high weeds.

BILL KUHN, president of the park board, said he interpreted the agreement to mean the park district is obligated to maintain "school grounds that are being used." The east end of the Eisenhower site is currently unused. The park district plans to develop the land as a major park.

Stull said he plans to study the agreement to determine exactly what is the obligation of each party. "It may be necessary to discontinue the free use of buildings to the park district (use of buildings and grounds) if they don't cooperate with us. Or it may be that the problem is strictly on the surface."

Palatine Man First Fatality

A 26-year-old Palatine man became the first fatality of the Labor Day weekend when his car crashed head-on into another car on Quentin Road, north of Rte. 68, at midnight Friday.

The man was identified as John Bastian, of 647 E. Baldwin.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Bastian was trying to pass another motorist, when he collided with a car driven by Cindy Daczewicz, 18, of 525 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights.

Police said Bastian swerved to avoid the oncoming car, but not in time. The accident happened at Quentin Road near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Miss Daczewicz was taken to Northwest Community Hospital with multiple contusions, lacerations and a fractured nose. As of Monday morning, she was listed in good condition by the hospital.

Police said she said she didn't see Bastian in time to swerve away.

In Elk Grove Village Friday afternoon an 8-year-old boy, Ronald Bartlett, 200 Kingsbridge, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident.

The boy, according to police, was riding his bike in front of his home when a car swerved into him and then kept going. Young Bartlett suffered only an abrasion to his left arm, which was treated at home, but police said they are investigating the accident.

ELSEWHERE in the Northwest suburbs during the holiday weekend, traffic accidents were limited to fender benders without injuries.

Illinois State Police reported no serious accidents on the Northwest Tollway as of Monday afternoon. A spokesman said traffic on the tollway was very heavy Saturday, slackened Sunday and was expected to be very heavy again Monday evening, as weary motorists drove home at the end of the holiday.

At noon Monday, 480 persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents around the nation. The National Safety Council predicted earlier that from 600 to 700 persons would be killed in cars before the Labor Day holiday ended at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The council also predicted that 24,000 to 28,000 persons would be injured in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

WHILE TRADITIONAL Labor Day traffic placed heavy burdens on the roads, area golf courses also were feeling the extra holiday rush as suburbanites tried to take advantage of the long weekend.

At Arlington Country Club on Dundee Road, there was a 45-minute wait with several hundred golfers on the course at noon.

At the Mount Prospect Country Club course run by the park district, golfers reported a solid stream of players since daybreak, a 3½-hour wait for tee off at 11:30 a.m., and nearly 200 golfers on the course.

At Nordic Hills near Roselle, golfers had a two-hour wait, while at the Buffalo Grove Country Club there was a 45-minute wait and more than 100 players on the course.

A spokesman at the Palatine Hills course said they were keeping on schedule for players with reserved tee-off times, but "walk-ons" who had no reservations had a considerable wait.

Outlying courses such as Bonnie Dundee near Carpentersville had no waiting at all, and at Rob Roy in Prospect Heights a woman said "if you can get out here in 15 minutes you can get on, but after that I don't guarantee anything."

Ruley Named Superintendent

The Wheeling Park District Board of Commissioners named Bob Ruley acting superintendent for the district at a meeting Thursday.

Ruley, maintenance superintendent for the district, was appointed to fill the post while Supt. Ferd Arndt is recuperating from a recent heart attack.

Commissioner Lorraine Lark, in suggesting Ruley for the post, explained he was given the post because of his tenure with, and knowledge of the district. The board also voted to make Dist. Atty. Roger Bjorvik acting secretary until Arndt returns.

Board members stressed Ruley would still perform his duties as maintenance superintendent and that Recreation Director Bruce Coleman and Aquatic Director Ray Kittendorf would continue to supervise their sections of the district.

The board also voted to pay Arndt his full salary during his illness and said his time off will not be deducted from his vacation.

Correction

The percentage of salary increases for two Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 officials was incorrectly stated in Friday's Herald. The salary of Asst. Supt. Tom Rich was raised about 7.8 per cent from $17,750 to $19,000. A 10.5 per cent salary increase, from $21,000 to $23,000 was granted to Supt. Edward Grodzky. The correct percentages mean two principals and the district's business manager received larger raises on a percentage basis.

THIS BOX IS part of the equipment used by the United States Geological Survey to measure water flowing in Buffalo Creek in northeastern Buffalo Grove.

Survey Measures Water Flow

Did you ever drive on the bridge on Aptakisic Road over Buffalo Creek and notice a green cylindrical-shaped structure on the road side?

It's part of the equipment used by the United States Geological Survey to measure the water flowing in Buffalo Creek.

According to Al Noehre, of the geological survey, the equipment is used to "measure the stages of the river to provide a continuous record for one year. It records the high and low flow."

He said the stream gauge is serviced

monthly and the data published annually.

"You have to have a record on any stream to know what you're working with," Noehre said.

He said the data collected is used by developers and consultants for planning purposes.

"It is also used for zoning purposes, if you want to keep people from building in the flood plane," Noehre explained.

According to Noehre, a digital recorder is used which provides tapes that are fed into a computer in the central office in Oak Park.

'Need Low-Income Housing'

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Low and moderate-income housing is a "requirement" for the growth of Arlington Heights, according to an unexpected stand taken by the president of the village's Chamber of Commerce.

Edward "Bud" Mills told members of the low and moderate-income housing study committee Thursday night the attraction of more industry to the village and the availability of a wide cost range of housing are directly related.

Developments for low and moderate-income families will help to attract more industry and office buildings which will "help everyone's tax bills," the Chamber president said.

Mills' speech marked the first time the local group of businessmen have taken any public comments on the housing issue which has been boiling in Arlington Heights for almost 16 months.

The needs which are not being met presently in the village include housing for newly married couples, senior citizens and blue collar workers, Mills commented. Developments can be properly planned so that "we don't have shacks."

The housing is needed "if you want the workers to come in here and build up your industrial tax base," Mills said.

In answering a question, Mills said that housing is needed for not only moderate-income families but also low-income families.

Committee member Alice Harms, who is also on the Arlington Heights Village Board, said she knew the Chamber of Commerce was interested in a healthy economic attitude in the village and asked Mills if low and moderate-income housing might help some of the local businesses.

"It would probably help a great number of them," Mills said and then commented he didn't think the village has lost any business because of a lack of employees. "But we haven't gained many either," he added.

Committee member David Patterson asked if there wasn't enough housing available in areas around Arlington Heights for low and moderate-income housing.

Mills said the lack of housing close to where people work was not a "major" problem but availability of more housing would be helpful to present and future businesses.

Mills was one of about 15 representatives of Arlington Heights groups who spoke at last week's hearing called specifically to judge local attitudes towards the possibility of building low and moderate-income housing. The study committee was formed early this year to study the need for such housing and, if a need exists, recommend to the village board the best way to fulfill the need.

Kindergarten Kids To Take First Tests

Can your 5 year old identify colors and shapes. School Dist. 23 will find out on Sept. 13 when it gives its kindergarten students their first test.

If your kindergarten-age child is weak in one area of learning, he will be placed in a group that will receive special attention in that area. If your child has mastered another area, such as counting, he won't have to go over it again.

"The main aim of the test is to find out what the children know, so we can do a better job of teaching them," said Mrs. Roger Wingert, a district resident who initiated the test.

The project began last spring, after Mrs. Wingert, a doctorate candidate, visited district kindergarten classes. "I felt the children knew more than the teachers were giving them credit for. I thought it would be better to find out what the children know in the beginning so they won't have to repeat anything."

MRS. WINGERT WORKED with three elementary school principals, James Finke, Esther Pearson and Mary Hyczyk, to design the test. They started with a test used at the district's Betsy Ross School in past years. This test concentrated on manual and visual skills such as matching.

The final product concentrates on the child's knowledge of conceptual skills such as counting and identifying shapes. According to Asst. Tom Rich this is not the first test developed to group kindergarten children, but it is "one of the most sophisticated in the area."

At each school the test will be administered by groups of three former teachers who still live in the district and volunteered to participate in the project.

It will take the teachers approximately 10 minutes to test each child. In addition to shapes and number, the children will also be tested on colors, letters, and sentence completion.

According to Mrs. Wingert and school officials the average kindergarten child today knows more than the kindergarten children did several years ago. They say this is due to more parental awareness of preschool learning and to more emphasis on the media, especially, television on preschool children.

"SESAME STREET" a new TV program, has had one of the greatest effects on preschoolers, according to the school officials. Last spring Mrs. Wingert distributed a questionnaire to district parents, asking them what their children had learned from the program. Results from that survey showed that children who watched "Sesame Street" are better prepared for kindergarten. However, Mrs. Wingert said the questionnaire is not as accurate as testing the children.

the study of the housing issue has been set for Oct. 15.

In addition to Mills, a few other representatives of groups urged the building of low and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights. Included among the advocates was Jeannie Christopher, housing counselor for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

However, most of the other speakers in one way or another said their groups were opposed to low and moderate-income housing developments which might be built in the village.

Police Inspection Brings Rerouting Of School Buses

by JOANN VAN WYE

Inspections and reprimands by five different police departments concerning overcrowded school buses have resulted in the complete rerouting of buses in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Reports from angry parents about children being forced to sit as many as four abreast in a bus seat and stand in the aisles, resulted in inspections by the Illinois State Police, Cook County Sheriff's Dept., Rolling Meadows police, Palatine police and Hoffman Estates police.

All but Hoffman Estates police found the parents complaints legitimate and contacted Dist. 15 officials to correct the situation.

Warning citations were issued to bus drivers Thursday at Willow Bend and Central Road schools by the Rolling Meadows police. Police Chief Lewis Case called the tickets "reminders to the drivers that they cannot overload."

CASE SAID STUDENTS were prevented from boarding overcrowded buses on Thursday and other buses were called to transport the students home. By Friday the situation had been corrected at schools in Rolling Meadows, according to Case.

Palatine Lt. Edward Campenu said buses at Hunting Ridge School were found to exceed the 66 capacity by as many as 20 students on Thursday. Palatine police made spot checks of buses at various schools on Friday and found the problem alleviated.

Two buses were stopped Friday in the Winston Knolls subdivision of Hoffman Estates but neither was found to have more than the 66 capacity, according to Hoffman Estates Lt. William Freund.

Mrs. Kenneth Erickson, one of the parents instrumental in bringing about the police inspections, said she called the police only after getting the "run around" from the principals, director of transportation and central administration of the office.

"They kept telling me it was the first week of school and to have patience, but I am not a patient person," said Mrs. Erickson. "The overcrowded conditions were just too much to ask of the children in 90 degree weather."

"I don't blame the bus drivers, in fact I feel sorry for them," said Mrs. Erickson.

WALT TINSLEY, director of transportation for Dist. 15 confirmed reports the buses had been overloaded but said the situation had been alleviated on Friday and the district was continuing to work to improve the transportation.

The problem resulted primarily from larger enrollments than originally anticipated and more people wanting bus service than planned, according to Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka, who said transportation is always the major problem at the beginning of the school year.

Shortage of bus drivers also contributed to the transportation problems, Kiszka said. He explained the district was short four drivers because two were on vacation and two in the hospital.

Tinsley said new drivers were being used to fill the vacancies. This created problems because drivers were being forced to take routes they were not familiar with.

Reports of a shortage of equipment and drivers were denied by Tinsley. The district employs 57 drivers and runs 134 routes each day.

AT WILLOW BEND School, Tinsley said construction on Barker Avenue had created problems. He explained that students were forced to walk from the school to Central Road to board the bus, causing a delay in the bus schedule of 10 minutes that set off a chain reaction of delays throughout the system.

Dissension within the ranks of the bus drivers also contributed to the problems, according to Tinsley. He said he had five bus drivers trying to run the transportation department and they would be replaced as soon as possible.

Tinsley denied reports from parents that students had not been dropped off until after 6 p.m. He said he personally waits until the last school bus is in and the latest for all the buses to return has been 5:30 p.m. which was on the first day of school. The district tries to have all the buses back to Stuart Paddock School by 4:30 p.m. or earlier.

"These people who are doing all the complaining are welcome to earn a few extra dollars and come drive one of the school buses. They would get a quick education," said Tinsley.

Ends Active Duty

ATN-A Curtis J. Keller of 1395 S. Broadway, Palatine, has recently returned from two weeks active duty in Rota, Spain with Squadron VR 51-3 from Naval Air Station, Glenview, Ill.

ONLY STRIKES WILL BE THROWN at the Palatine Boys Baseball fundraising buffet, to be held Sept. 17 at 9 p.m. in the Barrington Knights of Columbus Hall, Rte. 14 and Kelsey Road. On the ballfield, however, Mrs. Buck Weaver looks like she's swinging at a wild one, thrown by Mrs. Albert Krueger. Mrs. Bob Unterreiner seems happy that her pitcher is fooling the batter so much, and ump Mrs. Jim Killian is acting her part, as she squints to see the ball.

Palatine Man, 26, First Labor Day Traffic Victim

A 26-year-old Palatine man became the first fatality of the Labor Day weekend when his car crashed head-on into another car on Quentin Road, north of Rte. 68, at midnight Friday.

The man was identified as John Bastian, of 647 E. Baldwin.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Bastian was trying to pass another motorist, when he collided with a car driven by Cindy Daczewitz, 18, of 625 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights.

Police said Bastian swerved to avoid the oncoming car, but not in time. The accident happened at Quentin Road near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Miss Daczewitz was taken to Northwestern Community Hospital with multiple contusions, lacerations and a fractured nose. As of Monday morning, she was listed in good condition by the hospital.

Police said she said she didn't see Bastian in time to swerve away.

In Elk Grove Village Friday afternoon an 8-year-old boy, Ronald Bartlett, 200 Kingsbridge, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident.

The boy, according to police, was riding his bike in front of his home when a car swerved into him and then kept going. Young Bartlett suffered only an abrasion to his left arm, which was treated at home, but police said they are investigating the accident.

ELSEWHERE in the Northwest suburbs during the holiday weekend, traffic accidents were limited to fender benders without injuries.

Illinois State Police reported no serious accidents on the Northwest Tollway as of Monday afternoon. A spokesman said traffic on the tollway was very heavy Saturday, slackened Sunday and was expected to be very heavy again Monday evening, as weary motorists drove home at the end of the holiday.

At noon Monday, 480 persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents around the nation. The National Safety Council predicted earlier that from 600 to 700 persons would be killed in cars before the Labor Day holiday ended at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The council also predicted that 24,000 to 28,000 persons would be injured in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

WHILE TRADITIONAL Labor Day

traffic placed heavy burdens on the roads, area golf courses also were feeling the extra holiday rush as suburbanites tried to take advantage of the long weekend.

At Arlington Country Club on Dundee Road, there was a 45-minute wait with several hundred golfers on the course at noon.

At the Mount Prospect Country Club course run by the park district, golfers reported a solid stream of players since daybreak, a 3½-hour wait for tee off at 11:30 a.m., and nearly 200 golfers on the course.

At Nordic Hills near Roselle, golfers had a two-hour wait, while at the Buffalo Grove Country Club there was a 45-minute wait and more than 100 players on the course.

A spokesman at the Palatine Hills course said they were keeping on schedule for players with reserved tee-off times, but "walk-ons" who had no reservations had a considerable wait.

Outlying courses such as Bonnie Dundee near Carpentersville had no waiting at all, and at Rob Roy in Prospect Heights a woman said "if you can get out here in 15 minutes you can get on, but after that I don't guarantee anything."

Part Of Rte. 14 Still Blocked

United States Rte. 14 will remain blocked off to through traffic west of Quentin Road until the end of the year as state highway crews continue a half-million dollar resurfacing and road widening project along the highway.

Major work is being done south of Lake-Cook Road where a dip in the highway is being raised two feet. The section periodically flooded after heavy storms, causing hazardous conditions for traffic.

The resurfacing project calls for the total break-up of pavement in the area of the dip, and the relandscaping of the roadbed by earthmovers, according to a spokesman for the highway department. Asphalt will be laid, but temperatures below 40 degrees will cause improper conditions for the pouring and could postpone completion until spring.

Traffic is now rerouted to Quentin Road as a detour. Although the state highway department attempted to set up Ela Road as a detour, the county highway department objected to the tonnage from heavy trucks that would be placed on the road.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,500-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

Teacher Pact
Is A Fuzzy One

by MARGE FERROLI

If teachers and board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 didn't learn anything else from seven long months of salary negotiations, they should at least now know there's got to be a better way to handle the problem.

What began as calm, rational contract talks developed into a situation that brought teachers the closest they have ever come to striking. This was quite a deviation from the original attitude of the teachers, which one negotiator had described as a "peace-loving group of teachers."

As the months dragged on with no settlement, teachers unknowingly passed the point of no return. Because they couldn't reach accord in June, the teachers gyped themselves from receiving any salary increase at all during the wage-price freeze.

So now they have an agreement, but it's a fuzzy one. Until guidelines are issued by the federal government on things like retroactive salaries and how long the freeze will last, teachers really won't know what the new contract will be giving them.

Although the freeze leaves the teachers, as well as everyone else in the county, hanging, it probably did contribute to bringing the negotiations to an end. Once things became clear there wasn't much that could be done, an agreement calling for a 7 per cent increase was reached and the talks ended.

HOWEVER, THE main question still seems to be — what took so long?

Many logical delays took place as the board and teachers awaited figures from the state legislature on the state aid formula and other financial matters. Teachers also needed time to look into the district's finances and how much it could afford to give the teachers for raises.

Vacations also took precedence to negotiations during the summer, causing sessions to be held at a rate of one every four to six weeks.

Once August came, tensions began to build. Teachers and board members seemed to hold tighter to their own positions, and parents and students stood by wondering whether schools would have teachers in the classrooms Aug. 30.

Because board members and teachers have such vested interests in the amounts of salaries, it's easy for negotiations to become emotionally entangled, and, consequently, prolonged. Teachers have to pay their own personal bills with the salaries received from the district, and board members have to pay the bills of the school district. Each naturally has to look out for itself.

But wouldn't it be easier and quicker to have a third, impartial group or individual look out for both sides? Teachers and board members could present their needs to a third party throughout negotiations, yet not be so directly involved as to hopelessly snarl the talks.

Contract negotiations for many other professional groups in the country call in outside mediators to handle their salary disputes. It seems logical for school districts to do the same to save wear and tear for both sides.

Teenagers Can Now 'Bridge' The Gap

A "switchboard" for teens to call if they have questions or problems will open tonight at The Bridge, the Palatine Township-Arlington Heights Youth Services Bureau.

"Anytime kids have a problem and can't come here, they'll now be able to call up and get answers and advice from trained volunteers," Mrs. Cynthia Sherly, Bridge staff worker, said.

Mrs. Sherly also said the nurse on loan from the Cook County Department of Public Health, Esther Culp, would remain with the Bridge indefinitely on a half-time basis. Miss Culp, who had a 10-week trial period will split her time between the Bridge and a similar Des Plaines organization.

The switchboard will be open from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and 8 p.m. to midnight Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, Mrs. Sherly said.

TEENS CAN still drop into the Bridge anytime they want, she said. Officially, the hours are 1:30 to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 p.m. to midnight Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but Mrs. Sherly said someone is usually there at other hours, as well. The Bridge is located at 434½ E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Volunteers for the switchboard are still needed, Mrs. Sherly said. These volunteers all go through training from the Bridge workers, Mrs. Sherly and Mrs. Florence Anderson, and also get medical advice from Miss Culp.

Volunteers must work at least one night a week, and donate their time for only one month at a time. At the end of the month, Mrs. Sherly said, they may volunteer for another month, but never have to promise more time than that.

Fifteen area residents have volunteered so far, she said.

While the staff workers, nurse and volunteers are available to help teens with problems, Mrs. Sherly stressed that the Bridge also has a drop-in center, fully adorned with pillows, mod art on the walls, stereo and records, where teens can gather.

ACCORDING TO Bridge director Emerson Thomas, Miss Culp will serve in three areas: to develop new health services geared to youth, to act as a health resource for the community, and to act as a training resource for the existing Bridge staff.

Miss Culp, 23, is a graduate of North

Park College in Chicago with a bachelor of science degree in nursing. She has worked with the county health office in the Hanover Township area.

Mrs. Sherly also said the Bridge hopefully will soon be adding three new staff workers for full-time counseling. One position is open due to the resignation of Dennis Morgan, a teacher at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, and two new positions to serve Arlington Heights exclusively could be opened tonight.

The Arlington Heights Village Board tonight is expected to approve a request from the Bridge for $21,000 to hire the two workers. If approved, the grant will be pro-rated to the end of the village's fiscal year, April 30, 1972.

Last week, the board's finance committee recommended the village approve the request.

'Low-Cost Housing
Needed For Growth'

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Low and moderate-income housing is a "requirement" for the growth of Arlington Heights, according to an unexpected stand taken by the president of the village's Chamber of Commerce.

Edward "Bud" Mills told members of the low and moderate-income housing study committee Thursday night the attraction of more industry to the village and the availability of a wide cost range of housing are directly related.

Developments for low and moderate-income families will help to attract more industry and office buildings which will "help everyone's tax bills," the Chamber president said.

Mills' speech marked the first time the local group of businessmen have taken any public comments on the housing issue which has been boiling in Arlington Heights for almost 16 months.

The needs which are not being met presently in the village include housing for newly married couples, senior citizens and blue collar workers, Mills commented. Developments can be properly planned so that "we don't have shacks."

The housing is needed "if you want the workers to come in here and build up your industrial tax base," Mills said.

In answering a question, Mills said that housing is needed for not only moderate-income families but also low-income families.

Committee member Alice Harms, who is also on the Arlington Heights Village Board, said she knew the Chamber of Commerce was interested in a healthy economic attitude in the village and asked Mills if low and moderate-income housing might help some of the local businesses.

"It would probably help a great number of them," Mills said and then commented he didn't think the village has lost any business because of a lack of employees. "But we haven't gained many either," he added.

Committee member David Patterson asked if there wasn't enough housing available in areas around Arlington Heights for low and moderate-income housing.

Mills said the lack of housing close to where people work was not a "major" problem but availability of more housing would be helpful to present and future businesses.

Mills was one of about 15 representatives of Arlington Heights groups who spoke at last week's hearing called specifically to judge local attitudes towards the possibility of building low and moderate-income housing. The study committee was formed early this year to study the need for such housing and, if a need exists, recommend to the village board the best way to fulfill the need.

The committee includes members of the village board and plan commission. A deadline for the committee's report on the study of the housing issue has been set for Oct. 15.

In addition to Mills, a few other representatives of groups urged the building of low and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights. Included among the advocates was Jeannie Christopher, housing counselor for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

However, most of the other speakers in one way or another said their groups were opposed to low and moderate-income housing developments which might be built in the village.

All Catherine Memorial
Patients Are Evacuated

All tenants at the Catherine Memorial room and board home have been evacuated to comply with a Rolling Meadows City Council order to vacate the building because it is a health hazard.

The city ordinance and judiciary committee, which initiated the action to vacate the wood-framed building on Meacham Road in June, announced all the former 15 residents have been moved.

An inspection of the facility in May revealed numerous fire and building code violations, and owner Duane Jacobson was given 30 days to repair the structure or remove the tenants. Jacobson determined extensive improvements would be too costly, and has removed the persons to other homes.

Catherine Memorial was annexed to Rolling Meadows four months ago with the understanding a new shelter care facility would be built. However, the date for construction of a new facility is uncertain because Jacobson said he has had problems with financing.

Original plans were for a 161-bed home but Jacobson now has proposed a smaller unit with a second phase of construction at a later date.

City officials will allow a caretaker to live at the home this winter, after certain building code violations are solved.

Inspections of the home began soon after annexation to Rolling Meadows. Health Officer John Schultz found many physical deficiencies including improper fire exits, poor painting and kitchen defects. Fire Marshal Thomas Fogarty discovered more than a dozen fire code violations and building officials said they found more than 25 violations.

Park Board OKs Recreation Program

A flexible fall and winter recreation program schedule, including eight new programs, has been approved by the Rolling Meadows Park District Board of Commissioners.

Steve Peterson, director of recreation, told the board the two separate sessions were being eliminated because some programs don't fit into an eight-week session, and there is not enough demand to continuously be repeating other programs.

Peterson explained: we have tried to make a solid and interesting program for all age groups that, with interest, will let some programs continue longer, and enable new sessions to begin.

The buildings in which to hold the programs have been secured, but there are still a few specialist teachers needed. Peterson told the board the fees had been held the same as last year except in the case of some programs that had been extended in length.

NEW PROGRAMS include powder puff basketball for girls in fifth through eighth grades on Wednesday and Friday from 3:45 to 5 p.m. in the sports complex starting Nov. 17 and running through Dec. 15. A $2 fee will be collected at registration. Another new basketball program is for adults over 30. The program will be held every Wednesday from 6 to 10 p.m. at Carl Sandburg School starting Nov. 10 and ending March 30. The fee will be determined by the number of teams and games scheduled.

Bowling will be offered for the first time every Sunday at 11:30 a.m. The program begins Sept. 28 and runs through to Feb. 27. A $2 registration fee is required plus a $1.50 charge per session.

Offered for the first time at the complex will be cheerleading and midge olympics. Cheerleading will be every Tuesday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. starting Oct. 19 and ending Dec. 14. The fee is $2. Midge olympics for students in fourth fifth and sixth grades will be on Tuesday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. starting Nov. 16 and ending Jan. 11. The fee is $3.

CRAFTS WILL be offered in the north meeting room every Monday from 3:45 to 5:15 p.m. starting Jan. 10 and ending

Feb. 23. Charge for the course, which is for students in the upper elementary grades, is $4.

Women's competition volleyball is also new this year. It is hoped two teams can be formed to meet Thursdays from 8 to 10 p.m. at the complex. The teams would meet from Sept. 16 to March 9. Basic drawing will be offered every Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the meeting room starting Nov. 2 and ending Dec. 15. The fee is $5.

NEARLY 40 OTHER programs offered last year will be continued again this

Personal Property Tax
Schedules Coming Soon

Palatine Township residents should be receiving their personal property tax schedules sometime within the next two weeks, according to township assessor Bernard Pedersen.

Pedersen reported, at the Township Board of Auditors meeting Thursday night that the county assessor's office had notified township assessors that they would again be responsible for distributing the schedules.

Although Illinois voters nullified the personal property tax in a referendum last year, the Illinois Supreme Court declared the referendum unconstitutional since it discriminates against corporations by retaining the corporate property tax.

Illinois Atty. General William Scott has said he might take the case to the U. S. Supreme Court, but until he does the tax stands.

THE TOWN board also approved a motion by Township Sup. Howard Olsen to create a township cemetery advisory committee. The board decided at its last meeting to ask the township electors to create a township cemetery board at the electors' next meeting in April.

Such a board, Olsen said, would oversee maintenance of any cemeteries in the township that had either been deserted or were no longer wanted by the owners.

The advisory committee would have three members, the same number as the cemetery board would have, Olsen said. The advisory committee would serve until the board was established, he said, and would investigate the present status of cemeteries, who owns them and how the board would gain title to them, and the costs and needs of the cemeteries.

By laying the groundwork now, when no work can be done on the cemeteries because of the winter, the cemetery board can get right to work when they are elected, Olsen said.

Olsen said he expects to make the recommendations for the advisory committee at the next meeting of the board of auditors. Because most of the cemeteries are outside the Palatine village limits, he said, he would probably recommend two residents of unincorporated areas and one village resident.

OLSEN SAID it was "quite conceivable that if the advisory board members do a good job they will be elected to the cemetery board in April. I'm going to try and find three people who will want to do it, who will want to get the satisfaction of knowing the dead are properly taken care of, because nobody is going to do the job for the money. State law says cemetery-board members can only get paid $50 a year."

The board of auditors also voted to have the roof on the old portion of the Town Hall refinished and to paint the trim on the old building. Olsen said more work will be done inside the Town Hall later as part of the $19,500 remodeling program approved when the new portion of the hall was built.

Police Inspection Brings Rerouting Of School Buses

by JOANN VAN WYE

Inspections and reprimands by five different police departments concerning overcrowded school buses have resulted in the complete rerouting of buses in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Reports from angry parents about children being forced to sit as many as four abreast in a bus seat and stand in the aisles, resulted in inspections by the Illinois State Police, Cook County Sheriff's Dept., Rolling Meadows police, Palatine police and Hoffman Estates police.

All but Hoffman Estates police found the parents complaints legitimate and contacted Dist. 15 officials to correct the situation.

Warning citations were issued to bus drivers Thursday at Willow Bend and Central Road schools by the Rolling Meadows police. Police Chief Lewis Case called the tickets "reminders to the drivers that they cannot overload."

CASE SAID STUDENTS were prevented from boarding overcrowded buses on Thursday and other buses were called to transport the students home. By Friday the situation had been corrected at schools in Rolling Meadows, according to Case.

Palatine Lt. Edward Campeau said buses at Hunting Ridge School were found to exceed the 66 capacity by as many as 20 students on Thursday. Palatine police made spot checks of buses at various schools on Friday and found the problem alleviated.

Two buses were stopped Friday in the Winston Knolls subdivision of Hoffman Estates but neither was found to have more than the 66 capacity, according to Hoffman Estates Lt. William Freund.

Mrs. Kenneth Erickson, one of the parents instrumental in bringing about the police inspections, said she called the police only after getting the "run around" from the principals, director of transportation and central administration office.

"They kept telling me it was the first week of schools and to have patience, but I am not a patient person," said Mrs. Erickson. "The overcrowded conditions were just too much to ask of the children in 90 degree weather."

"I don't blame the bus drivers, in fact I feel sorry for them," said Mrs. Erickson.

WALT TINSLEY, director of transportation for Dist. 15 confirmed reports the buses had been overloaded but said the situation had been alleviated on Friday and the district was continuing to work to improve the transportation.

The problem resulted primarily from larger enrollments than originally anticipated and more people wanting bus service than planned, according to Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka, who said transportation is always the major problem at the beginning of the school year.

Shortage of bus drivers also contributed to the transportation problems, Kiszka said. He explained the district was short four drivers because two were on vacation and two in the hospital.

Tinsley said new drivers were being used to fill the vacancies. This created problems because drivers were being forced to take routes they were not familiar with.

Reports of a shortage of equipment and drivers were denied by Tinsley. The district employs 57 drivers and runs 134 routes each day.

AT WILLOW BEND School, Tinsley said construction on Barker Avenue had created problems. He explained that students were forced to walk from the school to Central Road to board the bus, causing a delay in the bus schedule of 10 minutes that set off a chain reaction of delays throughout the system.

Dissension within the ranks of the bus drivers also contributed to the problems, according to Tinsley. He said he had five bus drivers trying to run the transportation department and they would be replaced as soon as possible.

Tinsley denied reports from parents that students had not been dropped off until after 6 p.m. He said he personally waits until the last school bus is in and the latest for all the buses to return has been 5:30 p.m. which was on the first day of school. The district tries to have all the buses back to Stuart Paddock School by 4:30 p.m. or earlier.

"These people who are doing all the complaining are welcome to earn a few extra dollars and come drive one of the school buses. They would get a quick education," said Tinsley.

Some Merchants May Face Hike In License Fees

Some Rolling Meadows merchants may face increased business license fees next year.

A comparison of business license fees with nearby Palatine and Arlington Heights shows some of the Rolling Meadows licenses cost less. A city council committee is evaluating the licensing policy and adjustment of the cost is expected by next March, the date licenses are renewed.

Palatine Man, 26, First Labor Day Traffic Victim

A 26-year-old Palatine man became the first fatality of the Labor Day weekend when his car crashed head-on into another car on Quentin Road, north of Rte. 68, at midnight Friday.

The man was identified as John Bastian, of 647 E. Baldwin.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Bastian was trying to pass another motorist, when he collided with a car driven by Cindy Daczewitz, 18, of 625 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights.

Police said Bastian swerved to avoid the oncoming car, but not in time. The accident happened at Quentin Road near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Miss Daczewitz was taken to Northwest Community Hospital with multiple contusions, lacerations and a fractured nose. As of Monday morning, she was listed in good condition by the hospital.

Police said she said she didn't see Bastian in time to swerve away.

In Elk Grove Village Friday afternoon an 8-year-old boy, Ronald Bartlett, 200 Kingsbridge, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident.

The boy, according to police, was riding his bike in front of his home when a car swerved into him and then kept going. Young Bartlett suffered only an abrasion to his left arm, which was treated at home, but police said they are investigating the accident.

ELSEWHERE in the Northwest suburbs during the holiday weekend, traffic accidents were limited to fender benders without injuries.

Illinois State Police reported no serious accidents on the Northwest Tollway as of Monday afternoon. A spokesman said traffic on the tollway was very heavy Saturday, slackened Sunday and was expected to be very heavy again Monday evening, as weary motorists drove home at the end of the holiday.

At noon Monday, 480 persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents around the nation. The National Safety Council predicted earlier that from 600 to 700 persons would be killed in cars before the Labor Day holiday ended at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The council also predicted that 24,000 to 28,000 persons would be injured in the 74-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

WHILE TRADITIONAL Labor Day traffic placed heavy burdens on the roads, area golf courses also were feeling the extra holiday rush as suburbanites tried to take advantage of the long weekend.

At Arlington Country Club on Dundee Road, there was a 45-minute wait with several hundred golfers on the course at noon.

At the Mount Prospect Country Club course run by the park district, golfers reported a solid stream of players since daybreak, a 3½-hour wait for tee off at 11:30 a.m., and nearly 200 golfers on the course.

At Nordic Hills near Roselle, golfers had a two-hour wait, while at the Buffalo Grove Country Club there was a 45-minute wait and more than 100 players on the course.

A spokesman at the Palatine Hills course said they were keeping on schedule for players with reserved tee-off times, but "walk-ons" who had no reservations had a considerable wait.

Outlying courses such as Bonnie Dundee near Carpentersville had no waiting at all, and at Rob Roy in Prospect Heights a woman said "if you can get out here in 15 minutes you can get on, but after that I don't guarantee anything."

Part Of Rte. 14 Still Blocked

United States Rte. 14 will remain blocked off to through traffic west of Quentin Road until the end of the year as state highway crews continue a half-million dollar resurfacing and road widening project along the highway.

Major work is being done south of Lake-Cook Road where a dip in the highway is being raised two feet. The section periodically flooded after heavy storms, causing hazardous conditions for traffic.

The resurfacing project calls for the total break-up of pavement in the area of the dip, and the resurfacing of the roadbed by earthmovers, according to a spokesman for the highway department. Asphalt will be laid, but temperatures below 40 degrees will cause improper conditions for the pouring and could postpone completion until spring.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,500-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

Teacher Pact
Is A Fuzzy One

by MARGE FERROLI

If teachers and board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 didn't learn anything else from seven long months of salary negotiations, they should at least now know there's got to be a better way to handle the problem.

What began as calm, rational contract talks developed into a situation that brought teachers the closest they have ever come to striking. This was quite a deviation from the original attitude of the teachers, which one negotiator had described as a "peace-loving group of teachers."

As the months dragged on with no settlement, teachers unknowingly passed the point of no return. Because they couldn't reach accord in June, the teachers gyped themselves from receiving any salary increase at all during the wage-price freeze.

So now they have an agreement, but it's a fuzzy one. Until guidelines are issued by the federal government on things like retroactive salaries and how long the freeze will last, teachers really won't know what the new contract will be giving them.

Although the freeze leaves the teachers, as well as everyone else in the county, hanging, it probably did contribute to bringing the negotiations to an end. Once things became clear there wasn't much that could be done, an agreement calling for a 7 per cent increase was reached and the talks ended.

HOWEVER, THE main question still seems to be — what took so long?

Many logical delays took place as the board and teachers awaited figures from the state legislature on the state aid formula and other financial matters. Teachers also needed time to look into the district's finances and how much it could afford to give the teachers for raises.

Vacations also took precedence to negotiations during the summer, causing sessions to be held at a rate of one every four to six weeks.

Once August came, tensions began to build. Teachers and board members seemed to hold tighter to their own positions, and parents and students stood by wondering whether schools would have teachers in the classrooms Aug. 30.

Because board members and teachers have such vested interests in the amounts of salaries, it's easy for negotiations to become emotionally entangled, and, consequently, prolonged. Teachers have to pay their own personal bills with the salaries received from the district, and board members have to pay the bills of the school district. Each naturally has to look out for itself.

But wouldn't it be easier and quicker to have a third, impartial group or individual look out for both sides? Teachers and board members could present their needs to a third party throughout negotiations, yet not be so directly involved as to hopelessly snarl the talks.

Contract negotiations for many other professional groups in the country call in outside mediators to handle their salary disputes. It seems logical for school districts to do the same to save wear and tear for both sides.

Teenagers Can Now 'Bridge' The Gap

A "switchboard" for teens to call if they have questions or problems will open tonight at The Bridge, the Palatine Township-Arlington Heights Youth Services Bureau.

"Anytime kids have a problem and can't come here, they'll now be able to call up and get answers and advice from trained volunteers," Mrs. Cynthia Sherry, Bridge staff worker, said.

Mrs. Sherry also said the nurse on loan from the Cook County Department of Public Health, Esther Culp, would remain with the Bridge indefinitely on a half-time basis. Miss Culp, who had a 10-week trial period will split her time between the Bridge and a similar Des Plaines organization.

days and 8 p.m. to midnight Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, Mrs. Sherry said.

TEENS CAN still drop into the Bridge anytime they want, she said. Officially, the hours are 1:30 to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 p.m. to midnight Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but Mrs. Sherry said someone is usually there at other hours, as well. The Bridge is located at 434½ E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Volunteers for the switchboard are still needed, Mrs. Sherry said. These volunteers all go through training from the Bridge workers, Mrs. Sherry and Mrs. Florence Anderson, and also get medical advice from Miss Culp.

Volunteers must work at least one night a week, and donate their time for only one month at a time. At the end of the month, Mrs. Sherry said, they may volunteer for another month, but never have to promise more time than that.

Fifteen area residents have volunteered so far, she said.

While the staff workers, nurse and volunteers are available to help teens with problems, Mrs. Sherry stressed that the Bridge also has a drop-in center, fully adorned with pillows, mod art on the walls, stereo and records, where teens can gather.

ACCORDING TO Bridge director Emerson Thomas, Miss Culp will serve in three areas: to develop new health services geared to youth, to act as a health resource for the community, and to act as a training resource for the existing Bridge staff.

Miss Culp, 23, is a graduate of North

Park College in Chicago with a bachelor of science degree in nursing. She has worked with the county health office in the Hanover Township area.

Mrs. Sherry also said the Bridge hopefully will soon be adding three new staff workers for full-time counseling. One position is open due to the resignation of Dennis Morgan, a teacher at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, and two new positions to serve Arlington Heights exclusively could be opened tonight.

The Arlington Heights Village Board tonight is expected to approve a request from the Bridge for $21,000 to hire the two workers. If approved, the grant will be prorated to the end of the village's fiscal year, April 30, 1972.

Last week, the board's finance committee recommended the village approve the request.

'Low-Cost Housing
Needed For Growth'

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Low and moderate-income housing is a "requirement" for the growth of Arlington Heights, according to an unexpected stand taken by the president of the village's Chamber of Commerce.

Edward "Bud" Mills told members of the low and moderate-income housing study committee Thursday night the attraction of more industry to the village and the availability of a wide cost range of housing are directly related.

Developments for low and moderate-income families will help to attract more industry and office buildings which will "help everyone's tax bills," the Chamber president said.

Mills' speech marked the first time the local group of businessmen have taken any public comments on the housing issue which has been boiling in Arlington Heights for almost 16 months.

The needs which are not being met presently in the village include housing for newly married couples, senior citizens and blue collar workers, Mills commented. Developments can be properly planned so that "we don't have shacks."

The housing is needed "if you want the workers to come in here and build up your industrial tax base," Mills said.

In answering a question, Mills said that housing is needed for not only moderate-income families but also low-income families.

Committee member Alice Harms, who is also on the Arlington Heights Village Board, said she knew the Chamber of Commerce was interested in a healthy economic attitude in the village and asked Mills if low and moderate-income housing might help some of the local businesses.

"It would probably help a great number of them," Mills said and then commented he didn't think the village has lost any business because of a lack of employees. "But we haven't gained many either," he added.

Committee member David Patterson asked if there wasn't enough housing available in areas around Arlington Heights for low and moderate-income housing.

Mills said the lack of housing close to where people work was not a "major" problem but availability of more housing would be helpful to present and future businesses.

Mills was one of about 15 representatives of Arlington Heights groups who spoke at last week's hearing called specifically to judge local attitudes towards the possibility of building low and moderate-income housing. The study committee was formed early this year to study the need for such housing and, if a need exists, recommend to the village board the best way to fulfill the need.

The committee includes members of the village board and plan commission. A deadline for the committee's report on the study of the housing issue has been set for Oct. 15.

In addition to Mills, a few other representatives of groups urged the building of low and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights. Included among the advocates was Jeannie Christopher, housing counselor for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

However, most of the other speakers in one way or another said their groups were opposed to low and moderate-income housing developments which might be built in the village.

All Catherine Memorial
Patients Are Evacuated

All tenants at the Catherine Memorial room and board home have been evacuated to comply with a Rolling Meadows City Council order to vacate the building because it is a health hazard.

The city ordinance and judiciary committee, which initiated the action to vacate the wood-framed building on Meacham Road in June, announced all the former 15 residents have been moved.

An inspection of the facility in May revealed numerous fire and building code violations, and owner Duane Jacobson was given 30 days to repair the structure or remove the tenants. Jacobson determined extensive improvements would be too costly, and has removed the persons to other homes.

Catherine Memorial was annexed to Rolling Meadows four months ago with the understanding a new shelter care facility would be built. However, the date for construction of a new facility is uncertain because Jacobson said he has had problems with financing.

Original plans were for a 161-bed home but Jacobson now has proposed a smaller unit with a second phase of construction at a later date.

City officials will allow a caretaker to live at the home this winter, after certain building code violations are solved.

Inspections of the home began soon after annexation to Rolling Meadows. Health Officer John Schultz found many physical deficiencies including improper fire exits, poor painting and kitchen defects. Fire Marshal Thomas Fogarty discovered more than a dozen fire code violations and building officials said they found more than 25 violations.

Park Board OKs Recreation Program

A flexible fall and winter recreation program schedule, including eight new programs, has been approved by the Rolling Meadows Park District Board of Commissioners.

Steve Person, director of recreation, told the board the two separate sessions were being eliminated because some programs don't fit into an eight-week session, and there is not enough demand to continuously be repeating other programs.

Person explained: we have tried to make a solid and interesting program for all age groups that, with interest, will let some programs continue longer, and enable new sessions to begin.

The buildings in which to hold the programs have been secured, but there are still a few specialist teachers needed. Person told the board the fees had been held the same as last year except in the case of some programs that had been extended in length.

NEW PROGRAMS include powder puff basketball for girls in fifth through eighth grades on Wednesday and Friday from 3:45 to 5 p.m. in the sports complex starting Nov. 17 and running through Dec. 15. A $2 fee will be collected at registration. Another new basketball program is for adults over 30. The program will be held every Wednesday from 6 to 10 p.m. at Carl Sandburg School starting Nov. 10 and ending March 30. The fee will be determined by the number of teams and games scheduled.

Bowling will be offered for the first time every Sunday at 11:30 a.m. The program begins Sept. 26 and runs through to Feb. 27. A $2 registration fee is required plus a $1.50 charge per session.

Offered for the first time at the complex will be cheerleading and midge olympics. Cheerleading will be every Tuesday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. starting Oct. 19 and ending Dec. 14. The fee is $2. Midge olympics for students in fourth fifth and sixth grades will be on Tuesday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. starting Nov. 16 and ending Jan. 11. The fee is $3.

CRAFTS WILL BE offered in the north meeting room every Monday from 3:45 to 5:15 p.m. starting Jan. 10 and ending

Feb. 28. Charge for the course, which is for students in the upper elementary grades, is $4.

Women's competition volleyball is also new this year. It is hoped two teams can be formed to meet Thursdays from 8 to 10 p.m. at the complex. The teams would meet from Sept. 16 to March 9. Basic drawing will be offered every Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the meeting room starting Nov. 2 and ending Dec. 15. The fee is $5.

NEARLY 40 OTHER programs offered last year will be continued again this year. Brochures containing information about the programs and registration will be sent out by the park district this month.

Personal Property Tax
Schedules Coming Soon

Palatine Township residents should be receiving their personal property tax schedules sometime within the next two weeks, according to township assessor Bernard Pedersen.

By laying the groundwork now, when no work can be done on the cemeteries because of the winter, the cemetery board can get right to work when they are elected, Olsen said.

Olsen said he expects to make the recommendations for the advisory committee at the next meeting of the board of auditors. Because most of the cemeteries are outside the Palatine village limits, he said, he would probably recommend two residents of unincorporated areas and one village resident.

OLSEN SAID it was "quite conceivable that if the advisory board members do a good job they will be elected to the cemetery board in April. I'm going to try and find three people who will want to do it, who will want to get the satisfaction of knowing the dead are properly taken care of, because nobody is going to do the job for the money State law says cemetery board members can only get paid $50 a year."

The board of auditors also voted to have the roof on the old portion of the Town Hall refinished and to paint the trim on the old building. Olsen said more work will be done inside the Town Hall later as part of the $19,500 remodeling program approved when the new portion of the hall was built.

Such a board, Olsen said, would oversee maintenance of any cemeteries in the township that had either been deserted or were no longer wanted by the owners.

The advisory committee would have three members, the same number as the cemetery board would have, Olsen said. The advisory committee would serve un-

School Bells Are Ringing

Students File Into Class With Pencils, Books Today

Armed with lunchboxes, sharpened pencils and new notebooks, thousands of students will file into the classroom today as school bells ring in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights.

More than 3,000 children are expected to fill the classrooms of seven schools in Mount Prospect Dist. 57. "We may have some overcrowding or we may end up eliminating a class," said Supt. Eric Sahlberg. "It all depends on enrollment."

There will be fewer classes in the district because of the 25½ fewer teaching positions as compared to last year's faculty. The Dist. 57 School Board has set maximum class size at 35. According to Sahlberg, if some classes have more than the figure, a third class would have to be created. He said three teachers who have been placed in a permanent substitute pool would then receive an assignment.

NEW MUSIC PROGRAMS will greet students at Fairview and Sunset park schools in Dist. 57, according to Richard

Percy, assistant superintendent. He said a guide for helping children avoid drug abuse will be co-ordinated with subject areas sometime during the year, if approved by the school board.

In River Trails Dist. 26, classes last for a half a day today. About 3,100 students are expected, according to James Retzlaff, assistant superintendent. He said teachers will be introducing new programs in language arts and social studies in the first through six grades.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school officials speculate that enrollment may reach 12,000 this year, as compared to last year's 11,600. The district will have 541 teachers, 18 more than last year. Eighty of them will be new to the district, and 62 of those are first-year teachers.

This year for the first time parents have been able to register their children by mail. Forms were mailed out in June to 7,200 families and have been returned by more than 90 per cent of them. Anyone whose child is not yet registered can go to the school today to fill out the forms.

CHANGES ARE being planned in many district schools, both to improve education and because of budget cuts, according to Leah Cummins, public relations director. Fees will not be collected today. Parents will be billed in October.

A greater emphasis on individualized instruction and more team teaching will open the school year in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, according to Supt. Ed Grodsky. He said enrollment is expected to rise 2 to 5 per cent over last year's 1,800 because of new housing developments in the Arlington Heights portion of the district.

When approximately 235 students return to St. Paul Lutheran School in Mount Prospect, they'll find a television set in every classroom. This is the first year teachers will use Chicago Area School Television (CAST) to supplement their programs, according to Ronald Brandt, principal. He said various road-

Unfinished Remodeling Forces Fund

Unfinished remodeling at Douglas MacArthur School in Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 has forced the school board to set up a contingency plan when school opens there today.

School officials indicated the remodeling project may be completed no sooner than November, though some parts of the work may be finished sooner. The project includes construction of a new gymnasium, a theater and four new classrooms. The former gymnasium is being converted into a library. A second floor with classrooms will also be part of the revamped gymnasium.

At a meeting Wednesday, the school board approved a contingency plan to be used at the junior high school until the construction is completed.

The construction area will be sealed off to prevent students from wandering into hazardous areas. The transformer in the addition will remain disconnected for safety reasons.

TWO REMODELED classrooms and two new seminar rooms will be ready for occupancy this week. The other remodeled areas and the addition will not be ready. Room assignments will be temporarily switched until the new rooms are completed. One homeroom will meet in the cafeteria and another in the study hall. The learning disabilities class will be held at neighboring Anne Sullivan School.

According to Gerald McGovern, MacArthur principal, two of the biggest problems will be lack of storage space for furniture to be used in the new rooms and lack of space for physical education classes.

The contingency plan calls for using the gym at Sullivan School for the eighth grade varsity basketball team. The multi-purpose room at Dwight Eisenhower School will be used for the seventh grade varsity basketball team. The practices will be held after 3 p.m.

On bad weather days the regular physical education classes will be held in "whatever room is empty," said McGovern. "We hope the new gymnasium classroom will be ready early so that it can be used until the gym is completed."

"THE LIBRARY will become available for storage purposes no later than Sept. 17," said McGovern. The contractors are expected to begin pouring the cement floor in the old gym this week.

THE BRATWURST was sizzling, the beer was flowing and the band was playing all through the Labor Day weekend at the Mount Prospect Jay-

FOOD AND DRINK as well as hayrides for the children Oktoberfest. Funds from the annual tent celebration are used for the Jayces' community projects.

Kindergarten Tests Slated

Can your 5 year old identify colors and shapes. School Dist. 23 will find out on Sept. 13 when it gives its kindergarten students their first test.

If your kindergarten-age child is weak in one area of learning, he will be placed in a group that will receive special attention in that area. If your child has mastered another area, such as counting, he won't have to go over it again.

"The main aim of the test is to find out what the children know, so we can do a better job of teaching them," said Mrs. Roger Wingert, a district resident who initiated the test.

The project began last spring, after Mrs. Wingert, a doctorate candidate, visited district kindergarten classes. "I felt the children knew more than the teachers were giving them credit for. I thought it would be better to find out what the children know in the beginning so they won't have to repeat anything." MRS. WINGERT WORKED with three elementary school principals, James Finke, Esther Pearson and Mary Hyrczyk, to design the test. They started with a test used at the district's Betsy Ross School in past years. This test concentrated on manual and visual skills such as matching.

The final product concentrates on the child's knowledge of conceptual skills such as counting and identifying shapes. According to Asst. Tom Rich this is not the first test developed to group kindergarten children, but it is "one of the most sophisticated in the area."

At each school the test will be administered by groups of three former teachers who still live in the district and volunteered to participate in the project.

It will take the teachers approximately 10 minutes to test each child. In addition to shapes and number, the children will also be tested on colors, letters, and sentence completion.

According to Mrs. Wingert and school officials the average kindergarten child today knows more than the kindergarten children did several years ago. They say this is due to more parental awareness of preschool learning and to more emphasis on the media, especially, television on preschool children.

"SESAME STREET" a new TV program, has had one of the greatest effects on preschoolers, according to the school officials. Last spring Mrs. Wingert distributed a questionnaire to district parents, asking them what their children had learned from the program. Results from that survey showed that children who watched "Sesame Street" are better prepared for kindergarten. However, Mrs. Wingert said the questionnaire is not as accurate as testing the children.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,500-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World
A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War
South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State
Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.50 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

River Trails Teachers Seek Temporary Pact Extension

A temporary extension of the present teachers contract in River Trails School Dist. 26 will be sought by teachers when they appear at the school board's meeting tonight.

The request will be coupled to their already announced proposal to reopen teacher negotiations.

Gary Rathgeber, chairman of the teachers' bargaining team, said yesterday that the River Trails Education Association (RTEA), the teachers' bargaining agent, would like the present contract extended, "probably for a week."

Teachers called for negotiations to be reopened after they turned down a contract proposal last week that had been put forth by the board Aug. 21.

TEACHERS REFUSED to accept that proposal for two reasons: first, they felt the salary offer was too low, and second, a provision calling for bargaining to be reopened at the end of the current national wage-price freeze was not included. Teachers earlier had said they wanted such a provision to be included in their contract.

Both sides refuse to divulge the details of the current salary offer. James Retzlaff, assistant superintendent of the district and chairman of the board's bargaining team, said Friday, "The offer presented Aug. 21 was the one worked out by the two sides. It is up to the board whether that was its final offer."

Retzlaff pointed out that the teachers' vote last week on the board's offer did not constitute an official ratification vote. "Technically speaking the teachers have not said 'no' to that offer in that they did not actually put up the contract for ratification."

"The board has to have an opportunity to appraise the situation and choose a course of action. They will probably do this (tonight)."

Rathgeber had said last week that the RTEA would meet this week following the board's meeting to determine the teachers' next step. However, yesterday, he said no such meeting would be held unless the board refuses to hold more bargaining meetings. "If they agree to negotiate," he said, "We would not need another RTEA meeting until we finish negotiations."

Team teaching is also new to the school, 18 E. School St. If team teaching works on the fifth grade level, it may be put into use throughout the school, according to Brandt. He said a new learning center combining books and audio-visuals materials is also new for students.

NEARLY 600 STUDENTS are expected at St. Raymond Catholic School, 380 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect. For the first time, students will no longer be grouped by grade level in their mathematics classes. The new program known as IGE (Individually Guided Education) will place more emphasis on "the individual child," according to Sister Joan, principal.

Grade levels will be eliminated in all subject areas at St. John Lutheran School, 1101 Linneman Rd., in Mount Prospect. Instead, students will be grouped into five homerooms according to age, said Warren Ford, principal. New reading and spelling textbooks will also be used by the school's 90 pupils.

Sewing for seventh and eight grade girls is new in the curriculum at St. Alphonsus Catholic School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd in Prospect Heights. About 510 students are expected for a full day of classes today, according to a spokesman. Part-time sessions were held Thursday and Friday.

St. Emily Catholic School, 1400 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect, starts at 8:45 a.m. tomorrow for a full day of classes for second through eighth graders. First graders will begin classes Thursday. All children are expected to be dressed in full uniform.

School Bells Are Ringing

Students File Into Class With Pencils, Books Today

Armed with lunchboxes, sharpened pencils and new notebooks, thousands of students will file into the classroom today as school bells ring in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights.

More than 3,000 children are expected to fill the classrooms of seven schools in Mount Prospect Dist. 57. "We may have some overcrowding or we may end up eliminating a class," said Supt. Eric Sahlberg. "It all depends on enrollment."

There will be fewer classes in the district because of the 25% fewer teaching positions as compared to last year's faculty. The Dist. 57 School Board has set maximum class size at 35. According to Sahlberg, if some classes have more than the figure, a third class would have to be created. He said three teachers who have been placed in a permanent substitute pool would then receive an assignment.

NEW MUSIC PROGRAMS will greet students at Fairview and Sunset park schools in Dist. 57, according to Richard

Percy, assistant superintendent. He said a guide for helping children avoid drug abuse will be co-ordinated with subject areas sometime during the year, if approved by the school board.

In River Trails Dist. 28, classes last for a half a day today. About 3,100 students are expected, according to James Retzlaff, assistant superintendent. He said teachers will be introducing new programs in language arts and social studies in the first through six grades.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school officials speculate that enrollment may reach 12,000 this year, as compared to last year's 11,600. The district will have 541 teachers, 18 more than last year. Eighty of them will be new to the district, and 62 of those are first-year teachers.

This year for the first time parents have been able to register their children by mail. Forms were mailed out in June to 7,200 families and have been returned by more than 90 per cent of them. Anyone whose child is not yet registered can go to the school today to fill out the forms.

CHANGES ARE being planned in many district schools, both to improve education and because of budget cuts, according to Leah Cummins, public relations director. Fees will not be collected today. Parents will be billed in October.

A greater emphasis on individualized instruction and more team teaching will open the school year in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, according to Supt. Ed Grodsky. He said enrollment is expected to rise 2 to 5 per cent over last year's 1,800 because of new housing developments in the Arlington Heights portion of the district.

When approximately 235 students return to St. Paul Lutheran School in Mount Prospect, they'll find a television set in every classroom. This is the first year teachers will use Chicago Area School Television (CAST) to supplement their programs, according to Ronald Brandt, principal. He said various read-

Palatine Man First Fatality

A 26-year-old Palatine man became the first fatality of the Labor Day weekend when his car crashed head-on into another car on Quentin Road, north of Rte. 88, at midnight Friday.

The man was identified as John Bastian, of 647 E. Baldwin.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Bastian was trying to pass another motorist, when he collided with a car driven by Cindy Daczewitz, 18, of 625 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights.

Police said Bastian swerved to avoid the oncoming car, but not in time. The accident happened at Quentin Road near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Miss Daczewitz was taken to Northwest Community Hospital with multiple contusions, lacerations and a fractured nose. As of Monday morning, she was listed in good condition by the hospital.

Police said she said she didn't see Bastian in time to swerve away.

In Elk Grove Village Friday afternoon an 8-year-old boy, Ronald Bartlett, 200 Kingsbridge, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident.

The boy, according to police, was riding his bike in front of his home when a car swerved into him and then kept going. Young Bartlett suffered only an abrasion to his left arm, which was treated at home, but police said they are investigating the accident.

ELSEWHERE in the Northwest suburbs during the holiday weekend, traffic accidents were limited to fender benders without injuries.

Illinois State Police reported no serious accidents on the Northwest Tollway as of Monday afternoon. A spokesman said traffic on the tollway was very heavy Saturday, slackened Sunday and was expected to be very heavy again Monday evening, as weary motorists drove home at the end of the holiday.

At noon Monday, 480 persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents around the nation. The National Safety Council predicted earlier that from 600 to 700 persons would be killed in cars before the Labor Day holiday ended at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The council also predicted that 24,000 to 28,000 persons would be injured in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

WHILE TRADITIONAL Labor Day traffic placed heavy burdens on the roads, area golf courses also were feeling the extra holiday rush as suburbanites tried to take advantage of the long weekend.

THE BRATWURST was sizzling, the beer was flowing and the band was playing all through the Labor Day weekend at the Mount Prospect Jay-

FOOD AND DRINK as well as hayrides for the children Oktoberfest. Funds from the annual tent celebration are used for the Jayces' community projects.

New Trustee To Take Oath Of Office

Mount Prospect's newest trustee, Earl "Bud" Richardson, will take his oath of office at the beginning of tonight's regular board meeting.

Richardson was appointed to the unexpired part of George Reiter's four-year term on the board at the special board meeting of Aug. 24. Former Trustee Reiter resigned July 8 because of an increased work load in his private business.

Richardson leaves his chairman post on the board of local improvements to take the trustee spot.

The board also will have a first reading of Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten's ordinance calling for a community services and mental health commission. The new 11-man commission would replace the present youth commission.

IN A MEMORANDUM to the board,

Scholten said the board of trustees "in order to do our job, need experts in the field of dealing with people. We need to know what programs are being carried out within our community and whether or not they are good programs or if they can be improved. We need to know if we should become involved in underwriting such programs."

Scholten sees the new commission as a way of enabling the board to know the needs of Mount Prospect.

The memorandum also touched on the recent problems of the Community Action Program. "We have operating within the village, a Community Action Plan which has been developed by the community. This program is having its problems in its operation and is in need of guidance. I feel that, if established, a community services and mental health commission cannot only give it that guidance but be the cohesive factor to see that it's a continuing program — continuing to help people of our community."

A resolution noting the death of former village clerk Edwin L. Busse is on the agenda, as is a second reading of the new storm sewer and detention ordinance.

Demonstrate Karate

A karate demonstration will be held Monday at Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St. in Mount Prospect.

The free demonstration in skills and techniques of karate is being sponsored by the Mount Prospect Park District and the Des Plaines Karate Club. The demonstration will begin in the gym at 8 p.m.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,500-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972, with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

River Trails Teachers Seek Temporary Pact Extension

A temporary extension of the present teachers contract in River Trails School Dist. 26 will be sought by teachers when they appear at the school board's meeting tonight.

The request will be coupled to their already announced proposal to reopen teacher negotiations.

Gary Rathgeber, chairman of the teachers' bargaining team, said yesterday that the River Trails Education Association (RTEA), the teachers' bargaining agent, would like the present contract extended, "probably for a week."

Teachers called for negotiations to be reopened after they turned down a contract proposal last week that had been put forth by the board Aug. 21.

TEACHERS REFUSED to accept that proposal for two reasons: first, they felt the salary offer was too low, and second, a provision calling for bargaining to be reopened at the end of the current national wage-price freeze was not included. Teachers earlier had said they wanted such a provision to be included in their contract.

Both sides refuse to divulge the details of the current salary offer. James Retzlaff, assistant superintendent of the district and chairman of the board's bargaining team, said Friday, "The offer presented Aug. 21 was the one worked out by the two sides. It is up to the board whether that was its final offer."

Retzlaff pointed out that the teachers' vote last week on the board's offer did not constitute an official ratification vote. "Technically speaking the teachers have not said 'no' to that offer in that they did not actually put up the contract for ratification."

"The board has to have an opportunity to appraise the situation and choose a course of action. They will probably do this (tonight)."

Rathgeber had said last week that the RTEA would meet this week following the board's meeting to determine the teachers' next step. However, yesterday, he said no such meeting would be held unless the board refuses to hold more bargaining meetings. "If they agree to negotiate," he said, "We would not need another RTEA meeting until we finish negotiations."

ing, social studies and current events units will be co-ordinated with the TV programs offered by CAST.

Team teaching is also new to the school, 18 E. School St. If team teaching works on the fifth grade level, it may be put into use throughout the school, according to Brandt. He said a new learning center combining books and audio-visuals materials is also new for students.

NEARLY 600 STUDENTS are expected at St. Raymond Catholic School, 300 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect. For the first time, students will no longer be grouped by grade level in their mathematics classes. The new program known as IGE (Individually Guided Education) will place more emphasis on "the individual child," according to Sister Joan, principal.

Grade levels will be eliminated in all subject areas at St. John Lutheran School, 1101 Linneman Rd., in Mount Prospect. Instead, students will be grouped into five homerooms according to age, said Warren Ford, principal. New reading and spelling textbooks will also be used by the school's 90 pupils.

Sewing for seventh and eighth grade girls is new in the curriculum at St. Alphonsus Catholic School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd. in Prospect Heights. About 510 students are expected for a full day of classes today, according to a spokesman. Part-time sessions were held Thursday and Friday.

St. Emily Catholic School, 1400 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect, starts at 8:45 a.m. tomorrow for a full day of classes for second through eighth graders. First graders will begin classes Thursday. All children are expected to be dressed in full uniform.

Chamber Head Cites Attraction Of Industry

Village 'Needs' Low-Income Housing For Growth: Mills

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Low and moderate-income housing is a "requirement" for the growth of Arlington Heights, according to an unexpected stand taken by the president of the village's Chamber of Commerce.

Edward "Bud" Mills told members of the low and moderate-income housing study committee Thursday night the attraction of more industry to the village and the availability of a wide cost range of housing are directly related.

Developments for low and moderate-income families will help to attract more industry and office buildings which will "help everyone's tax bills," the Chamber president said.

Mills' speech marked the first time the local group of businessmen have taken any public comments on the housing issue which has been boiling in Arlington Heights for almost 16 months.

The needs which are not being met presently in the village include housing for newly married couples, senior citizens and blue collar workers, Mills commented. Developments can be properly planned so that "we don't have shacks."

The housing is needed "if you want the workers to come in here and build up your industrial tax base," Mills said.

Edward "Bud" Mills

In answering a question, Mills said that housing is needed for not only moderate-income families but also low-income families.

Committee member Alice Harms, who is also on the Arlington Heights Village Board, said she knew the Chamber of Commerce was interested in a healthy economic attitude in the village and asked Mills if low and moderate-income housing might help some of the local businesses.

"It would probably help a great number of them," Mills said and then commented he didn't think the village has lost any business because of a lack of employees. "But we haven't gained many either," he added.

Committee member David Patterson asked if there wasn't enough housing available in areas around Arlington Heights for low and moderate-income housing.

Mills said the lack of housing close to where people work was not a "major" problem but availability of more housing would be helpful to present and future businesses.

Mills was one of about 15 representatives of Arlington Heights groups who spoke at last week's hearing called specifically to judge local attitudes towards the possibility of building low and moderate-income housing. The study committee was formed early this year to study the need for such housing and, if a need exists, recommend to the village board the best way to fulfill the need.

The committee includes members of the village board and plan commission. A deadline for the committee's report on the study of the housing issue has been set for Oct. 15.

In addition to Mills, a few other representatives of groups urged the building of low and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights. Included among the advocates was Jeannie Christopher, housing counselor for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

However, most of the other speakers in one way or another said their groups were opposed to low and moderate-income housing developments which might be built in the village.

TESTIFYING AT THURSDAY'S meeting, Jeannie Christopher of the Northwest Opportunity Center told members of the low and moderate-income housing committee that 70 families served by the center are presently living within the boundaries of Arlington Heights. Miss Christopher, housing counselor for the opportunity center in Rolling Meadows, said there is a need for low- and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights. As counselor for people the center serves, she said when she talks to a family about finding a place to live, "I usually have to tell them to go back to Chicago or out to Elgin."

For Students, Summer Of '71 Ends — With School Bells

The summer of '71 came to an end this morning for some 10,200 students in Arlington Heights Elementary School Dist. 25.

Classes will be in session at the district's four junior high schools from 8:15 a.m. to about 11:30 a.m., and from 9 a.m. to noon in the district's K-5 schools.

Kindergarten classes today will run from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and from 1:15 p.m. until 2:30. Regular afternoon kindergarten dismissal time will be 3:30 p.m. The first full day of school starts tomorrow.

Junior high school students who live in north Arlington Heights (Dist. 21) will be attending a new school, the James Whitcomb Riley School, at 1209 Burr Oak Dr.

OLIVER WENDELL Holmes Junior High School in Dist. 59 will open at 7:55 a.m., while the three elementary schools in Dist. 59 with Arlington Heights students — Juliette Low, John Jay and Forest View — begin classes at 9:05 a.m.

Enrollment in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will rise by 2 to 5 per cent over last year's 1,800 because of new housing developments in the Arlington Heights portion of the district.

Dist. 25 teachers are expected to vote sometime this week on whether to accept a new salary contract recently hammered out by administration and teacher bargaining teams.

Teachers and administrators both will be working under an austerity budget this year — $300,000 less than last year. Nearly 50 teachers have been cut from the rolls, district administrators report.

Today's opening will also initiate new, second-phase building additions to Berkeley School and Rand Junior High School.

Workmen at Miner Junior High School have all but finished their work after a fire destroyed the gymnasium and damaged several hallways there last spring.

Other changes this fall include the installation of Jim Hall as principal at Ridge School, and the loss of both French and instrumental music from the regular curriculum.

Police said they noticed a car without its headlights on speeding away from the hotel. A check of the vehicle's license plates led to four Arlington Heights juveniles who admitted staging the incident.

Palatine Man First Traffic Victim

A 26-year-old Palatine man became the first fatality of the Labor Day weekend when his car crashed head-on into another car on Quentin Road, north of Rte. 68, at midnight Friday.

The man was identified as John Bastian, of 847 E. Baldwin.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Bastian was trying to pass another motorist, when he collided with a car driven by Cindy Daczewitz, 18, of 625 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights.

Police said Bastian swerved to avoid the oncoming car, but not in time. The accident happened at Quentin Road near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Miss Daczewitz was taken to Northwest Community Hospital with multiple contusions, lacerations and a fractured nose. As of Monday morning, she was listed in good condition by the hospital.

Police said she said she didn't see Bastian in time to swerve away.

In Elk Grove Village Friday afternoon an 8-year-old boy, Ronald Bartlett, 200 Kingsbridge, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident.

The boy, according to police, was riding his bike in front of his home when a car swerved into him and then kept going. Young Bartlett suffered only an abrasion to his left arm, which was treated at home, but police said they are investigating the accident.

ELSEWHERE in the Northwest suburbs during the holiday weekend, traffic accidents were limited to fender benders without injuries.

Illinois State Police reported no serious accidents on the Northwest Tollway as of Monday afternoon. A spokesman said traffic on the tollway was very heavy Saturday, slackened Sunday and was expected to be very heavy again Monday evening, as weary motorists drove home at the end of the holiday.

At noon Monday, 490 persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents around the nation. The National Safety Council predicted earlier that from 600 to 700 persons would be killed in cars before the Labor Day holiday ended at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The council also predicted that 24,000 to 26,000 persons would be injured in the 72-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

WHILE TRADITIONAL Labor Day traffic placed heavy burdens on the roads, area golf courses also were feeling the extra holiday rush as suburbanites tried to take advantage of the long weekend.

At Arlington Country Club on Dundee Road, there was a 45-minute wait with several hundred golfers on the course at noon.

At the Mount Prospect Country Club course run by the park district, golfers reported a solid stream of players since daybreak, a 3½-hour wait for tee off at 11:30 a.m., and nearly 200 golfers on the course.

Cyclist Hits Auto, Dies

A 53-year-old Arlington Heights man was killed when he apparently rode his bicycle into the side of a moving auto in Des Plaines Thursday night.

The bicyclist, Kenneth O. Warnicke, 53, of 1437 St. James St., Arlington Heights, was pronounced dead at 8:40 p.m. at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

Des Plaines Patrolman Richard Eyre said Warnicke was fatally injured when he collided with a car driven by David M. Kallstrand, 24, of 542 S. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights.

Kallstrand told police he was traveling west on Greenview Avenue and had just rounded a curve at Sixth Avenue when he heard something crash into the side of his car.

Eyre said Warnicke was found lying on the south side of Greenview Avenue, about 40 feet east of Sixth Avenue.

Eyre said the victim, who apparently was traveling north across Greenview Avenue, was wearing a grey shirt and dark blue pants. There were no lights on the bicycle, he added.

No charges were placed against Kallstrand.

Get Supervision For Marijuana

Four teenagers, two from Arlington Heights, were placed on one year supervision after they appeared last week in Cook County Circuit Court, Schaumburg, on charges of marijuana possession.

Charges of unlawful use of weapons against two of the teenagers were dropped. Sentenced to supervision were Christine Hoellen, 18, of 2334 Goebbert Rd., and James Thomas, 3100 Busse Rd., both Arlington Heights; and Frank Simpson, 18, and Ricky Anderson, 17, both of Victoria, Tex. All four had been charged with marijuana possession, but Miss Hoellen and Thomas also were charged with unlawful use of weapons, a butcher knife and a billy club.

The four, along with a 15-year-old Chicago boy, were arrested July 23 by Schaumburg police when the auto in which they rode was stopped for an equipment violation.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,500-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

Sacred Heart Now Has Team Process

Len Baenan is giving up what he labels as his "little dictatorship" at Sacred Heart of Mary High School and is happy about it.

Whereas last year he handed down all of the decisions affecting the school, this year he is one of five involved in the decision-making process. There is also a conscientious effort being made to involve more members of the total school community including parents and students in the decision-making process.

The change is coming about through the adoption of an administrative team. Instead of Baenan, as principal, making all the decisions, the responsibility has been delegated to the five member team. Each member of the team has an equal vote.

Baenan said it is hoped the team approach to administration will help create stronger and more thorough administrative leadership and accountability.

TEAM ADMINISTRATION is the trend in schools all over, according to Baenan. The administrative concept is similar to that at a college level.

Although all five positions had previously existed Baenan had been in charge of them. The other four administrators had also taught part-time but this year they will be full-time administrators.

The Faculty Resource Book states, "By developing an administrative team, the principal creates a group of people who together exercise deliberative decision-making about school policy and who individually are responsible for exercising leadership and carrying out policy in well defined areas of competence. All other members of the school community share in the development of policy by having consultative voice through a designated member of the team."

The administrative team structure has been under consideration since last spring. The faculty was consulted in the planning and many ideas stemming from the faculty were incorporated into the final plan.

Baenan will continue to serve as the overall educational leader but will be able to devote more of his time to acting as a coordinator for human resources and long range planning for the school.

THE OTHER four administrative positions are director of finance, budget, and purchases; director of student activities; director of faculty and curriculum development; and director of scheduling and records.

The activities of the administrators will be coordinated and decision-making will take place at weekly meetings.

Feminique Offers Trips To Ivanhoe, Civic Opera House

Trips to the Ivanhoe Theater in Chicago, Plaza Del Lago in Wilmette, Civic Opera House in Chicago and other locales are a part of this year's feminique program sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

An average of two trips per month will allow local women to visit specialty shopping centers and stores, see theater and musical presentations and ski at the Lake Geneva Playhouse Club.

The program features round-trip bus transportation from local parks to the chosen site for the day. The feminique program last year featured similar activities and was expanded for the upcoming fall-winter park district season because of the excellent response to the previous programs.

Detailed information on registration deadlines and the fees for the various trips will be released at a later date. The schedule will include visiting Ivanhoe Theater to see "Status Quo Vais" on Sept. 22, a tour of Sara Lee Bakeries on Oct. 6, a trip to Pheasant Run Playhouse on Oct. 20 and a Nov. 3 shopping spree in Lee Wards Hobby Center in Elgin.

ADDITIONAL TRIPS will take local women to the Studebaker Theater to see "Harvey" on Nov. 17, Michigan Avenue in Chicago to shop, and the Lake Geneva Playhouse Club to ski and have lunch on Jan. 12.

Other activities will include seeing "Applause" at the Civic Opera House Jan. 26, touring Haeger Pottery in Dundee Feb. 9, shopping at Plaza Del Lago March 8, seeing a play at Pheasant Run Playhouse March 22, touring the Merchandise Mart April 19 and shopping in Geneva May 3.

For more details on the planned trips, contact the park district's main office in Olympic Park, 600 N. Ridge Ave., phone 253-0620.

Link Teacher Pay Hikes To Freeze

Salary raises ranging from 5.5 per cent to 40 per cent over last year's rates were granted to School Dist. 23 personnel by the school board Wednesday.

However, district personnel may not see the increases in their pay checks until the national wage freeze is lifted. The school board said all raises are subject to a ruling from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The board has written a letter to the federal office asking how the wage freeze affects Dist. 23.

According to school officials all raises are based on merit. However, the use of the merit system is not as clear cut in some areas as others. General guidelines have been developed to evaluate the merit of teachers and administrators. But school officials are still working on an evaluation instrument to be used in judging the performance of non-certified personnel.

DISTRICT CUSTODIANS were granted a 5.5 per cent cost-of-living increase across the board. The cost-of-living increase was also received by the school nurse, library assistants, cafeteria manager and the Azme Sullivan School principal.

The teachers' salary and benefits package ratified by the board Wednesday provides for a merit salary increase in addition to a cost-of-living increase. The merit increases are based on five ratings: unsatisfactory, below average, competent, above average, and superior. The last three ratings carry an increase in salary.

The system used to pay teachers' salaries was provided for in a two-year contract signed in 1969. In the 1970-71 school year the merit and cost of living increases were added to the 1969 salary schedule. Prior to that, the teachers' salaries were based on their experience and education, rather than merit.

As predicted earlier this year by school officials, the total salary hike granted to the teachers in the coming school year is less than last year's increase. This year a merit increase of $350 will be given to superior teachers, $175 to above average teachers, and $100 to competent teachers. Last year superior teachers received $600, above average teachers received $400 and average teachers received $200.

Teachers with no experience will be paid at last year's beginning rates. A beginning teacher with a B.A. degree will receive $7,441 while a beginning teacher with an M.A. degree will receive $8,036.

NEGOTIATING teams representing the teachers and the school board met from March through July to settle the teachers' salaries. Despite the lower salary hikes, Ken Bates, a leader of the teachers' association, said, "basically we feel we are getting a good deal. Given the economy and the board's financial situation we have done well. The teachers are receiving increases ranging from seven to 10 per cent of last year's salaries. This is better or comparable to salary hikes in other districts."

Administrators are evaluated individually by the school board. According to a school official, "the administrator's merit and other factors are considered. The district has tried to save money by hiring inexperienced people and later giving them a merit raise based on their probationary performance."

Second Death In One Week

For the second time in a week, a Des Plaines resident has died of an apparent overdose of heroin.

Des Plaines police said the latest drug victim, Stephen J. Brennan, 25, of 625 Howard St., Des Plaines, was pronounced dead on arrival Friday morning at Holy Family Hospital.

A doctor at the hospital diagnosed the death as an overdose of heroin, according to police.

Des Plaines Patrolman Ralph Tovar said he went to the house in response to a call for an ambulance and found Brennan "barely breathing."

Tovar said he gave the victim first aid until the fire department ambulance arrived and took the man to the hospital. TOVAR SAID he searched the victim's clothing and found a syringe, still slightly wet; a package of white powder; and a burned bottle cap. He said he also found several fresh needle marks on the man's right arm, one of which was covered with a plastic bandage.

Brennan's death was the second in a week blamed on heroin.

Kevin R. Schneider, 19, of 2074 Locust St. Des Plaines, died Aug. 28 after he was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom by his father, Henry. In this death, police said they found a spoon, hypodermic needle case and three packages of white powder, believed to be heroin, under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Needle marks were found on Schneider's right arm, stomach and toes, according to police.

Printing on the spot is the service offered by Ken Natzke in Mobile Print school bus.

Mobile Printing Plant Serves Area

A school bus — minus kids — is roaming Northwest suburban industrial parks. The bus no longer serves its original purpose of hauling children to their schools. It's a printing plant where local companies can have business forms and letters run off.

The bus, bearing the name "Mobile Print," is radio dispatched from the Robert L. Peters Co., a printing firm at 32 S. Kerwood, Palatine.

The service started more than a month ago and has been successful so far, Mrs. Peters, wife of the owner, said recently.

"It's a new concept," she said. "The bus is equipped to run camera-ready off-set copy and it's a one-man operation."

Before starting the mobile operation, she said, the company surveyed industries in the Elk Grove Village industrial parks to find out what kind of services they needed.

"LAST WEEK we had a company that needed 200 copies of a letter that had to get mailed out," she said. "We could run it right in the parking lot."

Most of the companies have their own copying machines for short-run copies, but longer ones come out better using the equipment on the bus, she said.

In addition, Ken Natzke, who mans the bus, can explain to the companies that some of their needs take more time and can be filled by sending the job into the main office in Palatine for printing.

"He acts as a salesman, too," she said. And there is one other thing about the bus — it is marked "Unit 2."

"We have just Unit 2," Mrs. Peters said. "My husband thought about it and he decided that these companies wouldn't know if we had more than one unit anyway. It's kind of a psychological thing."

Deaths Elsewhere

Gilbert C. Snow, 57, of Riverdale, assistant to the superintendent at Rives High School in Burbank, Ill., died suddenly Thursday in Joliet, after an apparent heart attack.

Mr. Snow had been a school teacher for 35 years and was a member of Pinta Neri Council, No. 1846, 4th Degree.

Funeral mass was said Saturday in Queen of Apostles Catholic Church, Riverside. Entombment was in Queen of Heaven, Hillside.

Surviving are his widow, Loretta, nee Rzepczynski; two daughters, Mrs. Patricia (Louis) Bielecki of Arlington Heights and Debbie Snow; one grandson; and a sister, Mrs. Irene (Anton) Seiler of Le-mont.

Is School Important and Necessary?

Each year at back-to-school time we reflect back on those many years we spent learning to practice the art of pharmacy. It wasn't an easy course of study and sometimes we questioned the importance of all the knowledge we were getting.

But Now We Know!

Now that we are operating our own pharmacy we realize how vital this knowledge was to serving the health needs of the great many families that entrust us with their prescriptions and sickroom needs.

What Made Us Realize?
Every day we are doing things that remind us of this necessity for a comprehensive education . . .
— every time we check for a proper dosage of medicine.
— every time we spell out the specific instructions a physician asks for.
— every time we are given a prescription that must be compounded of several ingredients.
— every time a new law or regulation is added to the many we must regularly follow.
— every time a new medicine is released for public use and we must learn all about it.
— every time we have a drug that must be stored in a special way to preserve its potency.

Study Released On City Politics, Government

by BOB CASEY
First of Two Articles

Des Plaines residents have been afforded a detached, outsider's look at their city government and its politics by a political scientist who spent several months studying the city and two other Chicago suburbs earlier this year.

John Rehffuss of Northern Illinois University, whose paper on the study will be presented this week to the annual meeting of the American Political Science Assn. in Chicago, found Des Plaines to be a city scrambling to keep up with tremendous growth.

Rehffuss, who conducted off-the-record interviews with city officials, local newsmen, community and business leaders, compared Des Plaines, Highland Park and Elgin, looking in each case at the levels of local political participation, municipal services and sophistication of their city governments.

According to Rehffuss, Des Plaines ranked behind both other suburbs in the degree of citizen participation in municipal government and the levels of city services provided.

He attributed the lower ranking of Des Plaines to the rapid growth of the city, saying municipal services have struggled to keep up with the change from 9,400 population in 1960 to almost 50,000 in 1970.

"GROWTH HAS not been a major factor in Elgin, has presented substantial problems for Highland Park and has overwhelmed Des Plaines," he said in the paper. "Highland Park has maintained its character despite growth, while Des Plaines' character has largely been formed by growth."

In social standing, he said, Des Plaines falls somewhere between Elgin, a workingman's town, and Highland Park, a suburb for professionals who have "arrived." Des Plaines, he said, is a "suburb for younger professionals and a place for less affluent homeowners to find suburbia."

"Both Des Plaines and Highland Park residents are highly educated compared to Elgin, and are very (family-oriented). Much of the civic interest in these two cities revolves around schools and PTAs," Rehffuss said.

"Although there is no specific evidence, it appears that the lower age but relatively high education of Des Plaines (as compared to Highland Park), signifies Des Plaines as a first suburban home for many young upward mobiles," he said.

DES PLAINES operates under a "strong mayor" form of government and in fact has the kind of strong mayor that makes it work, Rehffuss indicated.

Mayor Herbert Behrel is "the major political force in town," he said in the study.

"He clearly dominates the political scene in Des Plaines and is likely to do so as long as he cares to run," Rehffuss said of the city's 65-year-old chief executive, who has been full-time mayor since 1961.

"However, the mayor is not able to successfully deliver his candidates in every ward," said Rehffuss, pointing to the

Property Stolen Valued At $465

A set of golf clubs, a spare tire and wheel were reported stolen from the trunk of a car parked in Des Plaines early last week.

John B. Marchese, of 719 E. Appletree, Arlington Heights, reported the theft to Des Plaines police Friday.

Marchese estimated the value of the stolen property at $465. He said the theft occurred while the car was parked at 2500 Devon Ave., Des Plaines.

Police said the thieves punched a hole next to the trunk lock to gain entry to the trunk.

Primary Schools To Open Today

Schools in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 will open this morning with more students, more teachers, and less rain than accompanied opening day last year.

Elementary schools will begin classes for first through fifth grade students at 9:05 a.m. Kindergarten students will visit the schools today and have their first day of class tomorrow.

Oliver Wendell Holmes and Thomas Lively junior high schools will open at 7:55 a.m. Dempster and Grove junior high schools will open at 8:20 a.m.

The district will have 541 teachers this year, 18 more than last year. Eighty of the teachers will be new to the district and 62 of them will face their first year of teaching, said Albeon Waltman, assistant superintendent for personnel.

Waltman said only four positions, mainly in special education, remain to be filled by the district.

LAST YEAR school opened despite professional sanctions applied by the Elk Grove Teachers Council. Teachers had rejected a contract proposal the week before school opened.

The contract dispute between teachers and the district dragged on through the fall and finally resulted in a one-day teacher's strike in February.

This year, a contract between teachers and the board of education was approved in June, although it probably will not go into effect until November because of the President's wage-price freeze.

For the first time parents have been able to register their children by mail, using one form for all children in the family. Forms were mailed in June to approximately 7,200 families in the district. They have been returned by more than 90 per cent.

Anyone whose child is not registered, may do so today at school, district officials said.

Book fees and fees for students who must pay for bus transportation will not be collected this month. Bills for the fees will be sent out in October from the administration building.

Book fees this year will be $10 for each first through eighth grade student. Fees for pay-bus, provided for students living less than 1 1/2 miles from school, will be about $25.

DISTRICT OFFICIALS speculate enrollment may reach 12,000 students this year. Last year's enrollment was 11,600.

Enrollment must grow by at least 232 students for the district to be eligible to file an amended state aid claim, which provides extra money for districts with more than a two per cent annual growth rate.

Changes are being planned in many of the district schools this year, both to improve education and because of budget cutbacks, Leah Cummins, public relations director, said.

Among the schools most affected by the budget cutbacks are Brentwood in Des Plaines and Grant Wood in Elk Grove Village. In the past, the two schools have had Individually Prescribed Instruction (IPI), a program begun in 1964 as an experiment with outside grants.

This year a district-wide cutback on teacher's aides eliminated the aides that have been used in the IPI schools. As a result, staffs at both schools have been changing their programs.

Second Death In One Week Blamed On Heroin Overdose

For the second time in a week, a Des Plaines resident has died of an apparent overdose of heroin.

Des Plaines police said the latest drug victim, Stephen J. Brennan, 25, of 625 Howard St., Des Plaines, was pronounced dead on arrival Friday morning at Holy Family Hospital.

A doctor at the hospital diagnosed the death as an overdose of heroin, according to police.

Des Plaines Patrolman Ralph Tovar said he went to the house in response to a call for an ambulance and found Brennan "barely breathing."

Tovar said he gave the victim first aid until the fire department ambulance arrived and took the man to the hospital.

TOVAR SAID he searched the victim's clothing and found a syringe, still slightly wet; a package of white powder; and a burned bottle cap. He said he also found several fresh needle marks on the man's right arm, one of which was covered with a plastic bandage.

Brennan's death was the second in a week blamed on heroin.

Kevin R. Schneider, 19, of 2074 Locust St. Des Plaines, died Aug. 28 after he was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom by his father, Henry. In this death, police said they found a spoon, hypodermic needle case and three packages of white powder, believed to be heroin, under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Needle marks were found on Schneider's right arm, stomach and toes, according to police.

Park Will Probably Use New School's Facilities

The Mount Prospect Park District will probably use facilities at the new Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 junior high school to be built in Des Plaines.

Park district board members met with members of the Dist. 59 inter-governmental relations committee last week to discuss co-operative use of the high school to be located in Des Plaines near South Park.

According to William Selep, park board member, the park district would like to use gym, locker room facilities, an auditorium with a stage, an arts and crafts room and a music room in the school that will be completed in 1973. In exchange, the park district has offered Dist. 59 the use of South Park and its parking lot.

"We went over the plans for co-operative use and looked over preliminary drawings," said Judy Zanca of Dist. 59. "It's almost a foregone conclusion that these facilities will be used by the park district."

MRS. ZANCA SAID the $2 million school was designed with all rooms that would hold recreational facilities at the east side of the building. She said the school board will have to approve a use agreement, but the district has already made a "commitment" to the park district.

Mrs. Zanca last month said an agreement between the two taxing bodies may involve the park district paying for part of the cost of some of the rooms in the building, similar to an arrangement involving Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect. The park district contributed $5,000 to the cost of building the school's multi-purpose room which it uses for park programs.

Selep said "there's no way" the park district will pay for part of the building. However, he stressed that the park board would have to vote on a school-park agreement.

Fees charged for use of the building were not discussed according to Mrs. Zanca. "We didn't get down to the costs," she said. "I would think we would have the cost of maintaining the building and they would have to pay to run the programs," she said. She said other non-school organizations will also be able to use the building.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies in a Labor Day nationwide radio broadcast from Camp David, Md. The address was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later speech, who blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of Socialism for big business."

A shroud of heavy fog blanketing a 3,800-foot Alaskan mountain peak lifted, baring the wreckage of an airliner and the bodies of 111 victims of the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history. A jet crashed Saturday into the side of the rugged Chilkoot Mountain range, about 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

Ground and air crews searched the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness for a teenage Massachusetts girl missing on a survival exercise in a frigid, damp forest high in the Cascade Mountains near Eugene, Ore. A companion died from exposure and another survived to go for help.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says the Republicans could improve next year's ticket by replacing Vice President Agnew with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., has ruled himself out as a Vice Presidential candidate for 1972, saying "under no circumstances would I be interested."

The World

A BAC111 jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamburg, Germany, but most of the 121 persons aboard managed to escape alive, police said. They were unable to say if anyone died. The plane was bound for Morocco.

A teenage girl was killed in a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when British troops and snipers engaged in a gun battle. The girl was the 100th person to die since the latest outbreak of violence in the country began in August, 1969.

More than 100 Tupamaros tunneled their way out of a Montevideo prison in a spectacular mass escape of Uruguay's urban guerrillas that dealt a blow to the hardline government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

The War

South Vietnamese forces appeared into jungled no-man's land in a 20,000-man drive to smash a buildup of Communist troops and supplies below the Demilitarized Zone.

The State

Gov. Ogilvie signed Illinois' first minimum wage law in a brief ceremony before a Labor Day observance at Chicago's Meigs Field. It provides for a floor of $1.40 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1972 with an advance to $1.60 by Jan. 1, 1973. The new law covers about 575,000 employees not included under a similar federal law. It also provides a minimum of $1.10 an hour for persons under 19.

Public school pupils in Evanston, Glenview, Northbrook, Zion and Urbana face uncertain prospects about their return to classes today. Teachers were on strike or planning to vote on a walkout, although in one area a school official said schools would open without teachers.

John M. Bastian

John M. Bastian, 26, of 647 E. Baldwin Rd., Palatine, was pronounced dead on arrival early Saturday morning at Northwestern Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, from injuries sustained when the car he was driving collided with another car on Quentin Road north of Dundee Road near Palatine. He was the first fatality of the area over the Labor Day weekend.

Prayers will be said at 8:30 a.m. today in Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 261 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Then the body will be taken to St. Theresa Catholic Church, 405 N. Benton, Palatine, where a funeral mass will be said at 9 a.m. The Rev. Stanley Kozlowski will officiate. Burial will be in St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery, Palatine.

John, who was employed with Borg Construction Co. as a carpenter, was born July 8, 1945, in Palatine.

Surviving are his widow, Cheryl, nee Phillips; one daughter, Jennifer; his mother, Mrs. Regina Bastian of Palatine; grandmother, Mrs. Anna Gerhart, also of Palatine; five sisters, Mrs. Anne Moe of Chicago, Mrs. Catherine Chapman of Elk Grove Village, Mrs. Regina Krol of Wilmette, Mrs. JoAnn Polito of Rockford and Carol Bastian of Palatine; two brothers, Nick Bastian and Richard Bastian, both of Palatine and a stepbrother, Frank Dumelle of Elk Grove Village; his father and mother-in-law, Barney and Marian Phillips of Arlington Heights; and sister-in-law, Mrs. Lynn (Ronald) Sargent of Hanover Park.

Ella M. Leseberg

Miss Ella M. Leseberg, 68, of 118 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, a machine operator for the Federal Pacific Electric Co. (Economy Fuse Co.), Des Plaines, with 28 years of service, died Friday in Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, following a lingering illness. She was born March 6, 1903, in Palatine.

Funeral services were held yesterday in Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine, with the Rev. Theodore Braem officiating. Burial was in South Side Immanuel Cemetery, Palatine.

Surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Bertha (William Jr.) Kehe of Palatine, Mrs. Anna D. (Emil) Schroeder of Woodstock, Clara L. Leseberg and Minnie M. Leseberg, both of Palatine.

Memorial donations may be made to your favorite charity.

Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, Palatine, was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

School Board Gets Results Of Survey Of 100 Families

The results of a survey taken by the School Community Council will be presented to the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 30 at its meeting today.

The report, the result of a survey of 100 families, will be presented at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The goals committee of the council, an organization of district parents, conducted the survey by selecting five families at random from each of the district's twenty schools, according to member Nita Stamm.

In the survey parents were asked their opinions about the district's education program and what improvements they would like to see in it.

Study Released On City Politics, Government

defeat of three of the five Behrel-backed candidates in this year's city council elections.

"His relationship with the wards involved a delicate balance between disinterested support for downtown (redevelopment) if it poses no ward problems, and potential opposition if redevelopment costs money," he said.

"THE MAYOR can operate as he wishes on most issues, including downtown, to the extent that the matter is not controversial," said Rehffuss.

The city's ward system, which helps localize issues on a ward basis, and avoid widespread controversy, has aided Behrel, who enjoys both a citywide mandate and support from the aldermen, he said.

"However, the system constrains him as well as supports him, for his consensus rests on his reputation as an able, non-sensational administrator and his ability to keep taxes down and maintain acceptable service levels," Rehffuss said.

"Consensus may not extend to city-wide issues when they are sharply defined and the mayor has to take one clear position. It is by no means certain, for example, that any issue perceived as anti-single family residence will carry even if the mayor is associated with it," he said.

Rehffuss ranked Des Plaines behind both Highland Park and Elgin in the level of services provided by its municipal government, the city's government staff here was ranked equal to Elgin's in degree of "bureaucratization" and "professionalization," but both cities were ranked behind Highland Park in those categories.

Religion Today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

Working newsmen throughout the world recently received a helping hand — at least in its ideal — from The Vatican.

Citing reporters and photographers who "at times risk their lives in the line of duty," the document says: "The safety of such correspondents should be assured in every possible way because of the service they render to man's right to know what is happening."

Press photographers will be particularly grateful for this expressed concern — especially those who must photograph riots, and are dangerously vulnerable to attack from the side, while trying to focus their lenses.

Reporters, who often shield their photographers from such attacks, will also be grateful for the Vatican's admonition to "Keep to the facts and bear down on the most important of these . . ."

COLUMNISTS, editorial writers and other interpretive writers will appreciate another admonition in the document: "The meaning of what the press reports should be brought out by explanation."

Religion writers will especially rejoice in this statement of ideals from the head of the world's largest denomination — particularly if these ideals are ever carried into effect throughout the Catholic Church itself. For instance:

—This might mean that Pope Paul would give consideration to a new editorial policy (preferably a new editor) for the Vatican's own daily newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, which is very probably the dirtiest excuse for a newspaper of any publication west of Pravda (One candidate for editor could be Robert Hoyt, who made The National Catholic Reporter one of the top religious newspapers in church history and was recently fired by an ungrateful board.)

—The U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, which makes decisions vitally important to 49 million Catholics (and a great deal of their cash) would immediately stop holding their deliberations behind closed doors.

ACTUALLY THIS attempt at secrecy has been in vain, according to Hiley Ward, religion writer for The Detroit Free Press. Ward reports that he has monitored the last six Bishops' meetings, by using everything from the men's room to a 20-foot extension ladder. His only concern, as he and another religion writer listened behind a curtain at the recent Bishops' meeting in Detroit, was that they might give themselves away to the security police by snoring audibly during some of the more extended speeches. Writes Ward:

"I am confident that, even betraying our secrets, the Bishops' meeting could again be cracked. I suspect that it would take 50 policemen, a budget of $50,000 and some know-how from the FBI to really keep us out."

Catholic bishops are by no means the only denominational officials who are fascinated with the (inevitably vain) allurements of concealed conclaves. Episcopalians can be every bit as sticky regarding "executive sessions." And sometimes laymen can be even stickier — as was the case recently with University of California professor John T. Noonan.

Dr. Noonan is a Trustee of the Jesuit-owned University of San Francisco, which recently underwent a spectacular "Battle of the Jesuits," when the president, Father Albert Jonsen, described his seminary classmate and vice president, Father Robert Sunderland, as "a good guy, but a bad administrator."

AT THE CONCLUSION of a (closed) meeting of the USF Trustees — at which Father Sunderland appeared to testify — this writer went to the executive offices and tried to obtain some official comment regarding the Trustees' decision in this undeniably newsworthy case. Here he was confronted by Dr. Noonan, who issued a unilateral order:

"Get out!"

Maine E. Variety Show Tryouts Set

Tryouts for the annual Maine East High School Variety Show, this year entitled "Everything You Wanted To Know About? But Were Afraid To Ask," will be held from 3:45 to 6 p.m. Sept. 13 through 17 in the auditorium.

Students who wish to participate in the show must return their completed act forms to the box in the English department office by Sept. 8. A schedule of audition times will be posted on the bulletin board outside room 147, school officials said.

The variety show will consist of 20 to 25 acts and will be presented to the public Nov. 18, 19 and 20.

Faculty members in charge of the show include Richard Luckritz director, Edward Sullivan technical director, choreographers Betty Schmitz and Jan Clark, make-up chief Bruce Pagni and musical director Ted Vargas.

Tryouts will be judged by a panel of faculty members and students working with the show. Students auditioning will be asked to perform three to four minute acts.

DURING STUDENT WORKSHOPS at Oakton Community College in Morton Grove last week, new students were given the opportunity to talk to upperclassmen about campus activities. Donna Peters of Des Plaines, a new Oakton student, here is signing up for cheerleading tryouts. In the center is Bobbie Nelson of Lincolnwood and on the right Judy Haag of Skokie, both returning cheerleaders from last year. Classes started Monday for the 1971-72 school year, and cheerleading tryouts will be held next week.

Expect 2,500 Students

Elk Grove High Begins 6th Year

Elk Grove High School will begin its sixth year today when an expected 2,500 students arrive for the opening of the fall term. Most of the students are from Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines.

Enrollment will be 300 less than last year because of the loss of Rolling Meadows freshmen students who will attend the new Rolling Meadows High School on Central Road.

For Robert Haskell this will be his fifth year as principal, and his second as an instructor at the school. He teaches an early morning United States History class before the regular school day begins.

"I find it very helpful and I really enjoy it," he said.

New courses to be offered include black literature, introduction to teaching, boys family meal, photography, Touch Shorthand II, advanced dance, and microbiology.

Cyclist Hits Auto, Dies

A 53-year-old Arlington Heights man was killed when he apparently rode his bicycle into the side of a moving auto in Des Plaines Thursday night.

The bicyclist, Kenneth O. Warnicke, 53, of 1437 St. James St., Arlington Heights, was pronounced dead at 8:40 p.m. at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

Des Plaines Patrolman Richard Eyre said Warnicke was fatally injured when he collided with a car driven by David M. Kallstrand, 24, of 542 S. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights.

Kallstrand told police he was traveling west on Greenview Avenue and had just rounded a curve at Sixth Avenue when he heard something crash into the side of his car.

Eyre said Warnicke was found lying on the south side of Greenview Avenue, about 40 feet east of Sixth Avenue.

Eyre said the victim, who apparently was traveling north across Greenview Avenue, was wearing a grey shirt and dark blue pants. There were no lights on the bicycle, he added.

No charges were placed against Kallstrand.

Employees Raise $28,060 At Circus

A total of $28,060 was raised at the 10th Anniversary Fund-Raising Circus sponsored in June by employees of Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The money includes donations in addition to revenue from circus tickets, refreshments, games and program advertising.

Proceeds from a "Jungle" sale and bake sale sponsored by the employees were used to pay advance circus expenses.

According to Sister Amata, hospital administrator, "Holy Family became better identified and related to the communities we serve as young and old circusgoers visited our grounds and met our employees."

Maine East Girls Invited To 'Splash'

All girls at Maine East High School in Park Ridge are invited to a "Howdy Splash" sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Association at 3:45 p.m. Sept. 9 in the new swimming pool.

Headed by president Linda Diener of Des Plaines, secretary-treasurer Denise Lesiak of Niles and sports chairman Pat McDonnell of Niles, school officials said club members are planning a busy year. Intramural tennis will begin soon and schedules will be posted at the girls' physical education department office.

For fund-raising purposes, the club handles concession stands at sports events and plans to sponsor a sweatshirt sale in the near future.

What concerned him," he said, was "the desire of too many students to graduate early," from one semester to one year ahead of their senior class. There were 35 such students last school year.

"We discourage early graduation because we refuse to believe they cannot learn more," Fyfe said.

Student Council To Raise Funds

Maine East High School Student Council members will hold a flower sale from 7:30 to 8 a.m. Sept. 10 to help raise funds to support the school's foster child.

Carnations will be sold for 25 cents at all entrances to the school, according to student council treasurer Wendy Yedor of Des Plaines.

The Maine East foster child, Binh, is a 15-year-old boy living in Lac Lon, South Vietnam. For $182 annually, Maine East students help nourish, educate and clothe Binh and his family.

'A Strange Feeling' When You Visit North Practice

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Nothing should distract Maine North's football team this season when playing varsity competition.

Large crowds, blaring bands, poor lighting, loose turf — hazards which face nearly every football team during the course of a nine-game schedule — should not affect the Norsemen.

If Maine North's football team has not been distracted by its practice field decorations, nothing else could possibly bother the Norsemen on game days during the season.

You see, a number of Commonwealth Edison power lines and poles dot the Maine North practice field. Large conductors hang from the large steel structures, giving off a low, humming and, sometimes, a crackling sound.

It is under these conditions that the Norsemen gridders attempt to concentrate on football.

The setting gives a first-time visitor to the field an eerie feeling and a sore neck from looking up, making sure those wires stay exactly where they are.

There is no need to worry about one's safety, however.

"This place is perfectly safe to practice," said Maine North head football coach Lou Gartner. "It gives you a strange feeling when you first come out here, a feeling that this isn't a good place to be."

"But this practice field is perfectly safe. If it wasn't, we wouldn't be out here."

Last year Maine North's football team practiced on a field directly across Dempster Street from Maine East High School. The field was conducive for football practice, but, says Gartner, "It was very difficult getting the boys together. It is quite a distance from our campus and we didn't want to take all the time and the effort to bus the boys over there."

Much of Maine North's campus has yet to be landscaped so there is a scarcity of grass — a much needed element for football practice. The Norsemen could get toughened up practicing on the rock-gravel parking lot, but, ooooooh, those injuries...

Therefore, Maine North had to find another place to conduct its practices.

A tract of land, owned by Commonwealth Edison and adjacent to the Maine North campus, caught the eye of the Des Plaines school's administration staff. The land was hardly attractive — there were only patches of grass and the looming towers were prevalent. But it was a field — good enough for practice.

"We knew that if we could get this land it would be a great help to our program," Gartner said. "That is why we asked Commonwealth Edison to lease it to us."

Maine North principal Robert Wells approached Commonwealth Edison for the land. ComEd said sure, but at a price.

The total price was one (1) dollar. Maine North could not have done better even if it had taken top prize on the television show of "Sale of the Century."

Needless to say, Maine North was very grateful.

Maine North was to become even more grateful during the summer.

Commonwealth Edison brought out machinery to level the land and sodded the entire field — at no cost to Maine North!

"It was great of them to do this for us," said Maine North athletic director Dave Kennedy. "We sure are thankful to them."

So, to all Maine North future opponents — bring out the tubas and the cow bells and the fog horns; clap and cheer and stomp.

After practicing under humming high voltage conductors for two hours a day, certainly no tuba is going to disturb any Maine North football player.

How TV System Works

Anatomy Of Instant Replay

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Modern instant replay starts its fifth football season this fall, providing that immediate second look at TV action.

TV fans are so spoiled by instant replay, complete with slow-motion and stop-action effects, that sports promoters may soon begin placing giant television screens in the stands at football stadiums just to keep the fans happy, according to Tony Verna, a CBS-TV director and author of "Playback," a book about TV sportscasting.

"Many people would rather stay home and see exciting action over and over again than watch the game live and en-possible, the HS-100, has been designed exclusively for that purpose with specialized talents conventional television recorders don't possess.

Videotape recorders, which provided the first efforts at instant replays, used bulky reels of tape to record and play back action. The TV engineer finds it quite difficult to back up a tape precisely to the beginning of a scene and replay pictures that were just recorded.

Rather than tape, the HS-100 uses a shiny metal disk for a recording surface. With a little control box, a smart HS-100 operator can find the beginning of a play for a rerun in two or three seconds. And he can make the action run at any speed and in either direction, or he can stop it completely.

The HS-100 doesn't come cheap, and broadcasters are unlikely to assign more than two of the units to coverage of a game.

Although there may be a total of eight TV cameras used during a game, each HS-100 can record the pictures from only one camera at a time.

This places the producer of a sports telecast in the same position as a football coach. He's only got a few superstars to use in each game and he has to make the most of them.

So, while the defensive team is huddled discussing its plans for the next play, the producer, his engineers and HS-100 operators are also trying to anticipate the quarterback's next move.

The broadcast team watches the game from TV sets inside television vans parked next to the stadium.

The producer's van is equipped with a bank of monitors which display the pictures transmitted live from each of the cameras. Here the decisions are made about which camera output to broadcast, and which camera to assign to HS-100s for potential replays.

Throughout the game, the producer fires instructions to every member of the broadcast team. Each cameraman has an assignment: "Follow No. 42," "Watch for a 'red dog.'"

Meanwhile, each HS-100 operator waits for the signal to record action coming from the camera assigned to his machine, or the signal to return to a certain point in a play that has been recorded and run it again, perhaps adding some spicy slow-motion effects.

And while the producer must have the football knowledge and judgment of a Knute Rockne, his team members must carry out their assignments with the speed of a Gale Sayers.

For even though the quarterback outsmarts the opposing team, the producer and his crew must be on their toes. The fans at home will want to see that play again!

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

ENGINEER IN ABC-TV control center operates instant replay apparatus that enables television viewers to get a second look at action. The time counters (with 0-30 dials in center of photo) enable operator to know at what point action occurs so he can return to it within seconds. The lever in his left hand controls speed of replay so slow-motion techniques can be used. Television screens show what cameras are picking up and what is being broadcast.

THE BEST IN Sports

joy the best plays only once," he says.

For Ampex Corporation, the inventor and virtually the only supplier of the specialized equipment, instant replay has become a profitable source of business. Each unit carries a $100,000 price tag and at least 100 of the systems are currently used throughout the world.

Although "instant replay" has become a household word, few fans know how a single play can be made to appear a second or third time on their screen. But there's no mystery about it.

Award Third Getaway Golf Grand Prize At Sportsman

Defeating 12 other finalists, James Peifer of Chicago won the third Getaway Golf Grand Prize playoff at Sportsman Country Club in Northbrook.

He qualified by finishing first in the contest ending July 31 at Sportsman.

Peifer's prize is a trip for two, for a week, to Pipestem Resort, a new $14 million West Virginia State Park in the Appalachian Mountains. His prize includes a transportation allowance, room, meals, and green's fees on both of Pipestem's golf courses.

Using the Peoria Handicapping System to compute all scores, Peifer won by seven strokes with a gross score of 96 and a net of 54 over Sportsman's 6,615-yard, par-72 championship course.

Second is Thad Flis of Deerfield, with a gross of 94 and a net of 61. He qualified by finishing second in the August contest at Sportsman.

Third, at net 68, is Dennis Dick of Chicago, whose gross score was 104. He qualified by winning the August contest at Sportsman.

Fourth, one stroke back, was Dan Hofelt of Itasca, who finished second in the August contest at Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomington; his gross score was 87.

Low gross score went to Bill Page of Elmhurst with an 84. Page, second place winner in the July 31 contest at White Pines Golf Club in Bensenville, had a handicap of only 12 which left him fifth in the final tabulation.

Getaway Golf Contests are exclusively for weekday players; there is no entry fee other than the normal greens fee. Contests are continuing at Buffalo Grove Golf Club in Buffalo Grove, Indian Lakes, and Sportsman through Sept. 15.

All Getaway Golf contestants in the grand prize playoff have already received trophies and merchandise certificates at the clubs where they were winners as well as qualifying for this winner-take-all special playoff.

Other playoff participants, their home towns, their clubs, and their scores are: Robert Charron, Chicago (White Pines) — 88-15-73

Frank Kudia, Chicago (Sportsman) — 116-42-74

Jim Loris, Des Plaines (White Pines) — 132-57-75

Donald Humphrey, Elmhurst (White Pines) — 127-48-79

Robert Owens, Great Lakes (Buffalo Grove) — 112-33-79

Bill Swanson, Buffalo Grove (Buffalo Grove) — 94-12-82

Chris Popoff, Waukegan (Buffalo Grove) — 92-9-83

Jerry Lively, Chicago (Buffalo Grove) — 96-15-84

All the golf clubs participating in Getaway Golf Contests and Pipestem Resort in West Virginia are managed by The Branigan Organization, Inc.

Boy For Everharts

A boy has been added to the Herald sports department family.

Ryan Lawrence Everhart arrived Saturday morning.

Ryan weighed 6 pounds 7½ ounces and is 20½ inches tall.

Mrs. Larry Everhart and Ryan are doing fine at Holy Family Hospital.

The latest count for the sports department new shows five girls and four boys.

Two Attend From Des Plaines

Conference Fosters Unity Among Women

by DOROTHY OLIVER

They came together — setting aside racial, ethnic, religious and political difference. More than 1,100 women gathered in Philadelphia this August bound by their desire to further the cause of humanity through women.

Delegates and participants from 54 countries met for the eight-day 17th triennial conference of the International Federation of University Women. Among the participants were Mrs. Stephen Loska, 1694 Van Buren, Des Plaines, and Mrs. Charles Robison, 1639 Campbell, Des Plaines, of the Northwest Suburban Branch of the American Association of University Women.

IFUW was formed in 1917 and dedicated itself to world peace. "The thought behind IFUW was that if men can't keep peace maybe women can," Elma Loska explained. "It was impressive to see Israeli and Arab delegates together in a study group. Everybody, regardless of their political thinking, got along fine."

THE ORGANIZATION purpose is to encourage international cooperation, to further the development of education and to promote the participation of women in public life. Special attention was paid during the conference to the elimination of illiteracy and juvenile delinquency, to human rights and to communications in free societies.

Numerous delegates and participants hold doctorates in medicine, law, education, etc. and have achieved top positions in their chosen fields. Among them were authors, educators, an astronomer, agriculturalists and government officials. "Of all the women I talked with, I only met one who was 'just a housewife' like I am," said Kay Robison.

The women at the Des Plaines women met left as many lasting impressions as did the discussions and work sessions.

"I SPENT TIME talking to Col. Stella Levy, who has been in the Israeli army for 29 years and helped form the women's army in Israel," Elma said. "At one point during the conference a resolution was passed to support the role the mass media can play in influencing the public opinion in favor of woman's liberty of choice and the part she can play in society. The delegates voted to delete a phrase, 'respecting her feminine role,' from the resolution which made Col. Levy furious.

"She is all for woman's rights but believes we should remain feminine. 'Who are we to deny our own femininity?' she asked me."

Col. Levy does not believe a woman can devote herself to both a career and homelife with husband and children. She is presently on loan to the Israeli embassy in Washington, D. C.

ANOTHER DELEGATE the women spoke with was Dr. Irene Thomas, a physician in charge of infant and maternal welfare in Nigeria. Her initial education was from missionary schools and her studies continued in England and the United States. She left her medical practice to assume her government post because she believed she could do more for the women of her country in a political position.

"She was brilliant, beautifully dressed and a very gracious person," Kay said. General sessions of the conference were simultaneously translated into English, French and Spanish. Many of those attending spoke no English, and interpreters accompanied them on field trips in Philadelphia.

BUSINESS MEETINGS filled part of the schedule. During one session the delegations from South Africa and Uganda strongly defended their countries against charges by UNESCO that they practiced discrimination. UNESCO had recommended that IFUW drop these countries from their membership.

Each participant took part in special interest sessions and discussion groups. Elma was involved in the special interest session devoted to education. Her group toured an elementary, junior high and high school in Philadelphia and listened to educators explain the various American school systems. Group members exchanged information about the systems in their countries and everyone had numerous questions.

Meanwhile, Kay was participating in the special interest session on consumerism. Speakers explained what was being done at the federal level and how consumer problems are being handled. Field trips took her group through a wholesale food distribution center, a meat packing plant and a fruit processing factory. Again, the participants discussed consumerism in their countries and exchanged ideas.

"I THINK THE cooperative feeling shared by all of these women — women who are doing things — inspires you to go home and do things within your own branch," said Elma, who is the current president of Northwest Suburban AAUW. "We were lucky enough to have had an education and we should be doing things for others."

"One of the things we're bringing back to our membership is what was discussed in Philadelphia about women in general," Kay added. "We should encourage women to attain a better image in public, to trust each other more, to work with each other better. IFUW is promoting international friendships among women. When I, or my children, have traveled we have contacted IFUW members who have been so happy to see and hear from you."

The two Des Plaines participants — and probably the majority of those attending the conference — returned home with a united spirit. They intend to share this "oneness" with their branch. As IFUW grows and its membership spreads, this very spirit may lead to their ultimate goal, world peace.

COL. STELLA LEVY of Israel, left, discusses women's rights with Mrs. Elma Loska at recent IFUW conference.

DR. IRENE THOMAS is helping women through her political office with the Nigerian Ministry of Health. She reviewed her goals with Elma Loska of Des Plaines during an eight-day conference in Philadelphia.

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

COME FOR COFFEE and fun at Paddock Publications' annual publicity workshops. Sessions are scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 9, and Friday, Sept. 10, at two locations. All presidents and publicity chairmen of women's organizations whose news appears in the Herald women's pages are invited. No charge, plenty of helpful hints on getting better publicity for your club.

Women's Groups Only

Diplomas For Everyone

There'll be diplomas conferred on all women attending this week's annual Paddock Publications publicity workshops. There are no tuition or matriculation fees, no final exams and everyone will be graduated "cum laude," according to "Professor" Marianne Scott who will conduct the courses.

The diplomas will not be the traditional parchment roll, but they will be befitting the roles of club presidents and publicity chairmen who have made reservations for the "short course" in writing club publicity.

Squeezed into just 2½ hours, the morning courses will include coffee and rolls, plus loads of hints on writing news releases for the papers.

THE REGISTRARS for the course may be reached by calling the Paddock Publications offices: 394-2300, Extension 233, or Des Plaines, 297-6633.

The course begins at 9 a.m. and concludes at 11:30.

The capsule course will be given twice. First presentation will be Thursday, Sept. 9, in the Plum Grove Club, Plum Grove Estates, Palatine. The second will be held Friday, Sept. 10, at Northwest Suburban YMCA.

The Plum Grove Club is located just off the Route 53 West frontage road and can be reached either from Kirchoff or Algonquin Roads. Those attending are reminded to approach the club from the frontage road, not Route 53. Only those familiar with the area should attempt to reach the club from Meacham Road.

The YMCA is located at 300 Northwest Highway, Des Plaines, just outside the Mount Prospect village limits.

Invited are publicity chairmen and presidents of all area clubs whose news appears in the women's pages of the Herald. These women may attend whichever of the workshops is most convenient to them.

by MARY SHERRY

All my life I have been just slightly behind the fashions. This is, I suppose, partly because I kid myself into thinking that I'm independent enough to resist fads, and partly because I believe most new waves of fashion are genuinely ugly. But they are only ugly until I get used to them — a reaction, as I mentioned, that always comes just as the trend is about to fade.

I was bemoaning this fact to my friend and next-door neighbor, Alice Flaxton. "This year the look is definitely layered," Alice stated.

I agreed, noting that after several tries, it was apparently going to make it. However, I protested its bulky appearance, observing that I didn't need any more padding.

"Look," Alice said flatly, "with fashion you love it or leave it. If you leave it, you risk learning to love it just as it is going out of style . . . remember?" I remembered.

ALICE VOLUNTEERED to help make me fashionably relevant. "First you need your hair styled."

So I submitted myself to a hairdresser who, Alice assured me, would give me the latest. Shortly I emerged with a layer of hair cut to the nape of my neck, another layer that ended at my chin line, a third layer lying over my ears, bangs and a pouf on top. The result was a neatly tiered job resembling a brown furry wedding cake.

Then Alice announced that we were ready to go shopping. She insisted that my first purchase be a set of wildly colored underwear.

"But, Alice," I protested, "it's not practical. It will show through my clothes."

"Don't worry about it. By the time we get through it won't have a chance." She was very reassuring.

NEXT WE BOUGHT a long sleeved body shirt and tights. When I asked Alice which article of clothing went on first, she merely raised her eyes to heaven.

My third purchase was a wardrobe — sort of a 45-outfits-with-4-pieces type of thing. It had not only pants but a tunic top, a skirt and a reversible sleeveless jacket. Alice was very excited about this outfit because I could wear all the pieces at once with the underwear, body shirt and tights. When I got everything on, my arms stuck out a little from my sides like those of a 2-year-old bundled up to go out to play in the snow. And when Alice led me to a coat that she said was just perfect, I found I had to take it in a size larger than I usually wore.

Now that I have bought my fall and winter clothes on the layer-away plan and for the first time I am fashionably fit, I still find my enthusiasm lagging behind the trend. I really admire the fashion industry for coming up with an ingenious way to sell us more clothes than we need. And, truly, the look isn't too bad this year.

BUT THIS FASHION poses one great hazard. It is an absolute necessity that before one gets all layered up, she follow the orders we give our kids before they go off to a movie, a carnival or pile into the car for a long trip . . . "Go to the bathroom."

This minor inconvenience alone just might do in this fashion trend. Maybe not, though. It seems to be the rule that for fashion one must suffer.

Equal Rights Backers Confident Of Passage

by MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Champions of a proposed constitutional amendment to guarantee equal rights to women are confident the House will approve their proposal in the form they want.

The proponents believe members will reject a proposal that would keep in force federal and state laws, deemed to "reasonably" promote the health and safety of females — and that the amendment then will pass.

As the women proposed it, the constitutional amendment stated, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

The House Judiciary Committee earlier this year added this language: "This article shall not impair the validity of any law of the United States which exempts a person from compulsory service or any other law of the United States or of any state which reasonably promotes the health and safety of the people."

THIS AMENDMENT to the amendment was adopted 19 to 16 in the committee.

Irate women said this change, sponsored by Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., would freeze into the Constitution the very inequities against which they are fighting. Most said they would rather have nothing than the Wiggins amendment — that with protective friends like this, who needs enemies?

They are determined to erase that offensive language and win House approval of the simple amendment women have been pressing for since 1923. During the congressional vacation which ends next week, they have been organizing women throughout the country to press hard on their representatives to support the amendment as it originally was written. They did not say so, but it seems clear they are relying on a new House rule to win their fight.

SINCE 1789, congressmen often could vote on controversial questions without being recorded. But this year for the first time, record votes can be forced on almost anything and it seems certain that few members will wish to identify themselves as opposed to legislation possibly supported by a majority of their constituents. And women are in the majority in the nation's population.

The House tentatively plans to debate the amendment the week of Sept. 20.

If approved, as expected, it will go to the Senate for action. That was the situation last year, when the equal rights amendment died in the Senate with the end of the Congress. But women expect a different ending to the story this year.

Parents-To-Be Invited To Class

Expectant parents may now register for Alexian Brothers Medical Center's six-week pre-natal course beginning Monday, Sept. 13, and Wednesday, Sept. 15.

Under the direction of Elsie Taylor, RN, maternity department, the classes will include a film of the birth process, tour of medical center maternity facilities and instruction on bathing, clothing and feeding the newborn. Based on the Red Cross Pre-Natal program, the course covers conception through the first several months of life.

Parents-to-be are invited to register for the evening of their choice, whether or not they plan to have their babies at Alexian Brothers, by calling 437-4500, extension 494. Classes meet in Stritch Hall of the medical center at 7:30 p.m.

High Risk Of High Fashion

The Home Line

Collective experience is powerfully persuasive. Periodically, there will come an avalanche of letters from all corners suggesting the identical remedy for someone who has just posed a question. This time it was the troublesome starlings. Everybody says the same thing. It doesn't do any good to shoo them away in the daytime. What turns them off is being disturbed at night. Some people prop ladders against trees and climb up at night to shake the starlings out — some get heavy boards and use them as clackers at the foot of the trees. Whichever way, all agree that a couple or three disturbances at night send the starlings scattering, and they stay away.

Dear Dorothy: Visiting a friend recently I observed her breaking up a clay flower pot which had white crusts on it to use as crocking. I told her I'd heard this white deposit would ruin any plant that touched it. I'm a little late in checking, but was I right? — Amy Downs.

Absolutely right. This is unused fertilizer (calcium phosphate), and it is toxic to root development. Any time clay pots turn this way, they should be discarded. Some may feel that the pot can be washed or the fertilizer soaked out, but this is impossible. Cheap as clay pots are, it's silly to fool around with those that have gone sour.

Dear Dorothy: Some time ago I picked up a carton of fruit in an open-air fruit market. The carton was swarming with bees so I got stung, but good. An elderly couple standing near said they used the following procedure in Italy many years ago: Break open a clove of garlic and rub the juice into the sting, after first removing the stinger. I tried it. Relief was instantaneous. The stinging stopped and no swelling ever appeared. I'd never have known I'd been stung. Have told many friends about this and they've had the same results. Thought it well worth passing on. — Mrs. E. H. Hanson.

Tips On Antiques For 'Y' Auxiliary

Mrs. Betsy Ward of Arlington Heights is a registered nurse who has extended her interest in helping rehabilitate people to rejuvenating old furniture and other articles of bygone days. She does both with loving care.

Because of her hobby of antiques, she makes speaking engagements on the provocative topic, "What To Do with What Grandma Threw Out and Other Thoughts."

Mrs. Ward will appear Tuesday, Sept. 14, for the first fall meeting of Northwest Suburban YMCA Women's Auxiliary. Although she does not claim to be an expert, she will offer tips on creating treasures from attic cast-offs.

Her program follows a one o'clock luncheon in the "Y" all-purpose room, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines. Tickets, at $2.25, should be purchased in advance at the YMCA.

Next On The Agenda

WOMEN ACCOUNTANTS

The Chicago Suburban Chapter of the American Society of Women Accountants will hold a dinner meeting Wednesday at Louis Restaurant, Addison. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Donald Pfingstler, cost accountant for Knowles Electronics, Inc., Franklin Park. Mrs. Pfingstler has just recently returned from working in Alaska.

President of the chapter is Catherine M. Smith of Arlington Heights.

SIGMA KAPPA

Northwest Towns Alumnae of Sigma Kappa start the fall season at a meeting Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. Herbert Lienenbrugger, 1409 N. Vail, Arlington Heights. Plans for the year will be made.

Interested Sigma Kappa alumnae in the area may call 259-3439 for details.

EASTERN STAR

A picnic will be held by the "sewing sisters" Monday, Sept. 13, at Gages Lake. Hostesses will be Mrs. F. Horwitz and Mrs. Edna Williams.

A stated meeting of Des Plaines Chapter 785 Order of Eastern Star is slated for Monday, Sept. 20.

A "Hard Times Party and Hobo Dinner" is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 25. Dinner will be served at 6 p.m. with a social hour to follow. Reservations for the $1.50 per person dinner should be in by Wednesday, Sept. 22.

Grand Chapter will take place at Medinah Temple Oct. 4-6.

CLIPPED WINGS

John Rohm of United Air Lines will be guest speaker Thursday for a fall membership meeting of O'Hare Chapter of Clipped Wings. The former United stewardesses will meet at Countryside Center for the Handicapped at 7 p.m. for dinner and the program.

Recreational activities for participants in the Center's workshop will be discussed and plans made for the Clipped Wings' Oct. 28 benefit luncheon.

Prospective members may call Mrs. John O'Connor at 369-3654 for reservations.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

Vacation souvenirs will be the items up for auction when the Chicago Northwest Suburban Club of Alpha Gamma Delta begins its club year tonight. The meeting will begin at 7:45 p.m. at the home of Mrs. William Meister, 133 N. Rammer, Arlington Heights. On the co-hostess committee are Mrs. James Enright, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Harley Thomas, Buffalo Grove.

Members are asked to bring a souvenir from their summer vacations for the auction which begins the club's fund raising projects for the year.

Information on meetings may be obtained by calling Mrs. James Weston 394-1706.

Beauty Talk For The Middle-Aged

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Middle-aged women in town for a three-day self-improvement course sit in small chairs in the Candy Jones Studio in mid-Manhattan and repeat after Miss Jones: "Your best beautifian may be your family physician."

Miss Jones, the nation's top cover girl in the early '40s, still looks very much the part — except as she leads this class of women, middle-aged like herself, she's talking with a pencil held horizontally between her teeth. The women also have a pencil between their teeth.

"The pencil," Miss Jones said in an interview about middle-aged women who have let their appearance go, "is to help perfect diction — 'very important in giving a beautiful impression of oneself.'"

"There is meaning, too, in the phrase about physicians possibly being beauticians. Often, middle-aged women may have a complexion problem that only a doctor can help. Or, they may need iron shots or some other attention for a middle-aged malady to help put the spring back in their walk."

MISS JONES, a whirlwind herself if middle-aged, also is head of her own model agency, rates well enough as a professional photographer to have had her one woman shows acclaimed, has a string of beauty books to her credit, lectures on beauty to women in prison, does reports for a radio network and dozens of other things.

A widow (she was married to Harry Conover, the model agency head), she keeps her dynamo in tip-top condition by "meaningful challenges."

Miss Jones said 2,500 women from across the nation have attended her three-day weekend beauty clinics, some repeating once a year.

Miss Jones believes that it is when middle-aged women stop looking at themselves very closely or very often in a mirror that erosion of beauty already has started. Or, they may still look — but they really don't see the image before them very clearly.

CLOSED CIRCUIT television helps the women to see how they look to others — sitting down, getting up from a chair, walking into a room.

Very often when you feel you're slipping into a rut and really don't give a darn about what's happening to yourself, Miss Jones recommends giving yourself a day off — and doing everything backwards that day.

"If you get up early every day, sleep late that day," she said. "Have your dinner at breakfast time and just try to do everything out of rhythm with your usual routine."

The odd day breaks the monotony many times and "can work wonders," according to the beauty expert.

UNITED PILOTS WIVES

United Air Lines Pilots' Wives Club holds its next luncheon meeting Wednesday at Arlington Inn, 920 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Astrologer Marge Gorski will be guest speaker.

Cocktails will be served at 12:30 p.m. and luncheon at one o'clock. Mrs. James Cox, 255-5916, is taking reservations. Deadline is Sept. 6.

LA LECHE LEAGUE

The La Leche League of Des Plaines Park Ridge will hold its monthly meeting Thursday at 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Thomas Jacoby, 1691 Henry, Des Plaines. Topic for the evening is "The Arrival of Baby and the Family in Relation to the Breastfed Baby."

All women (and their babies) who are interested in nursing are invited to attend. Meetings are informal. Mothers share their nursing experience within a framework of a discussion led by a La Leche leader.

Mrs. Richard Collet, 296-6757, may be called for more information.

PI BETA PHI

Mrs. Ronald Jones, 1046 Warwick Lane, Elk Grove Village, will be hostess Wednesday evening to the Arlington Heights Alumnae of Pi Beta Phi. The meeting begins at 7:45.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Bonnie Hee Stephens, whose topic is "Customs and Cultures of Korea." Mrs. William Banta, a past president of the club, will give a short convention report.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Harrison Kennicott III, Mrs. Scott Davis, Mrs. Joseph Faner, Mrs. Saunders Reinhard and Mrs. Donald Tichenor.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

"Pin A Rose on Us" is the title of the program Wednesday evening for Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi. It highlights the sorority's 49th international convention held this summer in Dallas, Texas, where the chapter received several awards for achievement.

Meeting hostess Wednesday is Mrs. O. E. Taylor, 1112 Francis, Arlington Heights. Mrs. George Vitoux and Mrs. Martin Voise, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Paul Jones, Mount Prospect, will assist her.

Reservations will also be taken for the "AOPicnic," a couples' party on Sept. 18. Any new AOPi alumnae in the area are welcome to the meeting. They may call Mrs. Jack Clark, 392-3923, for further information.

MEDICAL ASSISTANTS

The first meeting this fall for the American Association of Medical Assistants in Northwest Cook County is Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Northwest Community Hospital. Dr. Herbert Natof, anesthesiologist, will be the guest speaker.

Girls interested in joining the group may call Mrs. Dorothy Nolle at 882-0019.

Progress In Health: A Report To Women

The Swing To Technology

When a woman is over 40 she needs a checkup more than ever in her life. At this critical time it's essential that she keep track of herself and her health. But health checkups aren't what they used to be. Sophisticated technology, automation and computers have entered the picture.

This new approach to checkups, known as AMHTS (Automated Multiple Health Testing Services), might have been conjured up by a science-fiction writer. It all began prosaically enough when Kaiser Permanente in California incorporated automated checkups as part of its health insurance program about a decade ago.

The idea has since spread rapidly. Some 150 AMHTS facilities are now to be found in Louisiana, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, New York and Missouri as well as in California.

WHERE SUCH facilities exist, the traditional visit to the doctor's office, followed by a few tests sent to the lab, is now reversed. Instead, the woman (or her husband, who surley benefits from checkups, too) enters the AMHTS diagnostic center, which usually consists of a labyrinth of small rooms.

First, a computer takes her medical history, flashing such questions at her from its TV-like screen as: Do you get tired easily? Have you ever been told you have a heart murmur? The woman types her answer on a special keyboard, while in the next room another busy computer prints out a concise summary of her replies.

During the next hour-and-a-half, she is efficiently guided by nurses and other technicians through a comprehensive series of examinations. She has an electrocardiogram, a chest X-ray, a breast X-ray. Her lung capacity, hearing and vision are tested with the latest automated equipment. Her blood pressure is taken; her blood and urine are analyzed by high precision devices. All in all, she may have as many as 35 separate and fast-moving tests.

WHEN THESE tests are completed, she has her first contact with a doctor. He quickly checks the computer printouts of her medical history and test results. Then he completes her physical examination. As a final step, he interprets the various results to her and tells her about any followup that might be indicated.

Although AMHTS was designed originally to help diagnose illness, it's being used more and more to prevent illness. Automated checkups have revealed unexpected "silent" heart attacks, early emphysema, glaucoma and pernicious anemia.

"It can detect disease before the patient has any symptoms," says one of its champions. "It can help avoid such complications as loss of work, hospitalization and disability," says a second. "It can prevent untimely deaths," adds a third.

In fact, a six-year survey at one AMHTS center revealed that cancer deaths had been cut by 33 per cent, disabling digestive diseases by 20 per cent and severe heart disease by 15 per cent.

THIS AUTOMATED system, asserts Dr. Sidney Garfield, who pioneered the Kaiser plan, "mobilizes the vast medical manpower that is today tied up in the deficiencies of an obsolete system." Others add that by using a minimum of the doctor's valuable time and a maximum of automated machinery and trained assistants, higher quality medical care can reach more people, while still keeping the overall costs low.

The system does have its critics, who claim that since computers and other automatic devices lack human judgment, "they will dehumanize medical care." The ultimate value of the system, however, its champions acknowledge, depends on the kind of followup it gets.

As Norma Burrell, nursing supervisor of AMHTS at Rhode Island Hospital in Providence, says, "We try to see that the patients who pass through our center make a followup appointment with their personal physicians and that they keep this appointment." This is particularly important for the woman over 40, she adds, since many physical changes do occur at this age and many chronic problems can develop.

The value of regular automated checkups for the over-40 group is confirmed by Dr. Morris F. Collen of the Kaiser Permanente Program. Dr. Collen points out that those between 45 and 55 who have periodic checkups don't get sick as often as their contemporaries who haven't had the benefit of such checkups.

Graphologist B&PW Guest

Graphologist Elvira Behrens will be guest speaker for Thursday evening's dinner meeting of the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club. Her topic is "Your Self-Concept in Handwriting."

A hospitality period beginning at 6:30 precedes a 7 o'clock dinner at Arlington Park Towers. Guests and prospective members are welcome. Traditionally the club's September meeting is a close one, but this will be open to non-members.

Miss Behrens is a handwriting consultant, lecturer and teacher of basic and advanced courses in handwriting analysis. According to her, handwriting is an expression of the subconscious mind as well as the conscious effort to conform to a pattern of handwriting. She will elaborate on this theory in her talk, showing how personality, emotions and thinking patterns of the individual show up in handwriting.

Women interested in the club may call Dorothy Karger, 296-5960, evenings. Members are employed women who live and/or work in the northwest suburbs.

Motivate your students! The newspaper can be the key to a new kind of teaching-learning experience . . . bridging the gap between classroom ideals and the reality of living.

Because of the daily service provided in the news, young people are growing up aware of the problems they must face. Education must encourage, not dispel, this growing, active interest through exploration and study of the press.
